War Camp Community Service

The monthly meeting of the War Camp Community Service of Chicago and the north shore was held at Highland Park, Monday at the Trinity Parish House. The meeting was held both morning and evening. A fine luncheon was served to all in the Presbyterian church. Representatives of all the Community activities of Chicago and the North Shore towns were present and the reports made were very gratifying and inspiring. The meeting was presided over by Mr. F. D. Loomis, Secretary of the Chicago Branch and Mr. Eugene T. Lees was present and made an address outlining future activities and emphasizing the importance of the work. Mr. Lees is filling the vacancy made by Mr. Hopkins, who is going into new fields.

Surely no soldier or sailor in the Great Chicago district need feel lonesome or bored when he has leave of absence for the War Camp Community Service sees to it that every moment of his time may be filled with interesting, wholesome recreation. Practically every big club in Chicago has opened its doors to men in uniform. There is the Soldiers' and Sailors' beautiful club located at 265 W. Washington St., a five story building devoted entirely to meeting the needs of the men in uniform. It is their club and Uncle Sam's uniform is all that is needed to become a member. This club has all the modern conveniences of the most up-to-date club. There is a lobby, dining room, ladies' waiting room, billiard and pool room, gymnasium and shower baths, barber and tailor shop, and a place in the basement for boys to do their own laundry. They are now installing a small hospital room where boys who are passing through the city and need rest and medical care can get it. This club has had as high as nine thousand guests in a single day. Miss Dodson and Miss Tracey are on duty every day as hostesses and they have a card index of all the homes and attractions open to men in uniform.

The new hostess house in Grant Park is almost completed. This house will be run under the direction of Mrs. Keeley. This Club will be known as "The Khaki and Blue."

Dozens of parties and dances are given each week end under the direction of the War Camp Community Service. Every town along the north shore from Great Lakes to Chicago has a very active little club of its own. These small clubs are only little nuclei as it were, from which all kinds of good things radiate.

The past week has been a rather poor one at our Army and Navy Center. The withdrawal of the S. A. T. C. camp and the quarantine at Great Lakes left very few men in our midst. However there were enough fresh recruits from Camp Grant to make away with the very liberal supply of refreshments furnished for Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Miss Galkins, the new play director, has arranged an interesting program for her Saturday night party, but it was postponed until the quarantine is raised. Through the generosity of the school board the War Camp Community Service has been given the use of the high school gymnasium for dances and parties on Saturday evenings. This will fill a much needed want. The Army and Navy Center wishes to thank all those who so generously supplied them with new books and magazines. They were badly needed as the shelves were almost bare.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the War Camp Community Service. The work done by this great organization extends to nearly every community in the United States where men in uniform congregate. The main headquarters of this activity is in Washington and it is directly under governmental supervision and approval.

A musical reading by Miss Jessie Harding and Miss Priscilla Carver for the benefit of the hospital work of the Army and Navy Center of Highland Park will be given Saturday evening, Sept. 28, at 8:00 o'clock at the home of Mrs. George W. Roberts, 312 S. Sheridan Road. Tickets may be had at the Army and Navy Center for $1.00 each.

SONS IN SERVICE. If you are in possession of interesting letters from men in service overseas, loan them, or parts of them, to the Press for publication in this column. To circulate these letters and permit others with boys in service to read them is a patriotic duty and a kindness. It will lighten many a dark corner for those whose letters from over there are not so frequent. It takes time for those busy men to write a long and interesting account for family and friends at home, and if they knew the pleasure they are able to give to many mothers in Highland Park, they would not hesitate to have their letters printed. The following is a letter received by Mrs. Merril Pollansbee from her husband, First Lieut. in the American Red Cross, A. E. F. August 23rd, 1918. First of all I am well and feeling fine. We have been going at such a clip that I haven't had time to write a long letter until now. I wrote you one letter on the boat but could not describe the trip so will have to postpone it until after the war. We had an uneventful voyage and didn't see a submarine for which I was very thankful. We were given life-preservers as soon as we started and boat drill nearly every day. We had to have our life preservers with us all the time and we feel now not wearing one or having it on our arm. I was glad I didn't get one of those suit life preservers. No one did have them and I have heard that when a certain boat was sunk the only passenger who had one of them did not get it on exactly right and he was the only one lost. During the day when we could see around we didn't seem to care much about the submarines but the nights gave us a different feeling especially when we had all our clothes off and were in our berths and it was dark as pitch. We used to sit up and play cards every night until eleven and we had a congenial bunch of fellows. We had mighty cold weather all the way. When we got to Liverpool it was some time before we could disembark and when we did, we took the train for London getting there at ten thirty at night without any baggage as we didn't get to the train in time. We were put up at a cheap hotel but there was very little complaint as most of us came over here to help and not find fault. That night was clear and a full moon so half a dozen of us took a walk and went all over the place until I was tired out. In the morning Mr. Wessels telephoned that we were going across the Channel in the afternoon, eight of us. With Mr. Wallace as an advanced party. We are the only ones who have had experience in military camps so I had to go to the American and French consuls and have my passport fixed up and we sure had to hurry. Luckily our baggage came and was sent down to Southampton in time for the boat. We had to sit up all night in chairs as all the berths were taken. I can't sleep in a chair so went out on deck early and saw the sun come up—a beautiful sight. In Havre we got our money changed at American Express and then went to the beach to watch the bathing. While there we saw some American soldiers marching and it sure was hot. A captain called to us and told us that some of his men had dropped with the heat and we had our first chance to do Red Cross service. We stopped an American ambulance and got in and went back and soon came to some fellows beside of the road. We got them some wine and beer for which the woman said she did not care to charge the Americans anything. She also made some tea and as they were not in very bad shape, we went on down the street and found others stretched out. Luckily there was a British hospital near and we picked up a load of fellows and took them there and then got two more loads. These fellows rested in the basement of the hospital and four of them were in such bad shape that we took them upstairs and had them entered in the hospital. Mr. Wessels and I carried one stretcher, then when the others had rested we got two trucks and put them in with their heavy packs and picked up the first lot also who were waiting and sent them to camp in the trucks. It sure pleased us to see some service the first day we arrived in France. We then went back to the railway station to get the afternoon train for Paris and missed it as the Red Cross man didn't show up with our military passes to get out of town. So we went back to the hotel and stayed all night and came here on the morning train today. I was rather glad of it too as it gave us a good night's sleep and enabled us to see the beautiful country by day light. It is certainly beautiful fields well tilled. We saw lots of prisoners and passed a couple of trains of prisoners which we thought were just taken. We were sure glad to hear the news when we landed. It looks as though we had the Germans on the rim. We don't hear so much about the war news as we have at home in the Chicago papers so you will probably be better posted on the news than I will be. This is a fine hotel. Our room is only fifteen francs a day, including meals. They have no sugar or butter and one must have bread tickets to get bread, otherwise they have about everything. The city is not gay as before the war and most of the houses have their blinds up and all windows have strips of paper pasted on them to keep them from breaking from the concussion of bombs. There are not many people on the streets and we were told with a laugh that we could get plenty of rooms in Paris—there are no visitors here. Otherwise it is the same beautiful city. We went to the Red Cross and registered and filled out papers and were told to come back in the morning at ten o'clock. I think we will be told what commissions we will get in the morning. I think I will get only a first Lieutenant and I will be right proud to get that as I have met numbers of men here in the Red Cross. Older than I am who are privates. My year's service begins from the day I sailed. Mr. Wessels has been taking a French lesson from one of the ladies here who runs the hotel. He is strong for the French people already and wants to learn the language in a hurry but he cannot say a word yet. Our hotel is near the Arc. We will be here until the latter part of next week.
