SHALL JUSTICES BE PUT ON A SALARY?
SPEEDING ARRESTS BRING UP QUESTION
Illinois Justice's Association, who are Tired of Complaints Brought Against its Members, Advocates Abolition of Fee System
Editor Highland Park Press, Highland Park, Ill.
Dear Sir:
Complying with your request for an explanation of the reasons that led a number of our citizens to retain me as attorney for defendants arrested under our speed laws, I beg to say that I believe their action was induced by a number of unfortunate conditions, all of which, I believe, can and will be remedied by our city fathers. Let me say at the outset that I place the blame for these conditions upon no one of our officials individually. They are all acting according to their best judgment, but the fact remains that I believe it over-technical to arrest and fine a man when no serious consequences would follow his technical violation of the law. The statute (Hunt's Revised Statutes, page 2159, Sec. 289J) does not and never did mean that the speed regulations laid down there are absolute. They are simply to aid a court in ascertaining whether the speed of a car was unreasonable, which is what the law aims to suppress. I think that the failure to construe this section as the legislature intended it to be construed is responsible to some degree for the condition which exists today. Two remedies are proposed, both of them excellent. The first is sponsored by the Illinois Justice's Association, who, tired of the complaints brought against its members, advocate abolition of the fee system as to justices and peace officers and the placing of them on an official's income from where an official's position is certain his official position is certain some of this extra technicality complained of would be eliminated. Whether or not this applies to Highland Park is a question I am not prepared to answer. The other remedy is along the same lines: the establishment of a city court in Highland Park under an act of the legislature passed in 1901. City courts as provided by the statute are organized along the lines of circuit courts, have a judge and clerk paid salaries by the state and have for purpose the placing of the administration of justice in local cases in the hands of competent men. The question to be decided seems to me still to be what remedy shall be adopted to cure these conditions.
Yours very truly,
Geo. E. Phillips.

MAGNETIC CAR BEING DEMONSTRATED
Entire Control Accomplished by Single Lever on the Steering Wheel
Hundreds of automobile enthusiasts from every section of the country are visiting the exhibit of the Chicago Coach & Carriage Co., 1223 Michigan Ave., Chicago, the center of interest being a working chassis and a demonstrating model of the new Owen magnetic car.
The inventor of the electric transmission in the "Owen Magnetic" is Justus B. Entz, who has long been a prominent electrical engineer. He invented the first electric dynamo installed by the U. S. Navy.
In commenting on the Owen Magnetic—the car of a thousand speeds—Mr. Owen says: "We have developed an efficient and substantial means of transmitting the power of the gas engine to the rear wheels electrically, thereby not only overcoming the loss of power absorbed by the usual friction clutch and mechanical or shifting gear transmission, but at the same time introducing a means of power transmission which is far more permanent, because there are no wearing parts or friction surfaces.
"The entire control, the starting of the gas engine, all of the speeds and the operation of the electric brake, is accomplished by a single lever on the steering wheel. There is no clutch, no gear lever, no garage—the range of speeds is infinite—all accomplished without loss of torque, without jolts or jerks, without the clash or wearing of gears, and all as permanent and sure as the wiring of the electric door bell in your house, the electric light at your office, the electric motor in your factory or the trolley in your streets.
"Every time you see a trolley car it is demonstrating our principle, except that the trolley gets its current from a feed wire. Our gas engine generates ours as we go along, more or less, according as we want speed or not, or according to the hills or level running. No clutch to slip, no gears to clash and wear, no noise and no loss of power."

Y. W. C. A. News
The annual Y. W. C. A. conference held at Lake Geneva recently, was attended by a number of Highland Park people. The conference lasted ten days and was attended by national field and county secretaries all over the central and eastern part of the United States. This is the first conference ever held for county secretaries alone; heretofore the county and city have been held together, but the national leaders felt that more benefit would be derived by separating the conferences. Seven years ago in Woodford County the first county Y. W. C. A. was organized more as an experiment than anything else. It was doubted by the workers whether it would survive, but it did and now stands as a pioneer in the work that has grown so rapidly. The organization is by, for and of women and gathers together women of all nations, races, colors and tongues into a sisterhood of service for the building of Christian character. In all, the national board held twelve summer conferences this year attended approximately by 5000 girls. These conferences are both a challenge and a great opportunity for the association, as the leaders have a rare companionship and influence in the closeness of camp life, and there is the unique opportunity for the development of healthy bodies and enriched spiritualities. Associations become re-created through their conferences, the secret of success is the group spirit, everybody works and plays together, not in pairs or alone. Miss Jessie Field, the national secretary for county work, was the executive of the conference and by her love and interest in the girls drew every one to her. Miss Bertha Conde, one of the national secretaries gave the daily lesson on Fundamentals, which went straight home to the hearts of her hearers. Rev. McConnell had charge of the Bible study. His practical straight forward interpretation of Christ's mission was listened to with closest attention of all. Miss Thomas, one of the general secretaries from S. A., gave lessons in folk dancing on the lawn in the evening directly after supper. Later on the camp fire was held in the wigwam when addresses of interest were given. One morning was devoted to stunts. Highland Park and Lake Forest combining on a very interesting one with original songs. Friendliness was the keynote of the conference. The results can never be measured by statistics. The wonderful part about it is the vast possibilities and the strengthened character of the delegates which can never be estimated.

Baptist Church Notes
The evangelistic services Sunday night at the Baptist church were well attended. After the harp solo "Men of Harlech," with variations, played by Miss Thompson, and solos with harp accompaniment, the evangelist preached on the text "To whom shall we go, for Thou hast the words of eternal life," spoken by Peter to the Master when asked if he also would go away. Many had become offended with Jesus and were turning their backs upon him, and the twelve were asked if they were also going. Peter, the spokesman, answered in the words of the text. Peter was hungry; he wanted eternal life. He was not following the Master for loaves and fishes, as were those who went back. He wanted the spiritual.
In the morning Evangelist Thompson preached on "Hindering the Gospel." He said: "The Gospel is still as powerful as ever, but it can be hindered, and is hindered most by its professed friends. Outside enemies could not begin to do the damage to the Gospel that people on the inside of the church can do to it."
A very interesting meeting of the Missionary Society was held Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Robert Greig, in Ravinia. Those assisting on the program were Mrs. F. B. Green, Mrs. C. S. Beach and Mrs. G. H. Thompson, all members present responding to roll call with news items. At the close of the program the hostesses served dainty refreshments, and was assisted in serving by Mrs. C. S. Beach. Out of town guests were Mrs. Lloyd and daughter, Miss Lloyd, of Chicago, mother and sister of the hostesses.
Services at the church next Sunday as usual, with the special evening services at 8 o'clock. These services will be continued for a few weeks every Sunday evening.
