Entered as second-class matter March 1, 1911, at the post office at Highland Park, Illinois, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1916

The "get-together" meeting at the Moraine Hotel Monday night was a very promising beginning of big things to come. If there was one present with gloomy forebodings as to the success of the Association of North Shore Municipalities, he went home with a new line of thought and with several cheerful hope-laden ideas pertaining to the development of the cities on the shore of old Lake Michigan. He heard Mayor Hastings who is brimming over with new ideas, picture the skokie, drained, with its parks and municipal golf links, its beautiful boulevard leading from Chicago to Milwaukee. He listened with interest as the mayor spoke of the possibility of a great central pumping station to supply water for the entire population of the North Shore, with intake pipes several miles out in the lake. He heard speakers of the evening describe railroads electrified and with tracks elevated or depressed together with the beautifying of the right of way. He became conscious of the presence of men who are able to cope with the perplexing situations, and not a lurking doubt lingered as he heard of the amicable readjustment of gas rates which would be satisfactory to the consumers and at the same time avoid the years of litigation and delay as well as expense to the cities which recourse to the courts would involve.

The Press has unquestioned confidence in this new organization. We believe in the men at the wheel, and believe in the citizens of the north shore who will back up the leaders with their united support.

Think of Highland Park when you buy.

Highland Park's water still has a "bad taste."

The report of the Treasurer of the United States, John Burke, shows an increase in gold for the year in the United States of $420,533,943. A staggering sum, isn't it? And yet less than $5 apiece for every person in the country.

Jeanette Rankin, the Congresswoman-elect from Montana, spent only $637 in her successful campaign, thereby setting a good example for other women aspirants for Congressional honors, and incidentally making men candidates jealous.

As we go to press no Thanksgiving fatalities have been reported.

The Business Men admit that the City Hall "bunch" is a hard team to beat. We advise the business men to get busy and go after their scalps.

Reduced to its lowest terms, the European war situation is this: Everybody wants peace on his terms; nobody wants peace on the other fellow's terms. Sequel: the fighting goes on.

California now enjoys the distinction of having kept the whole country in suspense for two weeks while it counted its vote. California ought to get a few adding machines.
