What this diploma means to the women of Highland Park

first--

It means that the women of Highland Park may receive at this corset department the authoritative advice of a highly trained corset expert. This service places you under no obligation.

second--

Our graduate corsetiere is not only specially trained in all branches of corset fitting, but has made a careful study of the prevailing fashions in all branches of women's apparel.

third--

The new Spring Fashions ask for a natural, graceful figure that can only be attained by the most careful corseting. This subtle relation between Gossards and the new mode can be convincingly demonstrated by our corset expert.

fourth--

A special course in medical fittings enables her to give competent attention to any special corseting which a physician may prescribe. She will serve you at the department, at the doctor's office, or at your home.

fifth

This diploma assures the women of Highland Park that they will find at this corset department that complete understanding of modern, hygienic corsetry that guarantees them the ideal proportions of their figure types, with priceless comfort and an

DEERFIELD NEWS ITEMS

Mr. Samuel Hole of Lexington, Ky., is visiting at the home of his mother, Mrs. L. C. Hole.

Mrs. B. H. Kress left Thursday for Fargo, N. D., where she will be the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. M. McKellar.

The Parent Teacher Association of the Deerfield Grammar School has discontinued the serving of warm cocoa and soup at noon to the pupils. For the past three years cocoa has been served to the children and teachers for a penny a cup. Enough profit was made last year to buy a service flag for the school. Over 100 pupils were served each day in the lunch room of the school. All the serving and dish washing was done by the girls of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

After the harness shop occupied by Phillip Rommel has been remodeled, Theodore Knaak will move into it.

Virgil Selig had as his week end guests William Hodgson of Chicago and Edward Therrien of Highland Park.

Mr. and Mrs. George Pfister and family of Highland Park were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Lange Sunday.

Mr. Lyman Wilmot, for many years a prominent resident of Deerfield, died at his home in Eggon, Washington, a peninsula on Puget Sound, on Saturday, April 5, and was buried here April 7.

Mr. Wilmot was born in Deerfield April 28, 1841, and was the son of Lyman and Clarissa Dwight Wilmot. He was a charter member of the Presbyterian church and was an elder at the time of his death.

Fifteen years ago, the Wilmot homestead, now occupied by Chester Wolf, was sold and Lyman Wilmot went to Waukegan to live with his brother, Warren, staying there for about five years during which time his brother died but Lyman remained with the family. From there he went to Washington and lived with a niece, Elsie Ludlow for some time, after which he went to Eggon and lived by himself.

Mr. Wilmot had been ailing since last November with dropsy. He went to Seattle and doctored for several months, but received no help, his age being against him. He was never a very well man and it is a wonder that he lived as long as he did. He leaves to survive him three brothers, Levi, of Washington, and Porter and Rosel of Colorado, two nephews, Mr. George Gutzler of Deerfield, and L. J. Wilmot of Waukegan.

Spring Improvements

Few things give more pleasure and satisfaction than living in a beautiful town. One may not have much money to spend on the development of his home place. But whoever raises fine trees, shrubs, and flowers, gives pleasure to all his townspeople. And all can help maintain that order which is the foundation of all beauty.

To secure a town of this kind takes constant effort and vigilance. The general run of people are careless, and they are very busy. If a few people on the street are indifferent about maintaining order, the bad example effects the whole neighborhood.

So there needs to be a persistent campaign to create higher standards of care of the exterior of homes and public places. The desire should be cultivated for such improvements as will beautify the community and all its dwellings.

Lingering in the Cities

Chambers of Commerce have been urged to suggest to discharged soldiers who are lingering in the large cities, that they would do well to return to their homes.

Many of the soldiers say they don't propose to go to work for anywhere from 30 days to a year. After living in trenches with water six inches deep, and going over the top occasionally for variety they naturally look for a period of simple life.

The soldiers may very naturally like a period of relief from war discipline and from the strain of fighting. But the best place to get that relief is right in their home towns. There are too many people in the big cities who would like to take advantage of them. Their home towns are waiting to give them the biggest kind of a welcome, also to do everything possible to give them a start in some good kind of work.

The people who throw away waste paper on the streets probably don't feel at home unless the town looks as dirty as their dwellings.

People who are looking for jobs who won't recklessly work themselves out of a job, might try the officials that have been reporting army casualties.

The four hour a day workers will probably go home and claim that are oppressed by the boss, who works eight at the office and spends eight hours more planning how to keep the business going.

Now that the government has called for 50,000 volunteers to go some of these fellows who were bitterly disappointed that they didn't go, have found that urgent duty compels them to stay at home.
