Official News Notes on all War Work

As we were about to rush to print the last casualty list arrived. As my finger's still wrapped in pain's greatest throes, I clipped this small bunch with my dear little toes.

Yet a toe's not a finger. And can't clip worth a cent. But I sent them along Just to show my intent. —A Wounded Clipper.

It is an ill wind that blows nobody good, and in war time every ill wind is made to do its bit; so when, due to the necessary delays in making the national change to the new requirements in surgical dressings, that department of the Red Cross was for three days without authority to continue its own work: it turned to on the work of the French Wounded, and by so doing, doubled that organization's output for the month. As we all know the Red Cross is now supplying the dressings for the "front line packets." With an unusually heavy assignment, this month, it finds its hands more than full with its own work, in which, by the way, many faithful workers for the French Wounded find time to take a share. Long live the spirit of cooperation!

As to the new dressings themselves, Red Cross workers have discovered that to make tampons skillfully requires no small amount of knack, and experts are already appearing who claim the highest honors in quality plus quantity.

"If we only had Mrs. X at our table" exclaims one S. D. "She makes them in no time, perfectly beautifully," and being of a naturally retiring disposition, we fall to remark upon our own ability, but tampon away industriously, with a mental note to inspect Mrs. X's work in the near future and judge for ourselves.

Several new Red Cross debutants of the male variety, made their initial appearance at the rooms last Monday evening. They were all charmingly attired in the official custom of the hour. 58 guests were present. You are most cordially invited to be present on next Monday evening.

The Daughters of the Flag

The four quilts were finished, and delivered to the French Wounded, together with an organ, 3 sweaters, 2 trench caps, and 1 scrap book. The chapter has very nearly enough money to adopt two french orphans on the first anniversary of the organization, which will occur the first Saturday in May. If you are a daughter let not your back dues be the cause of delay in the adoption of these French war orphans. Do it now!

The Navy Relief

We have sure proof it will be summer, very soon, now, for the Navy Relief has begun work on its summer weight bathrobes, and they wouldn't do that if they were not very sure, in spite of the last few shivering days, that warm weather was at hand. Many comfort bags have also been made, and there is a good supply of knitted goods on hand for the necessary outfitting of boys in need, which is such an essential part of the work.

The Woman's Committee

Don't forget that the literature table at the Red Cross Shop is there for you. Take a book on gardening home with you, next time, along with your conservation cook book. Both are given without charge.

Did you know of the Officer's Training Camp for Girl Farmers that is to be held this year on a big farm west of Libertyville, given over for this purpose. All students will live at the farm, and give their entire time to learning farm work. They must pledge themselves to lead other groups the following summer.

The Army and Navy Center

The hostesses this week at the Center are, Saturday, Mrs. George Richmond Nichols, representing the D. A. R. and on Sunday the Lady Foresters.

The following letter speaks for itself:

It seems that several people in Highland Park, in fact many other places, think that entertainments and clubs for soldiers and sailors are doing no good. I was in the Navy before this war started, and was aboard ship with men from all stations of life. There used to be a great deal of drinking done by the old sailors and new as well, but since there have been other entertainments the amount of drinking has lessened more than anyone in civil life realizes. Many people see less drinking among men in uniform and say it is because of the law prohibiting the sale of liquor to men in the service. I know positively that anyone in a uniform can get liquor any time he wants it regardless of the law. It is not the law that prevents men from drinking, but entertainments of the nature you get at the Highland Park Army and Navy Center. —A Jackie.
