BOYS IN SERVICE

Another interesting letter has come to the Press from Mr. Merritt Leroy, now in Chaumont, France.

How the Boys Are Started Home
Now that the boys are coming home from France, it might be interesting to know what method is used to start them on their way. The 77th Division entrained at two points—La Tracey and Brionn. The division consists of 1303 enlisted men and 346 officers. These were billeted at many different points in every direction from the points of entrainment, some in barracks, some in houses some in barns and lofts over barns—the farthest point being about eighteen kilometers from entrainment.

To entrain this number of troops involves a great deal of effort on the part of the transportation department and all other departments.

The first move out of the quarters includes a personal inspection of the men and their personal equipment and the quarters which they are leaving. Every place must be left in a first class sanitary condition. Each man marches in formation with full equipment, pack, rifle, etc., to train. The weather is colder than has been seen in France for a number of years, the roads were icy and slippery, and marching under such conditions was unusually tiresome and disagreeable.

Imagine, if you can, a body of men marching in the cold, loaded down with their packs weighing about 75 pounds going to train, and when they arrive at the railroad to have to stay around a while in the cold. Just about that time, something warm to drink and something to eat comes in play. That is where the Y. M. C. A. had its chance. The entrainment took five full days, and each day from 4000 to 5000 cups of cocoa and the same number of sandwiches were given out, and also a package of cigarettes to each man. The Y men and girls were assisted by details of privates and each one did their share to see that every man had a package of cigarettes, a sandwich, and a cup of cocoa without having to pay anything for it. And for those who wanted to purchase a greater supply for their journey on the train, a special effort was made and five carloads of canteen goods were in another tent where each man could buy whatever he desired.

After this was over the men were marched to the train, a certain number to each box car. In each car was a supply of straw, and after all the men were in the cars the Army quartermaster issued to each man three days' rations for the trip on the train to the port of embarkation.

One great feature noticeable is the cheerfulness of our boys in khaki. The weather is cold, suffering must be endured hardships faced and he does it like the man that he is laughing the form-in-line mess. Cheerfully they stand in line waiting their turn to get a cup of hot chocolate and a cheery smile from the Y girl. Noisily they board the train for the long cold ride and vociferously they bid goodbye to the secretaries and girls they are leaving behind them. These latter then rest up and proceed to another entrainment of a division and assist in their departure.

One incident I noticed when the men came marching in from the farthest point to the train. The first lieutenant was carrying the rifle and pack of a private in addition to his own outfit, the man being able to walk, but not strong enough to carry his pack. In all this work the prevailing spirit is one of co-operation between officers and men and the Y workers.

Any private is ready upon request to help a Y man or girl. And every officer cheerfully lent his aid to forward any work that the Y was doing for the boys.

The fact that they were all Americans, all in a foreign country has bound the A. E. F. of all branches in one great union of fraternity and the A. E. F. will return to their homes better prepared to assume the duties and privileges of the American citizen.

The SEDAN

A Car that Combines the Advantages of Open and Enclosed Cars

The Franklin Sedan

In this car, enclosed-car comfort has, from the first, gone hand in hand with open-car economy and roadability.

The Sedan, pioneered in this country by the Franklin Company, is now delivering to owners a daily average of 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline—instead of 10

10,000 miles to the set of tires—instead of 5,000

It differs from the other enclosed cars in being just as comfortable on country roads as on city streets—a quality that adds greatly to its all-around usefulness.

For winter driving, the Franklin Sedan is always ready for use. Its Direct Air Cooling means no water to freeze—no complicated parts to get out of order. Quick starting and smooth running in the coldest weather make Franklin dependability even more evident.

You are seeing more Franklin Sedans in all parts of the country, running lightly, comfortably, and rendering a high type of service. The reason for this popularity is easily demonstrated by a ride in the car, any time at your convenience.
