Dogs or gardens—which, Patriotic citizens, which will you have? Dogs or vegetable gardens. Those who wanted gardens last year and who planted them, in consequence, suffered great inconvenience when neighbors' dogs walked all over them, ruining them. If you must keep a dog, chain him up. Have a run way for him and see that he stays there. Dogs roaming at large are a great inconvenience, and in some cases a danger to the public.

Everywhere citizens are urged to plant war gardens; but of what use is it to plant a garden if friend dog is going to walk all over it and ruin it? Chain your own dog up so that he will not ruin your neighbors' garden. Again we say—which—dogs or vegetable gardens. Remember, that Food Will Win the War. Don't waste it and don't let dogs waste it.

A MOVIE DIRECTORY

We have had Esperanto and Volup dictionaries and various "foolish" lexicons, but now comes the very latest, a movie dictionary, in process of completion by Eugene V. Brewster, the versatile editor of the Motion Picture Magazine and the Motion Picture Classic. Mr. Brewster is an artist of note, his landscapes and marines having received highly favorable criticism at recent exhibitions this winter. Several years ago, Mr. Brewster published a little magazine, The Caldron, which circulated among wits and literati, and which was almost entirely written by its editor. Among other things, Mr. Brewster composed a satirical dictionary which was freely quoted by after-dinner speakers and lovers of light satire. Having been so closely identified with the motion picture business for the last ten years, Mr. Brewster has decided to compose a movie dictionary. It will run in the pages of his magazines and will afterwards be published in book form. Here are some of his unique definitions: AUDIENCE—A crowd in a theater, so called because they cannot hear half of what is said; in a movie theatre so-called because there is nothing to hear. HELL—A place to which many are told to go, but to which nobody ever goes—except bad actors. KISS—The fins of the average picture. NOSE—A useful but sometimes a bothersome addition to the human countenance, intended to smell with, but more often used to insert into other people's business. They appear in assorted sizes and colors and are found on every face except the face of Nature and Sidney Drew. WOMAN—? (But we won't give her up!) X—The letter that Francis Bushman made famous.

HOW UNCLE SAM LOOKS AFTER HIS EMPLOYEES

Welfare of Young Folks in Washington, D. C., on Official Business Looked After

The Federal Government is not only giving close attention to the matter of the proper housing of its new appointees in Washington, but the general welfare of the employees is now considered in greater measure than ever before. Many of the young people who have come to Washington for war work are hundreds, even thousands, of miles from home for the first time in their lives. They are strangers in a strange land, and it is not to be wondered at that they become homesick and magnify the troubles that they are bound to meet during the period of adjustment to new conditions. The department heads realize that a good clerk must be a contented one, and many officers have appointed welfare workers whose business it is to take an unobtrusive interest in the affairs of the employees and to try to help them with their difficulties. Experiments along this line have had such good results that the number of offices which employ welfare workers is increasing.

Since the war began about 25,000 employees have been added to the civil service in Washington, D. C. The United States Civil Service Commission, whose duty it is to recruit this branch of the service, estimates that this calendar year will add another 20,000. Stenographers are being appointed in great numbers. There is also need for clerks, both men and women, who are trained in certain special or technical lines, ship draftsmen, mechanical craftsmen, and workmen in trades connected with ship-building. The representatives of the civil service commission at the post offices in all cities are prepared to furnish definite information and application blanks.

FOOD COMMITTEE SHOWS HOW TO BEST CONSERVE

(Continued from Page One) brands. This is free from animal fats, although, government regulations compel them to brand the product oleomargarine, because it is a substitute for butter. Prepare it in the following way and the most fastidious epicure will agree with you that it is splendid.

- 1 ball of vegetable coloring (that comes with the package.)
- 1 teaspoon salt.
- 1 teaspoon sugar.
- 1 teaspoon cream.

Mix the salt, sugar and coloring in a cup. Slightly heat the substitute so that it may be worked with a wooden spoon, add cream, then work it, lastly adding the other ingredients. Do not get the butter too soft, and when well mixed, keep in a cool place.

Here is an excellent recipe for barley muffins:

- 1 cup sour milk.
- 1 teaspoon sugar.
- 1 egg.
- 1/2 teaspoon soda.
- 1 teaspoon salt.
- 2 tablespoons melted fat.
- 2 1/2 cups barley flour.
- 2 teaspoons baking powder.

(If sweet milk is used, omit the soda, and use 4 teaspoons baking powder.)

In order to secure flour new, we must buy some substitute. I have made a splendid little cake from corn flakes, that I think superior to the expensive macaroons everyone is so fond of. The recipe follows:

- 1 cup sugar, (white granulated, or pulverized maple).
- 3 heaping cups of corn flakes.
- 1/2 cup pecan or other nut meats (broken finely).
- 1/2 teaspoon salt.
- 2 eggs (whites).

Place the sugar, corn flakes, salt and nut meats in a mixing bowl. Pulverize the flakes slightly by kneading with hands, then add the whites of the eggs which have been beaten to a stiff froth. Drop the batter in teaspoon quantities upon a greased tin, and bake until light brown in a slow oven.
