

The Last Call

THIS is our last reminder to you for this season in regard to planting out hardy stock, while there is still plenty of time to carry out this work it will soon be too late. With the past week of June days followed by rain there seems to be no holding back, the Lilacs will be in full bloom in a short time, the Forsythias already are ringing in spring with their many hundreds of golden bells, the Kaiser Kroon Tulips, Hyacinths and Daffodils are telling the Peonies and Shasta Daisies to hustle up, the bees are watching for the first Honeysuckle and the Spiraeas have their branches loaded down with buds; just a few more days and the Park will be a beautiful sight. How can you resist?

Everywhere there is planning and planting all around you. Get busy, fall in line, it's in the air, things are not good enough as they were yesterday. The world never was so beautiful and you can help along by planting Trees, Shrubs, the Larkspurs and Hardy Poppies you admired so much last year in your neighbor's garden. What is the sense of living in the country and being without all these things? Plant now and enjoy the flowers this summer. We are here to help you beautify your grounds, we know what they need to get the most enjoyment out of them in the way of planting, that is our business, it is all we know, all we are thinking of—day and night, have been at it for ever so many years. Listen! Bahr's Grass Seed, the Fertilizer we make use of and the everlasting reminders we send out have more to do with the good Lawns of our town than anything else, and so it is with the Trees and Shrubs. We have planted thousands of them in and around the town in the past 20 years and are going to keep it up. We are after you to plant, let's do it, and when we finally lay down the spade it will only be long enough to hook on the wings for we are going to keep on planting and so help to beautify things—else come back and answer phone 85.

"The Adventures of Catherine Among the Wild Animals of the North Shore"

Young Men's Club Minstrels

Catherine Arrives in Highland Park

Note—Misfortunes do not come in pairs they come in sequences and the consequences of the latest misfortune which has happened to the Young Men's Club Minstrel Show are that, if you want to know the full, unabridged, uncensored story of the "Adventures of Catherine Among the Wild Animals of the North Shore", you will have to journey to Ravinia Park tomorrow, Friday, night and pay your good money. Of course if you go you will see many other things, hardly instructive, but designed to be very entertaining. These will include a scene in Hades, which place perhaps you have never seen and never had hoped to see. Many strange things will happen there. In the first part you will be entertained by such well known artists as Raymond Lovell, Roland Brand, C. W. Hitchcock, Eddie Conrad, Edward Gourley, John Bolen, Murray Moon, Harry Eichler, John Gallagher and a host of others.

But to return to our reason for not printing the story of "Catherine's Adventures", which is as follows: (And sad is the tale.) Because of the well known delight which children take in pictures of animals we had planned to tell nearly the entire story in pictures, giving it almost exactly as it will be given in the performance. Think of it, there would have been a whole page of these marvelous pictures of adventures; but, we sent the drawings to the concern which makes the cuts and—they lost all but two of them.

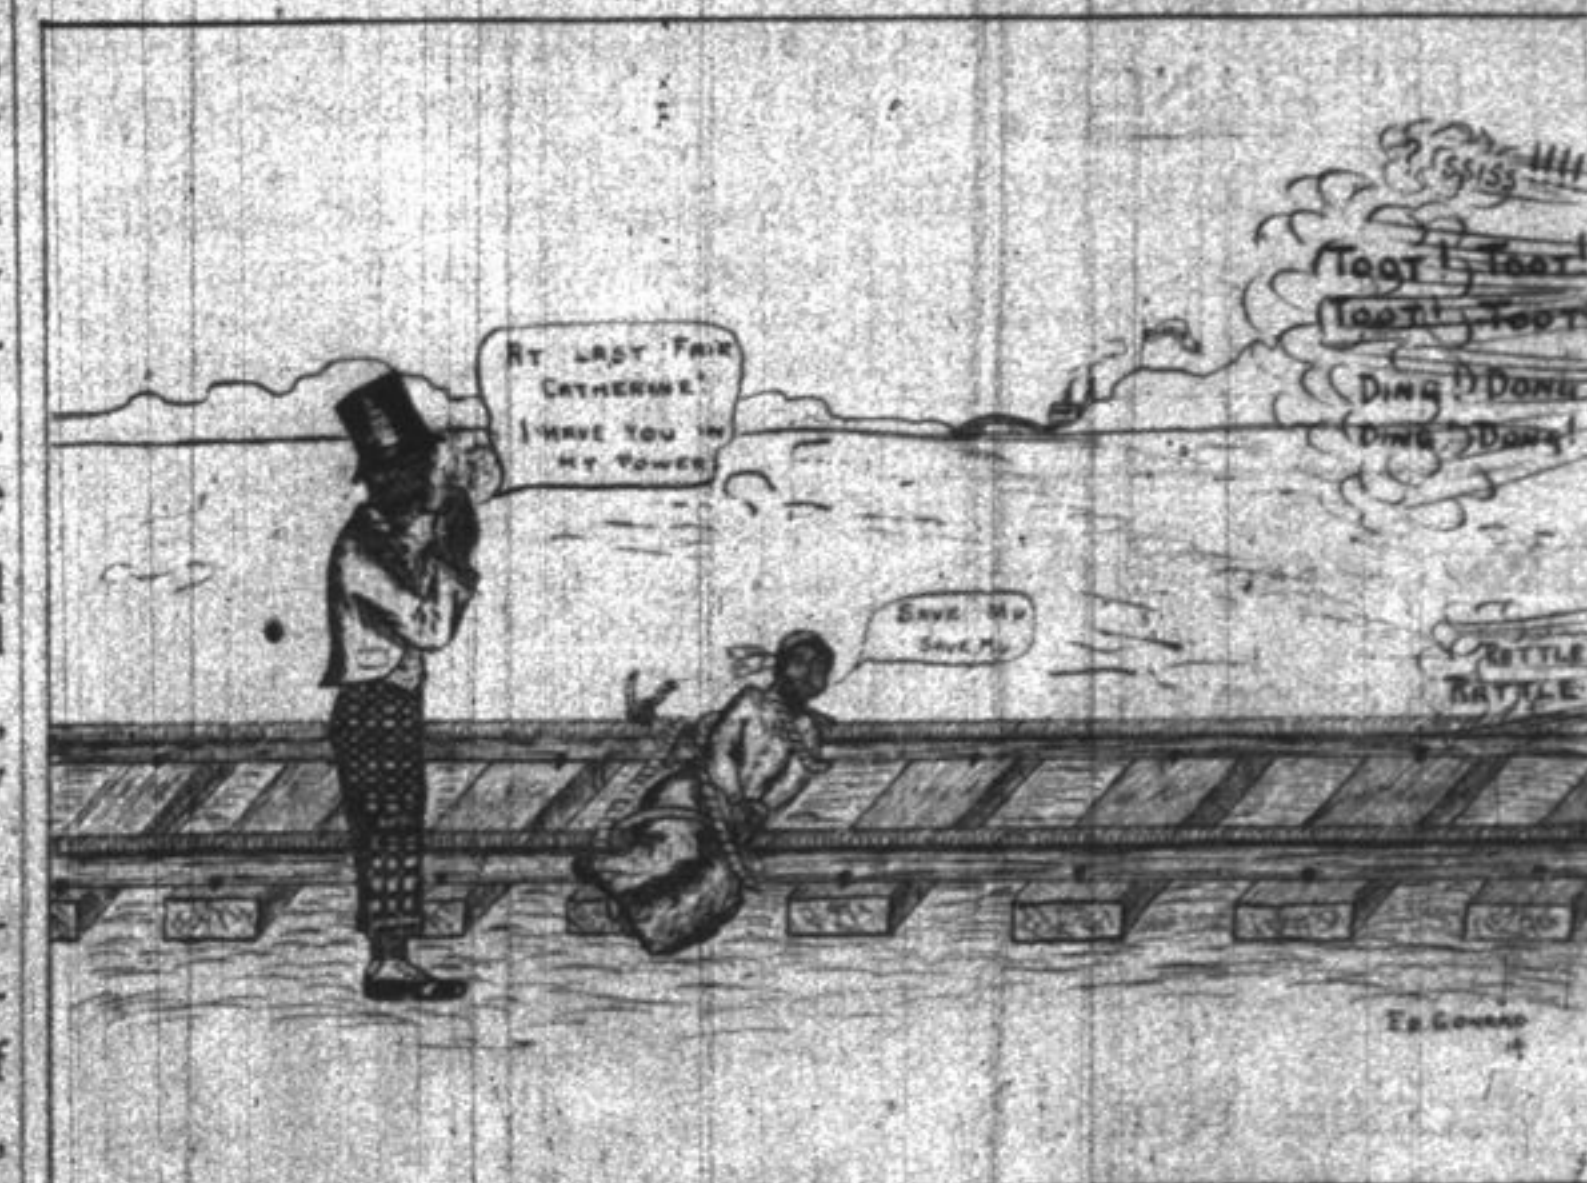

And a sad feature of it is that of the two which were saved only one shows an animal and that a horse. This may lead you to believe that there are no elephants, monkeys, bears, tigers, or other animals on the north shore. But we assure you that there are for Catherine met many of them and they duly posed for their pictures while in the act of preventing Catherine from finding her dog, Fido.

This search for a pet dog is the why for of the whole picture, this and the desire of the Young Men's Club to have something different in their minstrel show than anybody else ever had in theirs and it is carried on through a dozen hair-raising, blood-curdling scenes in which Catherine seems ever to be on the brink of the "jumping off place" but always finds her hero just in time.

To say that we are sorry over the loss of those pictures does not begin to express our feelings. If we had them we would show you how Catherine is confined in the village jail through the machinations of the villain and how the faithful baboon discovers her and the enormous elephant totally demolishes the jail as he liberates her. This is one of the big scenes and the climax is thrilling. But if we told you all these wonderful things you would know just exactly what to expect and much of the "punch" taken out of the pictures for you. Which same thought leads us to the belief that perhaps we are not so unfortunate in the loss of our pictures, perhaps you will enjoy yourselves more not having seen any of the performance in advance. But we grieve for the little ones who must remain at home in bed and therefore will miss the pleasure we had planned for them.

But there, we have gone on and on until our "note" is so long it fills the space allotted us and we must close without telling you some of the many other great features of this truly great show. However if you are wise you will be in Ravinia Theatre tomorrow, Friday, night when the curtain rises promptly at eight-fifteen. All the seats in Ravinia are good so there are many good ones left and the price is fifty and seventy-five cents, according to the location.
