What-da-ya-mean "Hughes elected"

A patent has been granted for an "electrically illuminated keyhole." Not that anybody in Highland Park ever has use for one.

It takes less than ten seconds to slow down at a railroad crossing and make sure that it is safe. Is your life worth ten seconds?

Kindness is more contagious than cruelty.

Speaking of that lavender taste in your mouth the morning after the night before—it's no worse than Highland Park's chlorine gas-treated water.

No financial oversight can be more disastrous to public welfare than failure to provide money for improved highways.

If in doubt, stop! Better wait at a grade crossing than in a doctor's office!

Teach a child to be kind and just toward animals and whatever the gain to the animals the greatest gain is the child.

Why is North Green Bay Road? We don't know. It certainly isn't for auto traffic.

"Two Shot Across Border," says a headline. It's one of the worst places to be shot too, especially if you're a fat man.

We notice the "G" express has an auto delivery since the use of chlorine gas in the city water. Business must be increasing. What-d'-mean "G" express.

Danger lurks at every railroad crossing—for the careless driver!

The work being done by officials of the newly organized electric line is worthy of high praise.

You can't watch the clock and opportunity at the same time.

The things we can do best always seem to be the things we don't want to do.

In olden days we used to grin when some subscriber wandered in an, kinda careless-like would say, "I bring a bar'l o' spuds t'day. They're worth a dollar, purty near, so send the paper 'nother year. And mother wanted me to say she liked that piece the other day—th' one you wrote about our Bill a-teaching school upon the hill. That tickled mother like the dooce an' so she sends this here fat goose." We never used to need a cent to pay the grocer or the rent. Subscriptions out in trade we took. We got along—by hook or crook, but times have changed, and, nowadays, we must adopt new-fangled ways. The farmers all are business men. They don't act now as they did then. They sell their stuff for good hard cash, the mortgages have gone to smash, a tractor has displaced the mules; the children go to brick high schools, they keep their money in the banks, their gasoline in iron tanks. They don't drop in to see us now—we miss their visits, we'll allow, but still, they write us words of cheer, all neatly typed, say once a year. They bring the same old grin, by Heck, those welcome words, "enclosed find check."
