UNITED EVANGELICAL

This week has a full program. The regular monthly business and social meeting of the Baraca class was held Tuesday night at the home of Mr. Walter Tillman in the country. The senior prayer meeting was held at the home of Mr. Herman Dreinke of Ravinia, and the junior class at the church parlor, on Wednesday night.

The annual Sunday school picnic will be held at Forrest Woods near Deerfield Saturday July 19. Autos will leave the church at the corner of Green Bay road and Laurel avenue at 8:30 and 10:00 a. m. for transportation to the grounds of all who wish to attend. Committees have been appointed to provide for the amusements and the eats and everything else that makes a number 1 picnic.

The Sunday services are as follows:

been prepared under the leadership of Miss Frances Fritsch, among other good things an illustrated talk by Mr. Pace, cartoonist for the Sunday School Times. An offering will be received for the special work in which the Mission Band is striving for.

PATRIOTIC LEAGUE

The new tennis courts for the use of the members of the Patriotic League are nearing completion, but they will not be complete until they have a net. Is there anyone in this community who has a tennis net that is not in use? If so the League would greatly appreciate it if one might be donated to them.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY UNION

The first of the annual Poreh Meetings of the Missionary Union of the Presbyterian church was held at the Manse on Monday afternoon, July 14. These are always delightful occasions of the summer months and this was no exception. Although the temperature was high, the torrid wave did not wilt the enthusiasm of the hour and a large number of women gathered on the spacious porch.

Mrs. Pitt very ably presented the topic of the afternoon, "Americanization and Labor Legislation for Women." She said, "In the last two or three years we have become very conscious of the fact that many are living here in America who do not conform to the American type—have not been Americanized. The war helped to force this realization upon us. We realized we must have unity. And then we began to wonder to what extent we are guilty. As a result the work of Americanization has been pushed to a greater degree than ever before.

"The work now takes various forms. In its simplest form it is that of English classes, though the visiting nurses have been longer in operation. What is the object of these various kinds of work? It is the teaching of American ideals. What is the American standard? It is a complex thing made up of various factors brought by different peoples. We do not wish to make them conform to us, but to bring out and preserve the best from each race that comes to us." This does not mean that we should preserve an Italian colony where only the Italian language and customs prevail. It means we must use one language in America, but not that we shall banish from our schools the study of all others. True Americanization involves both the conserving and the using of the good elements of each race that comes to us."

Turning to the industrial life of the immigrant, Mrs. Pitt said, "The immigrant is becoming Americanized whether he will or no. The slums are not European but American. The immigrants are accepting our customs—as in the matter of marriage and social relations of young people. Their politics are learned first from the ward boss. In industry the immigrant is becoming Americanized. He goes into the poorest paid occupations with the longest hours and the worst sanitary conditions."

Mrs. Pitt said, "There is one thing that we, as a group of women, can do. We can work for the passage of better labor laws for women in Illinois. In 1910 over 400,000 women were employed in gainful occupations in Illinois. A large percentage of these were foreign-born. They did not know the English language or how to form unions to protect themselves. Only three states in the country employ as many women as Illinois and yet the labor laws for women in this state are the worst. The thing we need to do now is to bring Illinois up to the level of the other states, at least. It is now legal for women in this state to be employed ten hours a day. Twenty-seven states have better laws regarding the hours of work. Night work is allowed here. Thirteen states prohibit it. The appointment of a Minimum Wage Commission is another needed step. Twelve states have it but Illinois has not.

"Better laws would give the foreign woman who does not know the language a better chance to protect herself. Long hours and unsanitary conditions in women's work react on the home and community. Better laws are needed to preserve the standards and health of the community at large."

"We are responsible for keeping the American standards high. As Christian women we are responsible to the Master Himself. Our American mission is to provide a haven for all peoples. We are challenged to show the world that we can take all the elements that come to us and weld them into a fine American ideal."

At the close of this most inspiring talk by Mrs. Pitt, tea was served by the entertainment committee, and a most enjoyable social time was spent.
