ANCIENT TOBACCO.

Tibetans Are Said to Have Used the Weed 2,300 Years Ago.

It is generally supposed that tobacco was unknown in the old world until after the discovery of America. But there is excellent evidence that it was known and used in Tibet as early as 377 B. C. In a note to an article in the Geographical Review Dr. Berthold Laufer of the Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, writes as follows:

"Among the many curiosities of the Tibetan-English dictionary, published in 1902 by Barst Chandra Das, the well known Bengali student of Tibetan and explorer of Tibet, we read that the evil drug tobacco (in Tibetan the-ma-kha) appeared in ancient time about 100 years after the death of Buddha, which would yield the date 377 B. C., and that mention is made of tobacco also in the writings of a lama who is dated in the twelfth century A. D.

"In 1908 I enjoyed the privilege of spending several months in Lassa villa, the house of Das, in Darjeeling, and when one evening, in the course of a learned conversation with him, I ventured to draw his attention to this chronological anomaly and the post-Columbian introduction of tobacco into Europe and Asia he replied, 'This is your tradition, and that (pointing to the passage in his dictionary) is our tradition, and our traditions certainly are as good as yours.'"

THE HOUSE WREN.

A Good Little Friend That Should Be Protected From Sparrows.

A little friend worth having is the wren. During its working hours it will pry into nooks and crannies about the garden and orchard, picking up grasshoppers, spiders, beetles, thousand legged worms—anything which isn't too big for it to carry off. When it is through work it will perch on the front porch of its little home, lift its head and sing a warbling little song that will delight your heart.

It is called the house wren because it prefers a little box house for its home. A generation ago it built a nest in holes in trees, in hollow fence rails or even in an old hat. Then came the sparrow, and the wren's nest was raided.

Since then the wren's only refuge is in a nest which has a door too small to admit its enemy, the sparrow. If you want the wren to spend a summer with you build a home with a door not more than an inch in diameter. This will bar the sparrow and give the smaller bird easy entry.

Years of continuous fighting against the sparrows has given the wren a temper like a spoiled child. It ruffles its feathers at the slightest interruption. When it has its own way, with a good home and plenty to eat, it is as cheerful as a Sunday school picnic—Philadelphia North American.

Power of Words.
"For me," writes Lafcadio Hearn in the "Japanese Letters of Lafcadio Hearn," "words have color, form, character. They have faces, ports, manners, gesticulations; they have tints, tones, personalities."

A good instance of this power appears in a description of Patti's singing: "There was a great dim pressure, a stifling heat, a whispering of silks, a weight of toilet perfumes. Then came an awful hush. All the silks stopped whispering. And then suddenly sweetened out through that dead, hot air a clear, cool, tense thread gust of melody unlike any sound I ever heard before save—in tropical nights—from the throat of a mocking bird. It was 'And Lang Syne' only, but with never a tremolo or artifice, a marvelous, audacious simplicity of utterance."

When Baronets Were Sold.
It was in the reign of good King James that baronets first came into existence. Today you could hardly tell a baronet from a banker. But in the year 1611, when James I. needed ready money and created 200 "little barons" to supply him with cash, they swarmed about in their huddles and sashes and behaved in the courtliest of fashion. Each baronet in order to justify his title had to maintain a small army of thirty soldiers for three years. In this way the crafty king not only increased his revenue, but actually lightened his expenses.—London Telegraph.

How Amateur Mechanics Work.
"What do you do when anything goes wrong with your car?"
"I tinker with the carburetor."
"Does that remedy the difficulty?"
"It never has, but I always tinker with it anyhow in the hope that possibly that may be the cause of the trouble."—Detroit Free Press.

The Aftermath.
"What became of that candidate for your sister's hand?"
"He won out. And say?"
"Well?"
"He hasn't redeemed any of his numerous pledges."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Aids to Conversation.
"Books help a man's conversation."
"Undoubtedly. But the man who buys them seldom gets to be as good a talker as the man who sold them to him."

He is unfortunate and on the road to ruin who will not do what he can, but is ambitious to do what he cannot.—Goethe.
