PEACE COLUMN

by ADELINE L. ATWATER

To all sane people war is horrible; and yet most people admitting that, do nothing, or else accept the traditional saying "in time of peace prepare for war."

Do we not yet realize that one of the causes of war is the fear and suspicion bred of huge armaments? This principle is largely responsible for the European war. It means when you are friendly with a neighbor build up a wall between you, be on the alert for insults, and prepare to knock him down.

"Gentlestates" is a new word coined by Professor Thwing of the Western Reserve University. It is very suggestive of what international life might be if the states should become "gentlestates," as in our current life many men happily have become gentlemen.

At this time, when we are celebrating the centennial of peace between Great Britain and the United States, we can not help thinking that these two nations exactly realize President Thwing's definition, by their attitude on the Canadian frontier. What the two nations concluded to do in the Rush-Bagot agreement of 1817 was henceforth to act like gentlemen. The long frontier was to be as unguarded as the line between Massachusetts and Connecticut. No more suspicion or glowering at each other; no more garrisons or gunboats or pistols in hip-pockets. The result of this brave and prophetic policy thus adopted by 2 gentlestates has been that their frontier has for a century been the safest in the world; just as every gentleman walking on State St. is safe, and every brigand is always in danger, though his pockets be full of pistols, and indeed on that account; the question which the present crisis is urging upon all nations is, how soon will they have to act like gentlemen and so be safe.

Although many sane people advocate doing away with armies and navies, such as all nations have today, no sane person has said, do away with your police force, nor has any peace propagandist said do away with an international police force. You say armies and navies are but national police, and will be needed as long as police are. Let us prove to you the contrary.

Police and armies have totally different functions. Police will be needed until the millennium. Militia will be needed as long as there are rioters and lynchers; but armies and navies might be banished in the future.

This is the difference; police do not punish criminals, but use only the minimum of force necessary to bring them to an impartial court. Armies and navies, on the contrary, settle cases themselves by sheer brute force, without any reference to evidence or justice.

National armies and navies will diminish gradually to be replaced at last by a small international police. The united action of European and Japanese troops at Peking in 1900, the Boxer trouble, foreshadowed this. Yes, we must get back of things as they seem on the surface to the fundamentals. All about us whirls a tempest of war so that all of us who are truly patriotic must face sneers and ridicule, for now is the time to show your colors. What is patriotism you ask? There is a true and a sham kind. Patriotism is not tested by show of bunting, or making noise, nor by boasting of our bigness and our strength; but by our daily deeds of good citizenship. Flags and fire crackers no more indicate service of country, than pew-cushions and steeples indicate service of God. Pride of ancestry, interest in genealogy and colonial furniture, admiration for martial music and gold lace are sometimes mistaken for patriotism. Are not Americans singularly unpatriotic in times of peace, and that is 90% of the time?

Our civic apathy and general disregard of law has made us a byword in Christendom. Increase of wealth and opportunity has made multitudes selfish and indifferent to the country's dangers. This means treason to the Republic. It means we have deserters and cowards, as well as patriots in office, factory, shop and parlor.

The Hague, just now and ever since the war began, is the very centre of this true kind of patriotism. When we have more time and space we will tell in detail of the wonderful movement on the part of the women of the world in meeting together there in the common interest of humanity the end of this month. Perhaps the most important committee now at The Hague is the Dutch Peace party working in behalf of the "European Federation," which it says is the only solution of the issues presented by the war. The pamphlets sent out by this committee which have come to this country are printed in English, are of great interest, urging that only in some sort of Federation or concert of Europe, is there remedy for the prevailing anarchy, in which each nation is a law unto itself. It is interesting to note that their principles are in accord with every one of the dozen or more constructive peace programs, which have been published by different groups in the United States and Europe, but the Dutch committee has by far the most systematic propaganda in Europe on the matter.

By an interesting coincidence, we see at this very time, the founding of a "United States of Europe Society" here in our own country. Charles H. Ingersol of New York, is the president, and among its sponsors are Presidents Elliot, Butler, and Jordan. President Butler has recently published an article, also advocating the United States of Europe as a necessity for the solution of the present problems. This suggestion is not new. As Victor Hugo urged it eloquently sixty years ago; Sir Max Waechter in England has been carrying on a systematic campaign for the project for the last ten years; Alfred H. Fried, an eminent German international thinker has been pleading for a Pan-European bureau; corresponding somewhat to our Pan-American Bureau at Washington.

So note this all ye militarists. This whole idea is suddenly taking practical significance far greater than ever before, and the simultaneous appearance of these two definite organizations for its promotion at the Hague and New York are prophetic!
