beans, etc. make planting 1 to 3 weeks apart to extend the time available for use.
 Plant parsnips and radishes in same row for convenience as the latter will mature before damage is done to the young parsnips.
 A garden 16x33 ft. requires about 2 hours time per week after the bulk of the planting is done.
 Blight may attack potatoes but this is easily controlled by applying Bordeaux 4-1-50 while the vines are small and every 2 weeks thereafter. Use arsenate of lead or paris green for potato insects.
 Short, stocky, healthy cabbage, tomato and pepper plants should be used.
 Find out what insects and diseases may trouble your crops and hold them in check by remedial measures before the damage becomes serious.
 Grow vegetables for both summer and winter use. Can what vegetables you must and store those that may be carried through the winter, such as potatoes, cabbage, beans, celery, salsify, etc.
 We should not work soils too wet. Take a handful of earth and close the fingers tightly over it. If dry enough for cultivation the ball of earth will fall apart when the hand is opened. Cultivate to kill the weeds and conserve the moisture. Thinning is necessary for lettuce, onions, beets, carrots, parsnips and radishes. The best practice is to thin 2 or 3 times (in order to secure uniform products).
 Corn, potatoes, cucumbers, etc. should not be grown in small gardens, because of the space required. A garden 25x100 ft. properly managed will furnish enough vegetables for a small family throughout the season.
 Locate the garden near the house for convenience, as considerable garden work can be done at odd times and the time so spent not noticed. Fertilize with barnyard manure, bone meal acid phosphate, etc. No fertilizer will give good results unless the soil is well supplied with humus or decaying vegetable matter.
 Weeds, insects, disease, drought and lack of knowledge may cause garden failures.
 Keep labor and expense accounts and then you will appreciate the value of vegetables and their cost of production.
 Make the home garden large enough to utilize all the time of the older boys or give them a chance to work for the commercial growers, where their efforts produce greater returns when properly directed.

E. WINFIELD SPENCER MAKES FAMOUS AIR TRIP

Demonstrates Capabilities of Machines and Aviators in Coast Patrol Duty

E. Winfield Spencer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Spencer of this city, who is instructor in the Aviation school at Pensacola, Fla., has recently made a very famous air trip from Pensacola to New Orleans in company with other officers of the corps. A newspaper published in New Orleans tells of the trip as follows:

"Traversing the air lines from Pensacola to New Orleans under conditions of war time scouting, four navy hydro-air planes of the N-9 type, under command of Lieutenant Winfield Spencer, air pilot arrived here at sundown, Wednesday evening (April 25), thereby demonstrating for the first time in the history of American navy aeronautics, the capabilities of machines and aviators in coast patrol duty.

"The test set by Lieutenant Spencer for the men of his command involved the carrying out of long distant scouting with the aviators and their assistants, dependent entirely upon their maps and instruments.

Lieutenant Spencer speaks of the flight as a very good one and successful beyond their highest expectations. In spite of the fact that the party encountered strong winds, they averaged 63 miles an hour at a height of 2000 feet.

"BACK TO THE FARM" UTILIZE WASTE SPACE

FACE BIG FOOD PROBLEM

This is a Time for Right Thinking and Right Doing. Avoid Extravagant Living in This Great Struggle

By the Patriotic Food Growers Association of Highland Park
 "Back to the farm," is to be a rallying cry, not only in the country, but the city is also to take up the burden.

Hitherto streets, lanes and waste places in the city, uncared for, are now to have specified attention and vacant land is put under cultivation.

Not since Adam was a tiller of the soil, is the farm to have the attention necessary for its real cultivation than at this period when the food problem is becoming one of the most important of all the questions affecting society.

Hunger is imperious in its demands and admits of no delay.

Hunger must be satisfied or the body pays the penalty in the immediate loss of strength and power.

Hunger if not soon appeased becomes a private as well as public menace to good order and good government, and society at large being well acquainted with this fact is bending all its energies to ward off a famine.

That is why the older nations of Europe now engaged in war turn a glad eye toward the United States with its plentiful resources of food as a great help in time of need and a gracious benefit it will prove in the more serious and protracted stress of conflict.

The fact that France, England, Russia, and Italy have already had their armies in the field for over two years and give no sign of the termination of the strife shows it is one of the greatest wars in modern times and may be the largest in all history.

The end is not yet in sight and sorrowing years may yet intervene before a world peace is declared. But that peace is sure to dawn.

As to news of a peace near at hand, that is fast fading away. Some belief the war will last another year and probably longer and that the United States is to take a leading part for more energetic prosecution of the conflict.

The fact that this country is to be among the leading factors in the strife places a new view on the entire situation. The immediate effect is to impart a new force and vigor to the armies already at the front and give new confidence along the whole line of battle. That it will be a struggle of momentous importance to both sides is the fact of supreme importance. The strongest countries of the globe are arrayed against each other and the battle is not of weaklings but of giants. It is the struggle of all times and the chief event in the history of nations. It is a serious, sober time for all civilized people and for all governments.

With a conflict of such magnitude it is idle to talk of peace near at hand. It will be the strife of the ages, a war that will hold the chief place in all history. When it is over the map of the world will be changed.

It is a time for right living and right doing. A time to trust in God fully and completely and be true to family and home and the church. When the conflict is over there will arise a purer manhood and womanhood and a greater reverence for truth, honor and justice than ever before. The world will lay aside its wrinkles of care for those of hope and confidence, and humanity in stonier step will march confidently toward the Golden Age. It is the men and women who deal justly, love mercy and walk with reverence in a life free from bad associations that will be the people honored of God and man that will have the confidence and respect of the best citizens of every community.

The one fact to bear in mind is, to save the dollars and not to live extravagantly, for it may be that all the people, high and low, rich and poor, will have to pass under the stress of a more rigid economy than ever practiced before. What France and England are now passing through in the way of enforced economy is the path we may yet have to follow before an unclouded sky dawns on our country again.

But the day will come when the world will be at peace and the people walking the way of self denial will again march on the sunny side of life with hope ringing a sweet song of rest after the dark cloud of war has vanished from our beloved land.

EXMOOR CADDIES TO RAISE VEGETABLES

In order that every boy will have an opportunity to raise vegetables, the Exmoor Country Club will furnish gardens to their caddies to be cultivated by them while awaiting their turns out. Every caddy, and every boy who wants to become a caddy, will have the use of land, with seeds free. Every boy will receive everything raised.

The lots will be assigned Friday afternoon between four and five o'clock.

Two boys may work together, if they wish. It is planned to give prizes for the best gardens and best vegetables.

Here is an opportunity to win a prize and earn good money. Last season at caddying some of the boys earned from $100 to $200.

If a boy while waiting for his turn to caddy cultivates a garden, he can earn considerable more.

Last summer a thirteen year old school girl raised over $250.00 worth of spinach, lettuce, radishes and beans on a home garden.

The school children of Cook County last year raised $48000.00 worth of vegetables.

PLANS AND THEY ALSO ALLOW THE GENERAL FARMER TO DEVOTE MORE LAND TO GROWING BREAD STUFFS.

All it takes is wise direction, ground and seeds plus a little man or boy energy.

The Exmoor caddies are to have the former furnished, but will supply the latter.

It will be a profitable summer for the boys who combine gardening with caddying, and no boys should miss this opportunity.

President Wilson said "We must supply abundant food for our armies and our seamen, not only, but also for a large part of the nations with whom we have now made common cause and in whose support and by whose side we shall be fighting."

So our problem is more than national.

If each person does his or her share the task will not be hard to raise sufficient for ourselves, and also aid our allies.

One million young people, women, and elderly men with gardens would add more than $250,000,000 to the food value of this season's crop.

It is not only a good thing from the standpoint of national wealth, but has a distinct military value. Gardens take away from the railroads a transportation labor that is needed for the movement of war supplies.
