Patrons of the more or less legitimate drama express the belief that better plays will be given in future. It is difficult to see how improvement could be avoided.

A girl who advertised that she would wed any man making $50 a week should migrate to one of the munitions towns.

Rev. Mr. Palmquist says that Billy Sunday is like Elijah, but we don't believe the prophet ever had a six-cylinder chariot.

Joseph Leight of Pleasant Valley, N. J., sewed up the eyes of his hogs to keep them from catching chickens. Joe was fined $20 for cruelty to hogs. The judge ought to be fined $1,000 for leniency to Joe.

The department of Agriculture has a new plan for studying the habits of wild ducks. It might be more interesting to wait a short while and study the habits of some of the 'lame' variety.

A lot of American history will be made Nov. 7, but if you do not register you will have no share in the proceedings.

Now that Mr. Taft and Mr. Roosevelt are on speaking terms once more, it will be safe to revive the proposal that ex-presidents be given seats in the United States Senate.

The "homeliest girl in New York" was being sought some days ago through the agency of the advertising columns. Advertising is a wonderfully efficacious thing, but it can't do the impossible.

We demand government ownership and operation of campaign lie factories. Private competition is getting to be something fierce.

If human beings 3,000 years ago had possessed the mechanical knowledge that man has today would there be anybody left on the planet?

One of the indoor amusements that the average man used to engage in every fall was putting up the stove-pipe. In some respects life is becoming less complex.

Elm Place School Notes

The Festival of the Autumn Leaf took place on Monday afternoon. There was a formal parade with pupils in the lead bearing branches of witch hazel and carrying bouquets of asters. The procession wound in and out the woods and then the pupils assembled in the ravine amphitheatre, where folk games were given by the children of the second and fourth grades. A program followed this which was given in the auditorium and included the recitations of a number of original poems.

The prizes for the pupils who did flowers and vegetables in the September exhibit were awarded. These included vases of flowers, potted plants and collections of bulbs for autumn planting. Mrs. Martin Innull contributed two hundred bulbs for that purpose.

Some of the staff of Elm Place school together with Miss Schumacher of the Lincoln School and Miss Parkes of the Open Air School of Evanston made an autumn pilgrimage to the Sand dunes north of Chesterton, Ind., last Saturday.
