Such Bread as Ours

Never baked and we can't make it if you'll let us. The big loaf baked fresh every day shows its popularity, even with women who formerly did their own baking. A loaf or so of it and you'll find the uselessness of bothering with home baking any longer.

MANNERS IN JAPAN.

Children Grave Candy, but Will Not Eat It in Public.

One day as I was going along the street in a Japanese town I saw a candy man sitting on a stool beside his cart fashioning delicacies with his two flying thumbs. Taking a ball of candy mixture, he would give it a few pinches, a twist, dab on a red spot, and there would be a fish. Taking up another ball, he would give it a few twists, and he would have a radish. Half a dozen of these he would put into a thumb made candy plate the size of a chocolate wrapper and sell for half a cent.

Buying a plate of tiny delicacies, I gave it to a girl, expecting to see her down it in good old American fashion, but instead of falling on it greedily she made a courtly bow and tore down the street as fast as her wooden shoes would let her. I looked after her in astonishment, thinking that this upset every child theory I had, and determined to try it again. So I waited until the two flying thumbs had molded another delicacy and proffered this to a second child. Down the street she flew, too, her walnut knot of hair wobbling excitedly.

When I bought the third delicacy I gave it to a child that was weighted down with a baby on her back and followed after while she went bobbing down the street, the baby's head rolling heavily. I found her sitting on the floor eating the sirupy fish and candy radishes with many delighted snuffs and appreciative grunts. Then I understood. It was not polite to eat on the street, but under her father's gray tie it was the height of form to dispose of the sweets with all the gustatory gurglings that her delighted soul wished.—Homer Croy in Leslie's.

A FURRED TONGUE.

It May Mean Wrecked Nerves and Not a Disordered Stomach.

"I suppose that there is no more ineradicable idea in the mind of the doctor than that the furred tongue is essentially an indication of a deranged stomach," writes Sir James Goodhart, consulting physician to Guy's hospital, London, in the London Lancet. Yet, according to Sir James, it is by no means always so. And he goes on to prove it by cases in his own extensive practice.

One of these was of a man in a very responsible position, a leader of men, to whom he had to give orders that had to be obeyed and from whom he had to hear much grumbling; a very hard worker and "the fastest talker I have ever struck," full of energy and playing every ounce of it. He was in splendid health, but suffered from a furred tongue and a bad taste in the mouth. In his case these were not due to the stomach at all, but to a disordered state of nerve control.

"Nervous fears and nervous tastes are common enough, and they deserve a special thought," says Sir James. He believes that man is kept sweet and wholesome largely by nervous control, and when he loses this control "the parts become fevered, the mucous membrane dry, the nerves irritated, and taste is perverted." The men so affected are those who are nervous, anxious, hard workers, taking their work home with them to think about and dream about in bed.

Who Got the Baby?

Once upon a time a crocodile stole a baby and was about to make a dinner of it. The frantic mother begged so piteously for the child that the crocodile said:

"Tell me one truth and you shall have your baby again."

The mother replied, "You will not give him back to me."

"Then," said the crocodile, "by our agreement I shall keep him, for if you have told the truth I am not going to give him back, and if it is a lie I have also won."

But the mother said, "If I told you the truth you are bound by your promise, and if it is not the truth it will not be a lie until you have given me my child."

So the Calf Kept On.

As a train stopped at a little Ohio station the passengers heard the plaintive howling of a calf which was being wheeled along the platform in a crate.

"There's some one complaining, conductor," said a traveler, looking for a bit of fun.

"Not to me," answered the mild old ticket taker. "Never heard a passenger's complaint with that much sense."

Joint For the Hostess.

"So glad to have you here," murmured the hostess, who hadn't noticed him before. "You have certainly been the life of the party all the evening."

"I can hardly believe that."

"That is due to your modesty."

"No; it is due to the fact that I have but this minute arrived."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Quick and Accurate.

"How about your new stenographer? Is she quick and accurate?"

"Yes, sir; she can powder her face, arrange her bracelets and fix her hair quicker than any stenographer I ever had. And do it accurately too."—Pittsburgh Post.

Very Different.

Y. W. C. A. News

The gymnasium class opened Monday, January 3rd, with renewed interest. All who plan to join the second term should make an effort to be present next Monday as new work is being given. This is an opportunity for special training under Miss Humphrey whose work needs no introduction and who is so well qualified.

The Aster Girls' Club with their guardian, Miss Goelitz sang Christmas carols at the Presbyterian Old People's Home on the afternoon of Christmas Day, and entertained the members of the home, adding a welcome to that already extended by the Highland Park people.

The Mother's Club meeting for January will be held Tuesday, January 11th at 7:30 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all women interested in the Association. The program will be given by Miss Irma Jones, a student of the Columbia School of Oratory, who is sure to bring to us something worth while. Her readings have always received favorable comment.

The Port Clinton School will be ready for the Highwood clubs next week. Anyone having furniture, curtains or pictures to donate, kindly send them to the Association headquarters or call up the secretary regarding them. The furnishing of this little one room building is greatly needed in order that the sewing and other handwork may be taught. The leaders are doing a splendid work and should be encouraged and aided in their efforts. A little here and a little there gathered together, may be the means of giving a great deal of pleasure to some little girls as well as profit.

Highland Park Club

On every occasion during the Christmas and New Year festivities the attendance was a record, each evening seeming to bring an increased crowd as the week progressed. On Friday evening the climax was reached when close to two hundred members joined in one of the most unique entertainments given by the club, the Masquerade Party. The entertainment committee worked hard to have a surprise in this party for all and their efforts were well rewarded by the splendid variety of costumes worn by the guests. The judges had an extremely difficult problem to solve in awarding the prizes which were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clements as Uncle Sam and the Goddess of Liberty; Miss Sadie Buckley for the prettiest costume; Miss Gladys Spencer for novelty costume; Mr. George Baldwin for the most comical costume and Mr. Robert Carr for original costume.

The entertainment committee especially draws the attention of members to the four o'clock entertainment on Tuesday afternoon, January eleventh, for the children at which time they will have an opportunity to witness the beautiful picture "Graumark." The evening entertainment for adults will begin at eight-fifteen. Owing to the length of the picture both afternoon and evening performances will commence promptly at the aforementioned hours.

Baptist Church Notes

The Missionary Society of the Baptist church will meet at the F. B. Green home this afternoon at 2:30. The Philathea Class will meet tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Stevens. There will be a social and business meeting. It is the regular monthly meeting. Dr. Kirtley preached a very good sermon Sunday evening on "The Barefoot Kingdom." Dr. Kirtley will preach again on Sunday morning. The evening services in the church will be discontinued for a time. The morning services to be continued as formerly.

Ossoli Club

The Study Class of the Art and Literature Department of the club will meet in the Highland Park Club House, Thursday, January thirteenth, at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Payson S. Wild of Chicago, will read a paper on "The Friendly Art of Letter Writing."

M. E. Church

Services are held at the church as follows: Mid-week service, Wednesday evening, at seven forty-five; Sunday services are, Sunday School at nine forty-five; Junior League at two-thirty; Epworth League at six forty-five; Public Worship at eight o'clock.

The services next Sunday evening at eight o'clock will be for admission of new members.
