INTERESTING LETTERS

chances are so great that you won't be touched or at the most only slightly wounded that there isn't any use getting excited over it. It's all so matter of course—every single man is about to go "over the top" or has just returned from the front, that it seems as natural as cutting my "nine o'clocks" at Harvard and add to that the desire to make one less at least of the Germans, and the fact that you feel so far away from home which seems a part of another life, and you have our weird atmosphere out here—though I don't deny that I am not the last in line to get at the mail these days.

Henry Schauflier's Letter

Section 595, U. S. A. A. S.
Allentown, Pa., Nov. 9
Dear Mr. Sedgwick:
I am glad to be able to answer any inquiry about the work of the Y. M. C. A. in this and other army camps. You of course know what the Y. has done for us. To the large majority of men in all the camps it furnishes not only the chief amusement and entertainment, but a place of warmth and friendship and practically the only spiritual influence that they get. You will be surprised to know that right here in this camp, the Y. M. C. A. "hut" is the only place that is heated and comfortable, where the men can read and write and not be very cold. All of the men feel an indebtedness to the "Y" that will last them a lifetime.
As you know, I have four brothers in the service and their report from the various camps is the same. Officers and men all feel that the "Y" is as indispensable as it has proved efficient and equal to the great demands that the present situation has put upon it. My cousin in France writes that there is one great civilizing influence which remains to the men "over there," and his tribute is to the "Y." Five weeks ago I saw my older brother sail for France with the Fifty-First Massachusetts Engineers, and as we stood on the pier he called my attention to the Y. M. C. A. men in their grey uniforms hustling loads of books and magazines on board. "These are the men," he said, "who do the biggest work and get the least credit of us all." There is not any pretense on the part of our soldiers in regard to this thing.

I have been giving all the time I could to forwarding a campaign among the men here because that is all I can do in return for all I have received. Even the paper I am writing now is furnished to me and all the men free. I could tell you in detail of the "Red Triangle" amusements, and the hundred and one stunts that they have evolved to keep us happy and busy in spare time, but I think that the attitude as well as the gratitude of the men in this country and abroad towards the Y. M. C. A. should be sufficient to convince anyone of the great influence and value of it in this war. The people who have contributed to this have done us a direct and appreciated service.
Always sincerely,
(signed) Henry G. Schauflier.

"ROUT THE RAT"
Annual saving of $200,000,000 a year, mostly food, to be achieved by exterminating these pests—Community action needed.
There is as much—perhaps more—need for routing the rat than for "swatting the fly." Flies transmit disease. Rats not only spread disease but leave a costly trail of destruction. Probably 200,000 men in the United States are devoting their energies and time to feeding rats. Of this number 150,000 are farmers who are giving their farms, agricultural implements and other equipment to supply the foods annually consumed by rats.
So says Edward W. Nelson, chief of the United States Biological Survey in pointing out that rat menace at a time when every ounce of food is vital. He says the actual money lost by rats is $200,000,000 a year.
In Iowa, one farmer lost 500 bushels of corn out of a crib containing 2,000. The Virginia commissioner of health says that in parts of his state rats have destroyed seventy-five per cent of the poultry and ten per cent of growing crops. A Louisville milling company estimates that rats cause a loss of $3,000 a year to sacks alone, not to speak of the huge damage done to the contents.
Cribs, bins any place where food is stored, should be made rat-proof. This should be done thoroughly to be effective. The best results are obtained when bodies of men and women cooperate by communities. As a general rule the measures for extermination of rats should provide for these things:
A campaign of trapping and poisoning; rat-proofing of all buildings, old or new; removal of harboring places such as old sheds, trash piles, old lumber, wooden sidewalks and garbage and waste upon which rats may feed; rat-proofing and frequent in-pection of market places and public buildings.
Start a "Route the Rat" campaign in your neighborhood.
No woman thinks the "emancipation of her sex" should go so far as to encourage cutting her hair short.
Few get what they think they want, yet almost everybody is comparatively happy.
What has become of the old-fashioned man who carried all his notes, receipts and other business papers in a hinge wallet in his trousers pocket?

"I'm Only a Volunteer"
The following was written by one of "our boys" who joined the engineers recently and is now training in Texas. It has been handed to us to publish.
VOLUNTEERED
Why didn't I wait to be drafted.
And be led to a train by a band,
And put in a claim for exemption,
Oh, why did I hold up my hand?
Why didn't I wait for a banquet?
Why didn't I wait for a cheer?
For the drafted men get the credit,
I merely VOLUNTEERED.
And nobody gave me a banquet.
And nobody said a kind word.
The grind of the wheels of the engine
Was all the godby that I heard,
Then off to the camp I was hustled,
To be drilled the rest of the year,
And then in the shuffle forgotten,
I was only a VOLUNTEER.
And maybe some day in the future,
When my little boy sits on my knee,
And asks what I did in the conflict,
And his little eyes look up at me,
I will have to look back as I'm blushing.
To the eyes that so trustingly peer,
And tell him I missed being drafted,
I was only a VOLUNTEER.
