Eye Trouble Cause Many Rejections of Candidates for Enlistment in the Army

Boston, Mass., April 30.—At the Army Recruiting Station, 22 Tremont Row, it is stated that fully 90 per cent. of the applicants for enlistment who are rejected fail to pass their physical examination because of some form of eye trouble. Thousands of men are apparently walking the streets of Boston who should be wearing glasses and yet have no knowledge whatever that they are suffering from eye troubles.

The revelations at the recruiting station have resulted in a distinct boom for the optical business in this city.
