DROWNING OUT A FIRE.
High Pressure Water Streams That Tear Down Room Partitions.
Just think of picking up a pond or a small reservoir containing about 30,000 gallons of water, and throwing it bodily at a fire, and then picking up another pond or reservoir containing the same amount of water and throwing that at the fire within a moment's time, and keeping up this performance every minute for an hour until the fire is drenched with nearly 2,000,000 gallons of water! Quite a "bucket brigade," eh?

Practically that is what the New York fire department does today with its high pressure system, for with this method of water supply the firemen can obtain 30,000 gallons of water a minute and, if necessary, at a maximum pressure of 300 pounds to the square inch—sufficient pressure or "pushing power" behind the stream to carry it from the street to the top of an eight story building or even higher.
It has the greatest possible advantage over the "throwing" method, since the firemen, with the aid of their water towers and monitors, can direct streams that smash windows, tear down partitions, sweep aside merchandise and squirm, twist and force themselves into every nook and corner of a building, searching out the fire better than the fireman can and smothering it before it can reach the danger mark.

And this is why that in a portion of New York city used a few years ago for destructive fires the big fire has, in a sense, disappeared.—Charles T. Hill in St. Nicholas.

THE CORNCOB PIPE.
At Times It's Sticky, and It Doesn't Go Well With a Silk Hat.
The corncob pipe is a democratic institution. One evidence of the fact that this country is not so democratic as foreigners believe is that, according to the code of an American gentleman, the corncob pipe must not be smoked while wearing a silk hat. On the other hand, it may be for this reason that Americans so seldom affect the silk hat.

Some Favorably Impressed.
"Can you tell me some way to cook potatoes?" asked the young wife who was doing her first marketing.
"They are very nice just boiled in their jackets," suggested the grocer.
"Are you sure?" asked the young wife.
"Are you sure?" she went on doubtfully.
"Those jackets do not look very stylish."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Trifle, Really.
"That was a mighty attractive costume Mrs. Pursglove wore at the dance last night."
"I suppose it was—if you say so—but it didn't seem to me there was enough to make much fuss over."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

POLAR STAGE.
Special Stamps Used by Some of the Exploring Expeditions.
Many arctic and antarctic explorers have taken with them a special supply of postage stamps for special use.
When the Terra Nova left New Zealand on Nov. 20, 1910, she had on board £100 worth of New Zealand penny stamps bearing the words "Victoria Land."

Life in College.
A Few Sarcastic Pointers on How to Write a Story About It.
Anybody can write a story about college life. If he has not attended a college so much the better; his imagination is less trammelled. A few simple rules must be observed, however:

First.—All heroes are named Jack, Stanley or Dick.
Second.—All college men wear sweaters always and smoke short, fat bowled pipes.
Third.—There is always a fatty, who is a funny fellow.
Fourth.—Any four college men make up a quartet, which can sing "Merciless We Ro-hull A-jonny" at any time.

Fifth.—All college men are wooing a girl named Dorothy or Betty, who is "sweet and pure as an angel." Sixth.—All college men address one another as "old boss." Seventh.—College men never study, but spend their time in tossing repartee back and forth.

Eighth.—All college rooms are adorned with pennants.
Ninth.—All college men call their fathers "Fater" and speak of the "honor of the dear old school" in a husky voice.—Harvard Lampoon.

Hugo and the Barber.
When Victor Hugo lived in Paris in the Place Royale he used to be shaved by a barber named Brasser. A friend of the poet asked the barber one day if he was busy. "I hardly know which way to turn," was the reply. "We have to dress the hair of thirty ladies for sores and balls." And M. Brasser showed the list to his friend. A few days after the friend returned and inquired about the thirty ladies. "Ah, monieur," said the barber sadly, "I was not able to attend half the number, and I have lost many good customers through M. Victor Hugo." It appears that the poet when about to be shaved was suddenly inspired and seized the first piece of paper he could find to write a poem. Hugo hastily left the shop with his unfinished verses, on the back of which were the names and addresses of the thirty ladies, many of whom waited in vain for their coiffure.

Some Measures.
The length of the foot was used for distances long before it was fixed at twelve inches. A "furlong" is only a furrowing. The breadth of the hand became the standard because the easiest way of measuring the height of the horse. The length of the arm gave the length of the "ell," and from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger was the "cubit." By stretching out both arms as if on a cross man invented the measure of the "fathom." Cloth measure still decrees that two and one-half inches make a "nail," and this is the width of four fingers held together and measured across the nails. The apothecary's "dram" originally signified "only as much raw spirit as can be held in the mouth."

Not Favorably Impressed.
"Can you tell me some way to cook potatoes?" asked the young wife who was doing her first marketing.
"They are very nice just boiled in
their jackets," suggested the grocer.
"Are you sure?" asked the young wife.
"Are you sure?" she went on doubtfully.
"Those jackets do not look very stylish."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Trifle, Really.
"That was a mighty attractive costume
Mrs. Pursglove wore at the dance
last night."
"I suppose it was—if you say so—but
to make much fuss over."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Nearly Barefoot.
"I hear that Jones is on his uppers.
Is it true?"
"I guess so. I met him this morning, and he said he expected to be on his feet in a few days."—Omaha Res.

Accounting For It.
"Here are the windows of the soul."
"That accounts for their so often having such a glassy stare."—Baltimore American.

Wise men say nothing in dangerous times.—Seiden.
