DON'T SELL YOUR LIBERTY BONDS

The State Council of Defense has received information from many sources that a number of merchants and dealers in stocks and bonds have advertised and offered to accept Liberty Bonds in exchange for their merchandise and securities.

The United States Treasury Department, through the Council of National Defense, has advised the State Council of Defense, as noted below, that all such advertisements and offers to exchange Liberty Bonds should be checked and discouraged.

"Regarding the exchange of securities for Liberty Bonds, the Secretary of the Treasury has pointed out, not only that this impedes the Government's financial program, but also that a large percentage of the securities so offered have been found to be worthless, and the mere fact that any security is offered in this unpatriotic way justifies suspicion and an investigation of its character.

"Regarding the exchange of merchandise for Liberty Bonds, Secretary McAdoo said, 'When the Bonds are exchanged for merchandise, it defeats the primary purpose of their sale, it discourages thrift and increases expenditures, thus depriving the Government of labor and material needed for war purposes.' In addition bonds taken in exchange are usually sold immediately in the open market, thus depressing the market price.

"Government Bonds should be held by their original purchasers, except when sale is required by real necessity or misfortune."

The County Executive Committees are therefore urged:

(1) To locate and follow up all specific cases which may come to their knowledge.

(2) To see that all serious cases be immediately reported to the State Council of Defense in order that the matter may be placed in the hands of the proper federal authorities.

(3) To give this bulletin wide publicity through the county press and in such other ways as may be expedient.

STATE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE, Samuel Insull, Chairman, September, 1918.

Dear Editors—

At my old home town, I have been asked, out here, to write a song for the Navy. We have 5000 jacksies in training at San Pedro (in the city limits). Here is the result:

Perhaps the boys at Great Lakes might like to read it in your paper.

Best wishes,
FREDERICK M. STEELE,

SONG FOR THE NAVY

A cheer for the sea! the blue rolling sea!

Where space is exhaustless,—with winds blowing free!

My Country I love, its mountains and plains,
But give me the sea, my heart it enchains.

The Army is grand for those who would serve

On land, and would there our Nation preserve;

But give me a ship, with guns and with speed,

We Yankees will show just what's in our creed!

Afraid! ah, not we! just give us the chance

To fight for our Country and make the Huns dance

To "Dixie," and teach them just why we are free—

We'll sink them, or blow them clean out of the sea!

For we are the Sailors, we're steady and true;

Our vow to our Country we now would renew.

God keep her from harm, her future preserve!

The Navy is loyal,—stands ready to serve!

—Frederick M. Steele.
