

Speaking of camouflage, there is the powder rag.

America is bound to have her murder sensations, war or no war.

For diplomats life just now seems to be one explanation after another.

Mr. Garfield's suggestion that each person save a ton of coal should carry weight.

A movement has been started for the conservation of cows. Save your calves!

The middleman doesn't seem to have any more friends than the German government.

Half the fun of having a job seems to be the privilege of striking when you want to.

If we do have a shortage of flour it is going to be hard on plagiarists when they run out of paste.

With winter rye at $3.50 a bushel, the farmer will rely on nature's cover crops of chickweed and purslane.

Women doing work for their country at this crisis show that they are people, and patriotic people at that.

The new German submarines are described as floating palaces; but many a poor devil finds them a prison.

It is predicted that wool will be $1 a pound before the end of the war. Oh, well—we always did want to wear silk.

The American marines, it is said, will eventually get into the trenches. When they do the marines will land all right.

Berlin reports vary from general starvation to universal luxury, according to the momentary impression desired.

As a result of the recount the manufacture of lead pencils with a rubber eraser attachment on one end may be stopped.

Just keep on remembering that the country is at war—and that you can do something to help. Find out what and do it.

Our American army is the best fed in the world. And armies, as the grand old world-beater said, march on their stomachs.

The French call an expert aviator an ace. History will take due notice of the rule that makes the ace greater than the king.

A food expert says that hard-boiled eggs can be canned profitably. Our notion of nothing to eat is a canned hard boiled egg.

Wooden shoes, should they be generally required, will seem curious. But an honest working wooden shoe is better than a political shoe.

It is said that $45,000,000 worth of eggs spoil every year. Maybe that is the reason the actors have quit the real stage and gone into the films.

Some men are born fools, others go crazy, and then there are those who rear back in their flippers and try to beat a lightning express train to the crossing.

It took 4,000 years of love and labor and skill to build the church of St. Quentin. The Germans destroyed it in an hour, again proving their amazing efficiency.

Some old-fashioned people think it would be about right to call our foreign service soldiers Americans, which would be better than the cutest nickname.

Those boys of ours in France who never studied French have a decided advantage over those who learned it from school books. They have nothing to unlearn.

Nothing brings the thrill today as does the sight of an airplane carrying a dozen passengers. But for the war this accomplishment would have been delayed for years and years.

Who says war is dangerous? Haven't Wilhelm and his six gallant sons been lending their armies in the thick of the fray for more than three years and not one among them is dead yet?

A London man who is holding down 34 jobs has been exempted from war service. One would think that he would prefer to go to war. They give soldiers a chance to sleep once in a while, at least.

The London Times, commenting on a game of baseball played somewhere in France, says: "After all, baseball is not cricket." The Times may yet discover that softball is not draw poker.

Domestic science expert writes that boiling tomato parings in aluminum cooking utensils will make them bright. Of course, that is a very valuable bit of information for those who like their tomato parings that way.

Commissioner Bouillon, on his return to Paris, reported to his government that the president told him the United States will stand by France "to the last man, to the last dollar," which is the kind of a sport your Uncle Samuel is when he gets into a ruction.

ELIZABETH SCHUMACHER MEETS DEATH FRIDAY

Edwin Gilroy, four of whom were in uniform were Elizabeth's friends and classmates. The rendering of the beautiful hymn, by the vested choir, the impressive reading of the burial service by the Rector, and the exquisite arrangement of floral tokens helped to dispel the gloom, and comfort the mourners.

SITUATION WANTED

Wanted—Position as infants nurse or nursery governess, hospital trained. About second week in January. References, $10 per week. Address C. K. Care Press Office. 44pd

LAKE COUNTY AND NEARBY NEWS NOTES

Two of the student flyers, have been promoted to ensigns and will remain at the ground school.
Others of the famous "millionaire group" of student aviators have been transferred to Boston for further instruction in flying. Ensign Blair, associated with Lieut. Hammond in the Great Lakes unit, has been transferred to Hampton Roads.

tor Joseph Hansen of Waukegan, who put up the other four "Y" buildings at the station.

It is not known just when the actual work of construction will be started but it is said no time will be lost because the large number of sailors in course of training there makes it impossible to care for them properly in the four buildings already at the station.

Repeal Sunday Closing Ordinance

Waukegan barbers won their fight to keep their places of business open on Sunday when the city council in special session Saturday morning passed an ordinance which repeals the Sunday closing measure which has been in effect about two years. Barbers may now keep their shops open as long as they wish without fear of interference by the police.

Furthermore it is said that the cases which are pending against barbers or past violations never will be pushed in view of the fact that the ordinance no longer is effective. The vote to repeal the ordinance Saturday passed by a vote of 4 to 1. Commissioner Orvis casting the only dissenting vote. Mayor Pearce immediately signed the measure and it became effective at once.

Austria Hungary strengthens the superstition to the effect that the hyphen is likely to be unlucky wherever you find it.

President Wilson seems to think that the truth is mighty and needs no camouflage.

A perfect anthology of patriotism could be compiled from the great public utterances of President Wilson.
