CHICAGO PLAYHOUSE OPEN

Good Audiences Seeing "Mrs. Warren's Profession," a George Bernard Shaw Comedy

Very good and very appreciative audiences have been enjoying the performances of "Mrs. Warren's Profession" by George Bernard Shaw in The Playhouse last week. The Playhouse used to be called the Fine Arts Theatre, and is located on the ground floor of the Fine Arts Building on Michigan Avenue, near Van Buren. "Mrs. Warren's Profession" is given on Sunday evenings, but not on Monday or Tuesday, but every other evening in the week, and matinee on Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday.

At the Chicago Little Theatre, on the fourth floor of the Fine Arts Building, the visiting company, The Wisconsin Players have made a splendid impression by their acting of three lively comedies.

The puppet plays, which delight children so greatly are given at the Little Theatre on Friday afternoons at 4 o'clock and on Saturday morning at 10:30. "Little Red Riding Hood" and "The Frog Prince" make up an entertainment which holds the kiddies entranced.

THE MONEY THEY CARRY.

Poor Men, as a Rule, Have More in Their Pockets Than Rich Men.

The next time you meet John D. Rockefeller just ask him how much money he has in his pocket. Ask him how much he has in the safe at his house or in the safe deposited bank—I mean real, old fashioned bank notes and dollar bills. Let me tell you that if at this very moment you and John D. Rockefeller should swap pocketbooks you would likely get stung. Mr. Rockefeller probably has not a cent more of real money in his pocket today than you have. In a general way this applies to all peoples all over the world. In many communities the workpeople carry more money about with them than the rich.

I well remember that once, at my summer home on the coast of Massachusetts, where real money is scarcer than fresh eggs, a very rich man who was visiting us asked me to cash a check for him as he was leaving for New York. On looking into his pocketbook he discovered he had only $7.13! Well, I was even worse off, and having only a five dollar bill and a few pennies. Even Mrs. Babson could dig up only a few dollars, as we have everything charged and pay by check.

We were just on the point of breaking open a child's bank when a painting or working about the house overheard the conversation and suggested that perhaps he could cash a check for $50. This workman had on him a roll of several hundred dollars in bills. —Log-er W. Babson in Saturday Evening Post.

BAGPIPES AND BRICKS.

One Case in Which Music Did Not Do the Soothing Act.

The Adelphi buildings in the Strand, London, were built by two brothers of the family name of Adam, and from this fraternal union came the name that was given to the buildings, the Greek appellation of "Adelphi" or "the brothers."

These brothers were Scots and in the erection of the buildings desired to employ their own countrymen. So they sent to the "Land o' Cakes and Driber Scots" for laborers to do the work.

The story goes that after they arrived and were set at work they proved less active and energetic than was profitable to the employers, to whom a bright idea finally came. They acted upon this idea and brought to London from the north country a number of bagpipers to encourage the toilers.

At first all went well. When the bricklayers heard "O Hone a Rie," and the "MacGregors' Gathering" they worked rapidly. Unluckily one day one of pipers under the influence of London gin "gave the snap away" by admitting that he and his fellow bagpipers had been bribed to play in quicker time.

Following this exposure of foul play the men from the north put down their tools and found employment elsewhere. —Indianapolis News.

Love Affairs of Handel.

Women greatly admired Handel, who was very handsome, but the serenity of the composer seems only to have been ruffled twice by love on his part. His first attachment was to a London girl, a member of the aristocracy. Her parents believed him beneath her social position, but were good enough to say that if he obtained the question of marriage might be entertained. It was easier to abstain from their daughter than from his art, and he did so. Year after almost the same thing occurred. Handel and another beautiful pupil of his fell in love with each other, and proud parents gave him the choice between giving up his profession or their daughter. Music, "heavenly maid," was chosen. —The Love Affairs of Some Famous Men.

A Prophecy That Failed.

The old Emperor William used to tell a story against himself which well serves to illustrate "that most grateful form of error, prophecy." When the emperor was only king of Prussia he saw one day among his troops an untidy-looking lieutenant. "Who is that man?" he asked. "An officer," he was told, "who has just left the Danish service and joined the Prussian."

"That man will never get on in the army," said the monarch, and he used to add in telling the story, "The man was Moltke, and my judgment of him gives you the measure of my insight."

Bluffs Sometimes Win.

The Chinese tell a story about a tiger that was led by a monkey to a field where a fat mule was grazing. The tiger, who had never seen a mule before, licked his chops. But the mule looked up languidly at the monkey and said:

"Friend monkey, heretofore you have always brought me two tigers. How is it you bring me only one today?"

The bluff was so excellent that the tiger made off as fast as he could go.

The Elephant.

East Indians believe that the elephant lives 300 years. Instances are on record of these huge animals having been in captivity for 130 years, their ages being unknown when they were taken from the jungle in a wild state.

Nothing Exempt.

"Can you run over tonight in your auto?"

"I think so. I've run over about everything else." —Baltimore American.

No nation can be destroyed while it possesses a good home life. —J. G. Holland.

LITERARY HOLIBIES.

Even Railway Time Tables May Make Interesting Reading.

Rudyard Kipling finds both pleasure and profit in reading the dictionary, and this habit largely accounts for his wonderful knowledge of words, his rich vocabulary and his nervousness in the use of words. He does not confine himself to the ordinary dictionary. He likes to look at a slang edition or a dictionary of a dialect.

There is a certain noble lord who loves nothing better than turning over all the pages of Brailshaw, spying out all the ways to anywhere, all the branch lines and noting the railway stations with queer names. He is an adept in all railway lore and is often referred to by his brother peers when a moot point is raised about the iron roads of the world, for his knowledge extends from Charing Cross to New York via Yokohama.

But probably the queerest literary hobby was a certain doctor's predilection for reading an old file of the London Times. He said it made him better contented with things at present to see how things were muddled up twenty years ago. He found politicians just as quarrelsome and the comments just as caustic, and yet he concluded:

"Here we are, much as usual!" —London Answers.

HIS FATE A MYSTERY.

No One Knows Just How the Youngest of the "Signers" Died.

By a strange trick of fate Thomas Lynch, the youngest "signer" of the Declaration of Independence, was also the first one of these men to die.

Lynch was born in Prince George parish, S. C., Aug. 5, 1740. He was twenty-six when the congress declared the independence of the colonies. Ill health compelled him to leave congress soon afterward, and near the close of 1770 he embarked on a vessel, intending to go to Europe for the benefit of his health.

The ship on which he sailed was never heard of afterward, and the fate of the youngest of the "signers" remains a mystery. It is supposed, of course, that the ship sank and that Lynch and all on board were drowned, but there were rumors that it was blown out of its course in a storm and wrecked on a lonely island of the West Indies and that some of the passengers and crew were saved.

Thomas Lynch was educated in England and was the son of a wealthy South Carolina planter. —New York World.

The Trade Winds.

The constancy of trade winds is due to the permanence of the conditions which rule them. As the heated air at the equator ascends surface winds set in from north and south and, uniting, ascend in their turn and flow off in opposite directions. As the velocity of the earth's rotation from east to west is much greater at the equator than at the poles, wind blowing along its surface to the equator is constantly arriving at places which have a higher velocity than itself; hence it is retarded and must lag behind, and under the influence of two opposing forces it is compelled to take an intermediate direction, so that what was originally a north wind is deflected and flows southwest, while what started as a south wind becomes northwest. From the great service they have rendered to navigation these reliable winds are called trade winds.

William's Fervent Wish.

Papa was sitting by the table reading his evening paper. Generally, when he came across an item of interest, he read it aloud to mamma. Little William, a typical "little pitcher with big ears," as a rule was not in the least concerned about the items his father read aloud. But the other evening he was mightily interested.

"I see, ma," said papa, "that the fishermen around Cape Cod have gone out of the whaling business and"

"Up spoke William promptly.

"Go while you can, I wish you was a Cape Cod fisherman!" —Chicago Journal.

Hot Water.

Two citizens were toddling up the street one day recently, earnestly engaged in exchanging their experiences with dyspepsia.

"And did you ever try the hot water cure?" asked the thin one.

"Did I?" repeated the melancholy one, who had also something of the saving grace of humor in his makeup, as many melancholy men have. "I should say so. Why, man, I've been married fifty years."

All For the Best.

"Why do the roses fade so slowly away?" she inquired poetically.

"Well," replied the baldheaded young man, "when you think it over it's all for the best. It's more comfortable to have them fade slowly away than to go off all of a sudden, like a torpedo."

A Method of Division.

L., who was full of puns, was taken ill. "We must be careful," said his doctor, "I will send you a nurse of not less than fifty years of age."

"Rather," replied L., "send me two each twenty-five years old." —Gaiettede in Medicine.

Ambitious.

"Are you men ambitious?"

"Oh, very. Every man around the place is willing to do anybody's work but his own." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Guaranteed Tire Vulcanizing (WALL PAT)

It Pays, Mr. Owner
Reasonable attention to your tires will often double the mileage ordinarily received. Cuts, blow-outs, fabric breaks, stone bruises, if not repaired promptly, gradually get more serious and have but one ultimate result—costing more to fix and requiring the inner tube to be repaired as well. One day of prompt attention will eliminate weeks of expense and trouble.

Satisfaction or your money back.
