THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1918

The "January thaw" has to be postponed till February.

German militaristic motto: In time of war prepare for another.

Just the same, congress ought to pass the Chamberlain universal training bill.

Von Hindenburg's iron order will give the starving Berliners food for thought.

Honey on the buckwheat cakes is not half bad especially when it is procurable.

When Emperor William is not strafing he is giving himself a vote of confidence.

Aesop's goose that laid the golden egg has nothing on the little brown nonslackener hen.

Politicians should realize that fighting at home is no help at all to the fighting abroad.

"You cannot wage war with words" says Premier Lloyd George. But our politicians know better.

In Russia any man is classed with the bourgeoisie who has his other shirt done at a laundry.

A great deal of the news from central Europe now comes with the "important if True" label.

Hereafter no summer day will be hot enough to make the citizen indifferent to an empty coal bin.

Apparently the moral weight of America in the war is bending the Hindenburg line of autocracy.

Belgium continues to be persecuted owing to the fact that it is the only country the Hun has at his mercy.

If Bill the Boche were worth what he has cost the world there would be some foundation for his boasting.

We trust the Roumanians are not sitting up night waiting for the Bolsheviks to return the gold they have seized.

Another reason why American army men will be deified pournalistic work is that they aren't expected to win battles on paper.

We are hearing constantly of the things which "alone" can't win the war; they should all struggle up closely to the things that can.

"March, Cold Windy March"

Is truly a very trying month for skin troubles. The indoor winter months render the face and exposed parts peculiarly sensitive to the ravages of the cold, biting MARCH winds. To keep the skin healthy and natural requires a protection. Cosmetic Cream, according to all reports from our customers, has proven to be by far the best skin lotion we know of. We are anxious to still further introduce among our customers and patrons Caution Cream. In order to do so, during the month of March we will give FREE a 25-cent bottle of

BOUQUET JEANICE PERFUME

(which is of the same high grade as the Cream) with every purchase of a bottle of the Cream. This offer, of course, will be during the month of March only.

Thanking you for your kind patronage, we are
Yours very truly,
