BABY CONFERENCE AT LAKE COUNTY FAIR

TO BE HELD FROM AUG. 29 TO SEPT. 1

Will Not be a Beauty Contest but a Physical Test. Cash Prizes to be Awarded. Babies Rest and Play Room Planned

Baby Conference and Contest at Lake County Fair

An added attraction to the Lake County Fair to be held at Libertyville, August 29 to September 1, will be the Baby Conference and Contest to be put on by the Illinois Congress of Mothers under the immediate direction of the Waukegan Child Welfare Circle. This contest will be open to all children of Lake County between the ages of one and five years, regardless of nationality.

Not a Beauty Contest

The children may be registered and examined at the contest rooms on the fair grounds on the mornings and afternoons of August 30 and 31 and the morning of September 1. The examinations of the babies will be conducted by various physicians from throughout the County who will use the score card compiled for such contests by the American Medical Association, and the prizes will be awarded on the physical merits of the children.

The prizes, which will be cash, will be four in number and will consist of a first prize of ten dollars with a second, third and fourth of five dollars each.

In connection with the contest it is planned to have a small exhibit of proper children's clothing and toys together with an exhibit from the State Board of Health, numerous posters and for free distribution, literature dealing with care of the baby. Each afternoon, in the exhibition room there will be fifteen minute talks by county physicians on general care and feeding of children which should prove of the greatest interest and help to all mothers.

A babies' rest and play room has also been planned. A sand pile and toys will furnish pleasure for the wide-awake youngsters while the sleepy ones may take their naps under the competent care of the ladies of this committee. The babies may be checked and left here for a period of not over two hours for the sum of ten cents. It is believed this will prove a boon to both tired mothers and babies alike.

This is one of the first baby contests held in Lake County in which all the babies of the county may be entered and it is hoped that mothers will take advantage of the opportunity to find out along what particular line their babies need help. The rule of the fair that all exhibitors shall pay an entry fee has been waived in regard to the babies and it will cost nothing to enter your baby in the contest.

The chairmen of the different committees are: General Arrangements, Mrs. F. M. Barker; Exhibits, Mrs. A. L. Rogers; Registration, Mrs. J. G. Nauta; Examination, Mrs. Wm. Wandel and Mrs. Raymond Baird; Rest and Playroom, Mrs. John Hoban; Final Scores, Mrs. H. L. Howe. The names of the physicians and the committees who will serve will be published later.

Let all parents join in the preparedness campaign for "Better Babies for Lake County."

FATALITY IN A WORD.

Why France Changed the Name of the "Life Saving Belt."

A vivid illustration of the power of mere words over human beings was once brought to the attention of French people by Françoise Sarcey.

After the wreck of the Bourgoigne many passengers were found floating drowned with life preservers on. These life preservers were fastened upon the bodies, but round the middle instead of under the arms, and the greater weight of the upper part of the body had tipped the head under water and the person of course was inevitably drowned.

Now it appears that the greater number of the persons so drowned were French. The French term for life preserver is ceinture de sauvetage, or "life saving belt." This word ceinture suggests to the mind in its moments of disorder and unreadiness, such as a great catastrophe brings, the idea of putting on a belt, and as a belt is put round the waist and nowhere else the frightened person instinctively adjusts the life preserver close about the hips.

The result is that as soon as the person so provided falls into the water his body tips over, with the heavier part downward, and the head is plunged beneath the surface.

The word "belt," therefore, was the cause of the loss of many lives in the Bourgoigne disaster. Sarcey accordingly proposed to counteract the fatal effect of the French word by renaming the article and calling it a brassiere, which is a kind of waist, and by bringing the word brass, or arm, to mind to teach people to put a life preserver on just underneath the arms.

ANCIENT POSTAL SERVICE.

The Old Persian and Roman System of Couriers on Horseback.

While the Roman postal service of ancient days was, of course, a crude system, yet the mails were forwarded with considerable speed. The system of couriers on horseback was borrowed from the Persians, who, according to Xenophon, had established it under Cyrus. The Roman adaptation of this was the best system of transmitting letters among the ancients.

All along the great Roman roads stations were erected at distances of five or six miles from one another. At each of these stations forty horses were constantly maintained, and by the help of relays it was easy to travel 100 miles in a day.

These services were intended for the state only, it being imperative to secure the rapid interchange of official communications. In the time of Julius Caesar the system was so well organized that of two letters the great soldier wrote from Britain to Cicero at Rome the one reached its destination in twenty-six and the other in twenty-eight days.

Private citizens were obliged to resort to the services of slaves, and it was not until the end of the third century that there was an establishment of a postal system for private persons by the Emperor Diocletian, but how long this system endured history does not inform us.

The supply of horses and their maintenance was compulsory, and only the emperor could grant exemption from it.—Washington Star.

Weakness of the Great.

The two greatest men who appear in "Julius Caesar"—namely, Caesar himself and Cicero—are allotted but minor parts in Shakespeare's play, and to each with daring originality the dramatist has attributed a physical defect, for the existence of which history supplied him with no evidence. Caesar, for instance, confesses to deafness, bidding Antony—

"Come on my right hand, for this ear is deaf," while Brutus speaks of Cicero's "ferret and fiery eyes," as if no one could fail to note them. Respect for those two immortals was no doubt thus diminished, but by showing them as not above human weaknesses Shakespeare made them more easily realized.—London Opinion.

Smiling at Breakfast.

One should always wear a smile at breakfast. If you are in a good humor at breakfast you will be merry and bright all day. The breakfast face is the most important face to cultivate. The other faces, take care of themselves, for if the face is pleasant and easy to look upon in the morning it will improve as the day goes on. But if the breakfast face is hard, scowling and forbidding it becomes set in its disagreeable form, and it takes hours for it to smooth out into a smile, and that smile is of the sickly, half-hearted nature that only expands the heart slightly. It is worth trying.

Not Good For the Gender.

The following sign is displayed in a certain bathhouse:

ELIZABETHAN HOUSE FOR LAKE FOREST

To be Home of Mme. McCormick. Thoroughly Fire Proof Building. Separate Heating Plant

Elizabethan House for Lake Forest.

Quite a remarkable and interesting piece of Lake Forest domestic architecture is the house being built in a secluded bit of woods for Mme. McCormick and her daughter, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, near one of the entrances to the Cyrus H. McCormick place, Walden. Of golden brown hues with rich wood carving on the steep gables, and the heaviest slate slabs on roofs and porticos ever seen this side of Wales, it suggests an Elizabethan manor house.

Only they did not know in the days of Queen Beas about building thoroughly fireproof houses, with steel window casings, tile walls, cement floors and roofs, etc. Nor would any householder of that day—and few of today for that matter—think of placing the laundry above the ground in an airy wing, with windows opening out on three sides into a leafy grove so that, as the workers toil in the big, beautiful lined rooms, they will be able to look out into the cool, green depths and breathe sweet, fresh, fragrant air. Aren't most home laundries in cellars, with almost no outlook?

A marble lined entrance hall opens into a charming long, low celled library to the right as one enters. Opposite the front door is Mme. McCormick's own sitting room, while to the left is the dining room, with an open air breakfast room at its further end. This, too, seems to be in the depths of a bird hunted, leafy wood, miles away from anywhere.

At no greater distance from the house is a good looking building of the same architecture as the main residence. This shelters an elaborate plant for heating the house in winter and cooling it in summer. It also has a complete equipment for cold storage, and is an object of much interest to Lake Forest.
