THURSDAY, APRIL 11, 1918

APRIL 6th, 1918

Nearly one thousand people, one eighth the population of Highland Park, attended the patriotic mass meeting at Pearl Theatre. It marked the end of our first year of the war and the beginning of a new period; a renaissance of zeal and patriotism inaugurated by the Third Liberty Loan. All day long, this new quality of patriotism was in evidence; in the resolute faces of the marching men in Chicago, in the eager waiting crowds which lined the streets, in the miles of civilians, along the line of march who uncovered, wave after wave, in meticulous serried order as the flag went marching by.

The people of Highland Park were ready and waiting for the good speakers at the mass meeting. Dr. Soares gave us something besides a thunder of oratory. He gave us meat for thought. Step by step, with the guarded statement of a trained mind, he made careful analysis of the means by which the Kaiser was to have become master of the world. And then, in few and simple words, he addressed France, and for a moment, we saw her in her hour of peril, in her grave chivalry, like a flame in the night.

Dr. Soares, in developing his theme, showed that we were marked third in Germany's program of world dominion. He pointed out that Germany makes no distinction between friend or enemy nations in furthering her imperialistic ambition. He asked us to remember that Belgium had never wronged Germany, that Russia desired nothing so much as peace, that France was attacked without warning.

We went home pondering several things: this then is what Germany had in store for us. This is what Zimmerman meant when he informed Gerard that there were five hundred thousand German Reservists in the United States.

WHILE THE WHEELS AT WASHINGTON GO ROUND

Karl Bueuz, a citizen of Germany and formerly head director of the Hamburg-American Line is at last going to prison. He was convicted in our Federal Courts of issuing false manifests for ships by means of which German sea-raiders were fed, sustained, and enabled to go on sinking our merchant vessels. Exactly how many American citizens were murdered on the high seas through the efforts of Herr Bueuz while working under the cloak of our hospitality, is not disclosed. He is sentenced to the Atlantic penitentiary for eighteen months. At the conclusion of the War, Karl Bueuz will be received at court and decorated by the Kaiser for his faithful services.

In the meantime, Congress is debating whether punishment for such acts shall be made more severe. It is hoped that the debate will be closed before the war ends because we would like to have Congress decide several other matters for us, and because our citizens, grounded in respect for government, hesitate to take upon themselves the burden of suppressing alien enemies.

THE BIRTH OF PATRIOTISM

Patriotism like mother love is not born without pain, sacrifice, travail. The great emotions do not come like white doves and perch upon our heads, unsought, unmarked, unpaid-for. We love our children, but the little sickly one—he who demands the greater sacrifice, the larger need of giving—we cannot live without him.

For a year we have heralded the birth of patriotism like that of a prince with fanfare of trumpets and drums. Orators have announced it in words that glowed with fine emotion. But in spite of all we do, the real patriotism will be born like all things else, in a dark moment, in solitary suffering; and no power of eloquence or martial music can orate nor orchestrate it into existence. It will come with casualty lists, with deprivations, with sacrifice, and service.

Martha Washington, not only in the days of the Revolution, but long after, appeared at state functions in her old garments, often conspicuously mended, in order to set before her countrywomen an example of economy and self-abnegation.

This spring we can emulate that great woman and buy a Liberty Bond instead of a spring suit, for it is only by serving that we can come into our share of the spiritual inheritance of this great war. Only through sharing, enduring, suffering shall we see the birth of patriotism.

The man who knows how to work seldom needs sympathy.

You can get a better idea of a woman at a bridge table than any other place.

No Francis—a tailor—made suit, chamois gloves—and a stick do not always make a man.

It's difficult to get along without the respect of men—but it's impossible without self-respect.

When it comes to killing the best in a man idleness outwamps Theda Bara.

You can't make a Packard impression with a Ford makeup. If you want generous orders, high prestige and a good name, buy the kind of printing that creates them.

Everytime Senator Jim Reed engineers an onslaught against Herb Hoover he experiences one of those fruitless days.

We can hear Austria's or Germany's peace proposals very distinctly, without our letting up one whiff in our war preparations.

Expert endorsement of whale meat as food will set new standards for the fisherman who boasts about the size of his catch.

As the Bolshevik envoys were signing a more shameful peace Petrograd was bombed An appropriate celebration.

American soldiers are to sing songs in French. This will no doubt be a means of affording the French soldiers a share of harmless diversion.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

The annual rummage sale will be held early in May, the place and date will be announced next week in order that those who are cleaning house may know where to send the articles. Clothing may be sent to the association at any time if it would be any convenience to the donor. Furniture, books and heavier articles can be cared for as soon as a store building is secured. A rummage sale is needed more this year than ever before. While we are in the giving spirit let us not forget those in our own community who are willing and glad to pay for the needed articles and thus help the individual and the Y. W. C. A. who are putting forth every effort to do their share in the work that confronts the organization of today.

The Bide-a-Wee Club under their leader Miss Clements enjoyed a dinner in the gymnasium Friday evening after which through the kindness of friends who loaned their autos they were joined by the Sunshine Club and both attended a lecture in the Oak Terrace School in Highwood given by Mrs. Constant C. Hopkins of Chicago for the Junior Red Cross, of the above school.

A splendid girl scout troop enrolling thirty girls was organized at the Y. W. C. A. Friday afternoon with Mrs. Ralph Bard as leader.

Temporary officers were elected for a month.

Drilling will begin Friday in the gymnasium.

A very enthusiastic Mother's Club was held Tuesday evening, Mrs. Geo. R. Jones giving a resume of the work accomplished at the Army and Navy center, reading extracts from letters written by boys who have gone from here to other forts in U. S. and some even to France, showing their appreciation of the hospitality and cheer extended to them by the Army and Navy Center people. The splendid report of Mrs. Jones was an inspiration to all who heard it for better and more united service for the boys in khaki and blue.

Miss Elsie Toth contributed two very pretty solos accompanied by Miss Margaret Mayer and Miss Stine always a favorite with the Mother's Club gave several readings. Cocoa and sandwiches were served, and a social time followed.
