The Hydra-headed Problem Again

A recent report of the Law and Order League has it that hotel keepers at Fox Lake and Half Day are selling liquor to our soldiers. Fox Lake has long been known as a riotous resort. These dealers are outside of the five mile zone and can not be restrained from selling liquor to civilians, but they are disobeying the law when they sell to men in uniform.

The same report, reinforced by an officer at Fort Sheridan, also claims that liquor is being sold to our soldiers right here in Highland Park just west of town.

At the same time we are all deeply concerned in the welfare of these young men in our midst and are doing everything in our power to fill their needs for friendly contacts, wholesome entertainment, and recreations. If these profiteers at our city gates are selling them liquor simultaneously, we had best go back farther and do some clean-up work. It is footless to back at the branches of such an evil and let the roots flourish.

Highland Park Hospital Realized

The dedication of Highland Park's new hospital marks the second notable achievement of our city within a period of a few years. The first was the enlarging of a great educational institution, equipping it with modern appliances, and expanding it into the well-organized plant which today is second to none in the state. James Shields will always be remembered as the man who worked for our High School until its success was assured.

In matters of public welfare, some one individual is usually consecrated to the idea and thus becomes associated in the minds of the people with its realization. The idea of a hospital within our city has been advocated for many years, but it required leadership—some one who had initiative to conceive and organize a program of activities and set the thing in motion. That person was our esteemed fellow-citizen, the late Walter C. Hatley, who wanted to do something for Highland Park in his characteristic quiet way, and without thought of becoming identified with the undertaking. Nevertheless, as we saw the hospital before us last Sunday—an accomplished fact, and as we think of it now, equipped and ready for long years of ministrations in its own peculiar province of mercy, we find ourselves associating it with the kindly genial spirit of Walter C. Hatley, and it will live as a fitting monument to his memory.

It is not our province to mention all the men and women who have worked to secure this institution for Highland Park, but we would be remiss if we failed to acknowledge our debt to Mayor Hastings whose unfailing interest and sustained effort, in spite of modest disclaimers, will embody themselves in this hospital, and remain a living record, in the calendar of an already notable administration.
