Following we print in part, an editorial from Monday morning's Chicago Tribune. The great problem with which it deals, one which this Country is facing today, we believe, should be uppermost in the minds of every American citizen:

TO CONGRESS—THE COMPLETE CASE FOR UNIVERSAL SERVICE

(From the Chicago Tribune)

A vote in congress for universal military service is a vote for the adoption of the only method which will or can give the United States an army.

A vote against universal service is a vote against the maintenance of an army.

A vote for universal service is a vote for the protection of the United States. A vote against universal service is a vote against the protection of the United States.

It is not possible for the facts to be denied or the deductions ignored. The logic is unescapable. One of two conditions will be created by congress. The nations will have to accept one or the other and abide all the consequences. It cannot have one thing and call it the other. It may delude itself but it will be one or the other—protected or defenseless.

It cannot be protected unless it adopts a permanent military policy and accepts universal service. It will be defenseless if it does not.

The matter is open to choice but not to change. Congress can make a decision. The nation must accept the results. These essentials may be distorted in public opinion by hope or illusions but cannot be altered in fact.

An effective military system is the work of years. An army is the product of organization and training. If it is not in being when needed it cannot be had. There is no human power which can produce an army for a nation which needs one if the making begins with the need. It cannot be done. Ten months ago the United States went to war. Its army is still in cantonments being trained. No one can deny this fact. If an army does not exist when needed it cannot be had.

The adoption of a permanent military policy and the development of national strength will not prevent the cooperation of the United States in any scheme of international peace which may be adopted as practical. That scheme will be stronger if the United States is strong in it. This nation wants peace. The weakness of the nations forming a league of peace will not make the strength of the league.

The only democratic army is a citizen army. The only efficient citizen army is an army of trained citizens. Therefore we do not believe in a constabulary system of professional soldiers but in an organization of trained citizens. When we speak of an army we do not mean a large body of men devoting their time wholly to military duty, but a much larger body of citizens organized, equipped, and trained, but engaged in their civilian duties. The organization remains in being. It can mobilize and direct the men when they are needed. Thus the army is in being and the soldiers are civilians.

To get this army all that is needed now is for congress to vote that young men of 19 years hereafter shall give a certain part of their time, even as little as six months, in cantonments already erected, with equipment already bought, under officers already trained, in an organization already established.

This scheme has been established and paid for. All it needs is the time of young men. The cost of maintenance would be repaid in the physical survey of the youth of the nation would obtain, in the discovery and correction of physical ills and tendencies and mental defects, in the improving of national stock, in the quickening of the social sense and in the imposition of social discipline, in the stimulating of national idealism and patriotism, in the betterment of the bodies of the young men, in the heightening of their conception of national obligations and citizenship duties.

This is the scheme for which congress will vote and which it has the opportunity to establish. It will guarantee the security of the United States and elevate its tone. It is not costly and is not an imposition. It will interfere with no peace plans. It will strengthen them. It will solve all doubts in favor of the United States and make Americans masters of themselves.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The services next Sunday, February twenty-fourth, will be conducted by Rev. Shirley J. Case, D. D., a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago.

Dr. Case is widely known as an author, editor, and educator and comes to Highland Park with the reputation as well of being a very capable and earnest preacher of the gospel thus insuring an interesting and instructive service to all who hear him. Services are at 11 o'clock at the close of Bible School which convenes at 9:30 a. m. The services are held in the Lecture Room in order to aid in the conservation movement for the saving of fuel. The congregation find this room very attractive as a meeting place. There is a warm welcome for all. This includes especially our boys of all ranks at Fort Sheridan and Great Lakes.

TRINITY CHURCH

The subject of the second lecture of the Adult Class is "The History of the Church from the Year 100 through the four great councils of the sixth century." There were about thirty five attendants at the first lecture Sunday.

HOW FEDERAL EMPLOYEES HOUSE AT WASHINGTON

Applications for Board and Room should be made at Office at 1321 New York Ave.

The District of Columbia Council of Defense authorizes the statement that persons appointed to positions in the Government service in Washington can secure rooming and boarding accommodations at reasonable prices if they apply at the room Registration Office at 1321 New York Avenue, N. Y., promptly upon arrival. The office is conducted by the District Council of Defense under the auspices of the United States Government. Federal funds having been made available for the purpose by the President at the request of the United States Civil Service Commission. All rooms are carefully inspected by Government agents before being listed as available.

Difficulties which have been met by newcomers, the District Council of Defense states, have largely been the result of a lack of organization of the facilities for listing rooms and furnishing information thereto. The work is now organized and is running smoothly. There is always on hand at the Room Registration Office a list of rooms to let from which the newly appointed Federal employees may be accommodated. Those who arrive on late trains may find accommodations for the night by applying to the representative of the District Council of Defense or the agent of the Traveler's Aid at the District Council of Defense booth in the main waiting room of the Union Station where all trains arrive.

Room dimensions and room uses determine light quantities required. Of course that simple fact is understood.

But it may not be so thoroughly well known that very small Electric Lamps are made for use in parts of the house where only a small amount of light is needed.

Their operating cost is trifling.
