BRIEF AND BREEZY

Every tailor knows a whole lot of promising young men.

The small hours are responsible for many a large head.

Old man Doodle says that a woman will work harder to confirm her worst fears than at anything else on earth.

It takes all kinds of mutts to make a world, including the one who thinks he can win in an argument with a woman.

Those armored automobiles in the war zone seem to be almost as deadly as the unarmored ones over here.

Another pathetic little thing about human nature is the way a man who had a bad cold always wants to tell you about it at great length.

Disliking the hyphen as much as we do, we do not recall that we have ever said anything offensive in this here col. about Anheuser-Busch.

Some of our headline writers are such slaves of habit that they still refer to a munitions plant blaze as a "mysterious" fire.

It is harder to convince a school boy that summer vacation days are longer than winter school days.

At 30 a man is convinced that the majority of men are fools; at 60 he admits that he is of the majority.

Americans are becoming more saving according to statistics, but it is not yet time to take down that "safety first" sign.

If it turns out to be true that Gen. Villa has $130,000 deposited in an American Bank, he will be welcomed to this country by people who never cared for him before.

The Post Office Department announces that the Rural Delivery carriers are to be allowed to use motorcycles with side bodies. For mail or females?

By the unanimous appeal of his countryman, Mr. Edison is invited to invent a satisfactory substitute for war.

"The Freezer with the Aerating Dasher"

The most wonderful of all freezers. By means of its astonishing aerating spoons it whips air into every particle of the freezing cream, making ice cream that is a revelation in texture and delicacy.

It breaks all records in speed—makes perfect ice cream in 3 minutes.

Requires much less labor and uses less ice and salt than any other freezer.

See it before you buy a freezer.

EX-MAYORS' PICTURES

All the aforementioned, but Mr. Hawkins, are dead.

Then follow the likenesses of Captain O. H. Morgan, W. W. Sweetland, William A. James and P. T. Turnley. Only the first of these is still living, Mr. O. H. Morgan of distinguished military record. Mr. Turnley was also a military man whose service dated back to Mexican war times. W. W. Sweetland was a practicing physician here in town. Mr. William James, a tall handsome man, was once Speaker of the Legislature at Springfield.

The rest of the faces are familiar to us of the present day. Messrs. D. M. Erskine, A. W. Fletcher, Robert G. Evans, Daniel Cobb, Alexander Robertson, William Dooley and John Oliver succeed each other in this order. The face of John Oliver speaking the efficiency of the man closes the series. Mr. Hawkins' later portrait hangs like the keystone of the arch in the center of the group, over the mayor's tall and stately chair. We are glad that this sane and searching face looks back at us twice from this august group, for it testifies to the goodly length of years (forty-six) that a man may serve the community in which he lives. He has seen several epochs of Highland Park history; no—more, has been a part of them. One of the leading spirits in the old Highland Park Building Association, that gave to the city ten acres of its most valuable land and water front for parks, he has seen and suffered from the ebb and flow of such forces as the great fire and the panic of the '70's. We are satisfied to feel as we review these faces that the history of a city is the composite history of its leading citizens.

The heads printed in sepia, mounted on brown board and framed in English oak lend a wonderful personal touch to the second story north room of our city hall. This room is, and has long been, the heart of our city's activities, and we believe that it will pulsate more healthfully in the future, for reflecting from its walls the faces of those who in times past have given their thought and time to public interests.

Mr. O. B. Brand, who did the work and the Historical and Biographical Commission who executed the plan, as well as the present administration who conceived the idea, all deserve the congratulation and gratitude of the citizens of Highland Park.
