

Clothing Must Be Conserved

The Government has commandeered the Country's entire supply of Wool—must have it for our boys "over there."

This means economy in woollens heretofore unknown.

Here is where the Master Cleaner can perform a real service. Thorough cleansing at proper intervals almost doubles the life and usefulness of any woolen garment.

Call the Reliable Laundry, Master Cleaners. They can keep your new garment new or make your old ones do. Be sure you call a cleaner who displays the Master Cleaner emblem. It is your guarantee of master service—the service that is the need of the hour.

SONS IN SERVICE

Short news items concerning the Highland Park boys in service are earnestly solicited for this column. If you have interesting letters, loan them to the Press for publication so that others may read them. We want to hear from the boys in service in this country as well as overseas. All letters loaned for this purpose will be carefully handled and promptly returned.

The following interesting letter was received by Mrs. Daniel Cobb from her son, Daniel L. Cobb, on board ship:

On Board, Mid-Ocean.

Dearest Family:—

We're having a swell time of it on this voyage. All went well for about twenty-four hours, till we ran into a stiff north-east wind. For three days the gale blew and I frequented the rail, but even if I was seasick, so was almost everybody else in the detachment and I wasn't the first or the worst. Am now somewhat accustomed to the motion, but no ocean pleasure trip for mine.

The meals were fine at first when I couldn't eat them, even now they are better than we got at Camp. They tell us we can't give any definite information like—Just when we sailed—on what boat—where we land, etc., so I can only say we were very slow in getting started, and so very slow in getting across. Have only had my clothes off once since coming aboard and that was when I took a salt water shower bath—neither have I had a close shave for some time,—in fact am growing a mustache which bids fair to approach the perfection of Melville's before I land.

Our principal occupation is searching for the softest (?), most sheltered spot on deck where we can snuggle as the most of us only use our bunk for a store place. We wear life jackets all the time that makes us resemble eskimos. I am enclosing a snap photo to show mother the overseas cap I'm sporting. We all take turns on submarine watch. I was on mid-night watch for several nights when the stars and phosphorescence on the water were more beautiful than I have ever seen them. During the night I counted five shooting stars. The sunsets too, over in the west where home and you all are, are wonderful.

We have for amusement on board a fairly good library of books, a phonograph, cards, quoits, boxing gloves, a piano in the smoking room which we use in the evening for a song-fest, and the boat mascot, a trained dog, also plenty of horse-play on the part of the boys themselves. They sometimes pull off quite funny and really clever jokes and remarks on each other. Everybody is making more or less of a bluff of studying French, and the varied pronunciations would surely distract a Frenchman.

We still have no definite knowledge of just where we're going to be located, but if it is behind the lines I imagine we will be able to name the town and tell something of the nature of our work. We are all betting as to the exact day we'll land and the port where we shall disembark. The crew seem to think we shall land at a port I never heard of before, as we have changed our course, but I'm not worrying as to what port.

Will leave the rest of this page to describe anything that happens on the rest of the trip.....

Three Days Later

This little ocean excursion of Uncle Sam's is getting monotonous—nothing to see but sea, though they say that we are on French soil and that the nearest land is only about three miles away (straight down). You'll get my "arrived safely" post card released as soon as news is cabled that our ship is in—long before this reaches you. Am going to hand this letter in to the censor aboard now so it will go out as soon as we land.

It sure seems ages since I've heard from home. I am out of touch with everything.

Remember me to everybody.
Au Revoir,
DAN.

FIRST UNITED EVAN.

Since health conditions are so much better it is quite certain that all the regular church services can be held on next Sunday. How much we have missed the inspiration and fellowship of God's house! Mr. Henry Morganthau says: "The moral issues of this era are the greatest in the history of the world." The masses are morally unprepared for these days. A faithful presentation of the essential message of God's Word and the whole-hearted reception of that message is the need of the hour.

The following is the program for the services next Sunday:
9:30 a. m.—Sunday school. Lesson, "Abraham Giving Isaac to God." Gen. 22:1-14.

10:45 a. m.—Morning service. Sermon on "Overcoming Sorrow." Ps. 28: 1, 6, 7.

6:45 p. m. — Christian Endeavor meeting. Topic, "What is Christian Citizenship?" Isa. 62:1-7.
7:30 p. m. — Song Service and sermon on "When a Jailor Wanted Salvation." Acts 16:30.

We hope to be able to begin our evangelistic meetings on Sunday, November 3. A definite announcement concerning our Rally Day exercises will be made on next Sunday. The next meeting of the W. M. S. will be held at the home of Mrs. Paul Gieser on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 24.

The government won't have to work very hard to discourage building operations among any persons who have observed the charges you have to pay for wages on construction jobs.

LAKE COUNTY HAS FIRST WOMAN LAWYER

Miss Lavina M. Sylvester is Waukegan's first woman lawyer. It was announced Saturday at Springfield that she has passed the state examination for admission to the bar, according to a report submitted to the supreme court by the state board of law examiners.

The only requirements needed to entitle her to practice in court is her license which will be issued in a short time without further examinations of conditions.

Miss Sylvester is one of Waukegan's best known young women, both socially and in business circles. She is unusually intelligent and alert and her success in her chosen profession is assured.

Why Advertised Stores Succeed

When a man gets out after trade, he gives the impression that he has initiative and enterprise. He is evidently not satisfied to do business in the old rut, the same that he or his father or the merchant across the way did last year. So the man who advertises shows that he is looking for new customers, new friends, new trade.

The public takes very kindly to that type of a man. They believe that the man who shows a go-ahead spirit in his selling, will show it in his buying too. They feel that the same initiative will lead him to make extra effort to get values at the lowest possible prices, and to give his customers the advantage.

They feel that the man whose initiative is proved by his advertising, will show that enterprise by offering his goods at specially good values. That is why newspaper advertising finds immediate response in an increased stream of customers to an advertised store.

JACKIES BUILDING NEW BRIDGE

Captain Moffet has taken it upon himself to put into good condition the bridge on Sheridan Road in Lake Bluff, which has been closed for some time by order of the town authorities. With the promise that the money will be later refunded, he has personally borrowed the $4000 necessary to do the repair work.

A working party of bluejackets from the station has been sent down to Lake Bluff and to the sound of the bugle calling "start firing" the boys from Great Lakes are giving an exhibition of expeditious bridge building which will astonish the natives.
