

PEARL THEATRE

Program For Next Week

CUT OUT AND PRESERVE

SUNDAY, AUGUST 10 Wallace Reid in "THE LOVE BURGLAR" Paramount Production Famous Players Photograph Pathe News and Fox Comedy Admission 12c; war tax 3c MONDAY, AUGUST 11 Dorothy Gish in "SUGGET NELL" Paramount Production Lord Dunsley and Celebrated News Admission 12c; war tax 2c TUESDAY, AUGUST 12 Markarita Fisher in "TRIXIE FROM BROADWAY" Pathe Production "THE LIBERATOR" Bee Hive Cartoon Admission 12c; war tax 2c WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 13 Cora Kimball Young in "THE BETTER WIFE" Select Production Pathe News and Fox Comedy Admission 12c; war tax 2c	THURSDAY, AUGUST 14 Mary Miles Minter in "THE BACHELOR'S WIFE" Pathe Production Pathe News and Fox Comedy Admission 12c; war tax 2c FRIDAY, AUGUST 15 Vivian Martin in "LOUISIANA" Paramount Production Arbuckle Comedy Mutt and Jeff Celebrated Outing Picture Admission 12c; war tax 2c SATURDAY, AUGUST 16 Pearl Shepard and Raymond Blomer "BREAK THE NEWS TO MOTHER" Select Production Horton Holmes Travelogue Mack Sennett Comedy Matinee at 2:30 Admission 22c; war tax 3c
---	---

Delicious Soft Drinks

LOMAX GINGER ALE AND ROOT BEER
PRIMO MALT
Pure — Delicious — Wholesome

Dr. Sweet's Root Beer and Primo Ginger Ale

Philip Goldberg DISTRIBUTOR

Telephones: 891-Y-3 and 641-
PROMPT DELIVERY PRICES REASONABLE

WANTED, FOR RENT, FOR SALE

COALE & SON

Theatre Building
HIGHLAND PARK HOMES

FOR SALE—HOUSES

East side bargain—10 rooms, 3 baths, sleeping porch, fireplace, $19,000.

Other attractive places $6,000 to $10,000.

West side—$2,500 to $12,000.

Lots 100' x 200, $25 to $60 per ft.

Lots 50' x 150, $20 to $35 per ft.

Acre, $500 and up.

SEE US FOR BARGAINS

COALE & SON

18 So. First St. Phone 17

BUY A HOME

FOR SALE—4 room house, electric light, gas, furnace, $2000. Tel. 266. 23

FOR SALE—Household furniture, complete six room set. Must be sold immediately. Now located at Lake Forest. For particulars address N. W. Goodman, P. O. Box 455, Lake Forest. 23pd

For Sale—One (fumed oak dining table, 6 chairs to match, 1 fumed oak library table, 2 fumed oak rockers, 1 fumed oak straight chair, 1 white enamel iron bed, spring and mattress, 1 separate spring, 4 kitchen chairs, 1 kitchen table, 1 high chair, 1 vacuum cleaner, 1 bedroom rug. Tel. H. P. 1084. 23pd

FOR RENT

FOR RENT—Two or three nice rooms with bath, suitable for couple employed. Address North Ave., Highland, next house to Catholic church, west. 23pd

WANTED TO RENT—By the Y. W. C. A. a large roomy comfortable house to be used as a boarding home for young women. Call Mrs. Searcy, 675, for further particulars. 23

HELP WANTED

WANTED—Lady Clothes Ironers, $13.00. Boys or girls for press machines. Girls over 16 years for flat work ironers, $12.00. Marker and Sorter. The Reliable Laundry, Highland Park, Ill. Telephone H. P. 178. 17 ft

WANTED—Girl for general house work. No laundry. Adults only. Good wages. 6138 Judson Ave. Ravinia. 23 pd

WANTED—Cook for family of 4 adults. Tel. 106 H. P. 23

WANTED—Laundress, Mondays and Tuesdays. Mrs. Frank Montgomery, 315 Central avenue. Tel. 1350. 23

WANTED—Laundress, one day a week. Call 1073. 23

WANTED—Messenger boy West-Union. Four Hours Daily. Good Opportunity for Ambitious Boy. Apply at Western Union Office. 23

SITUATION WANTED

WANTED—Work of any kind by girl of 14. Tel. 906. 23

SITUATION WANTED—Man for garden and housework. Middle aged. Address XX Press Office. 23 pd

SITUATION WANTED—Work by the day. Experienced house, lawn and furnace man. Handy with tools. Tel. 764M. 23pd

SITUATION WANTED—By two sisters as waitress and upstairs maid or second maid and nurse. Phone H. P. 1000. 23-pd

LOST

LOST—Gold Bar pin, probably in Pearl movie theatre last week. Reward. Tel. 682. 23

PUPPY LOST

$25 reward, no questions asked, for return of male Airedale puppy. Lost Sunday p. m., July 13, vicinity of Central Avenue and N. W. Station at North Shore line, Highland Park. Black body, four brown feet and brown markings on face. Pet of children at 317 Hazel Ave. Reward for information leading to his recovery. Tel. H. P. 334. 23

MISCELLANEOUS

WANTED—Baby carriages, children's clothes, shoes for Arden Shore. Please send clothing to Miss K. G. Yoe, 160 Hazel Ave. Tel. H. P. 226. tpd

FREE—Filling dirt. Tel. 843J. 369 Bloom St. 15 ft.

AUTOMOBILES—Leading manufacturer of nationally known cars and trucks is seeking connection with aggressive and responsible dealer in this territory. New six cylinder car ready for delivery in immediate future. In making reply give full particulars and makes of cars now handled. Mr. Preston, 201 Garriek Bldg., Chicago. 23 pd

SUMMER TUTORING—Latin a specialty. S. H. Newhall Ph. D. Head of Latin in the Deerfield Shields High School. Tel. 718W. 337 Orchard Lane. 23 ft

TO CALL LOCAL POST
"DUMARESQ SPENCER"
(Continued from Page 1)

enlistment and who are again citizens at the time of the application, excepting those persons separated from the service under terms amounting to dishonorable discharge, and except also those persons who refused to perform their military duties on the ground of conscientious objection.

In order to procure a provisional charter for this Post, the application must be signed by at least fifteen local applicants. The minimum dues for each member is $2.00 per annum. At the meeting on Tuesday evening, Mr. Fred Fulmer, of Highland Park as temporary chairman, and Mr. Harry E. Eichler, of Highland Park as temporary secretary, until such time as the Highland Park Post is organized. The local membership committee consists of Mr. Melville Cobb, Mr. Osborne Hjelte and Mr. Jas. P. Hickey. Meetings will be held every Tuesday evening at the Community House until further notice and it is anticipated that several prominent speakers will be heard at these meetings in the near future.

The boys of Highland Park and vicinity who have served during the past war, or are still in service, are to become associated members of the American Legion and help make the "Dumaresq Spencer" Post a pride to our community. Their slogan is AMERICAN LEGION, 100% AMERICAN. Whether you served as a commissioned officer or as an ordinary private or gub in the Army or Navy, there is no distinction or preference. While every member is required to perform his full duty as a citizen according to his own conscience and understanding, the organization shall be absolutely non-partisan and free from politics.

JOIN NOW! For further information apply to Mr. Harris, at the Community Service House.

Col. Reilley of the famous Black Hawk Division will address the local post Wednesday evening.

ICE MAKING MACHINE
INSTALLED AT PALACE

The shortage of ice and its high price will no longer be a terror to the Palace Cash Market. This week they have installed one of the latest improved ice-making machines of one ton capacity. By this new process of refrigerating they will be able to cool their ice box to a temperature of 20 degrees above zero, however, most of the time it will be kept about one degree above freezing. The machine is manufactured by the National Machine Co. of Milwaukee and represents the very latest and most improved type of ice machines on the market. These machines are made from a half ton to a thirty ton capacity and a number of other business men are thinking of installing them.

"NOTHING DOING" IN COTTON

Kitchen Maids of Sultan of Morocco Entitled to Nether Garments of Expensive Stuff.

The sultan of Morocco was always an absolute monarch, and in that capacity the revenues of the country were his. There had never been any distinction between public funds and private funds—all belonged to the sultan. It was therefore no easy task to arrive at an agreement as to which were state and which private debts, so inextricably mixed had they been in the past. There was, for instance, a bill for some hundreds of yards of very expensive and very fine crimson cloth. Naturally the protectorate authorities scheduled this among the private debts. The sultan protested. The cloth, he said, had been purchased for governmental purposes—in fact for the trousers of the Imperial kitchen maids; for there are several hundred palace women employed in preparing the sultan's food. The protectorate government refused to be responsible for this debt. The ex-sultan drew up a historical treatise to prove that Imperial kitchen maids were part and parcel of the state, and passed, like the sultan himself, from sultan to sultan. The principle was accepted, but the debt was disallowed on the ground that those good ladies did not require such expensive stuff for their nether garments. A cotton material, they argued, would have equally well served the purpose. The sultan's body was unassailable and crushing. "In Europe," he said, "it may be the custom for the Imperial kitchen maids to wear cotton trousers, but in Morocco we have more appreciation of the dignity of their position." There was nothing more to be said. The debt was paid—by the protectorate government. From "The Liquidation of a Sultanate," by W. B. Harris, in "Asia" magazine.

SKILLFUL IN USE OF POISON

South African Bushmen Had Weapon Which in Other Hands Might Have Been Invincible.

The bushmen, Africa's pygmies of the South, who succumbed so quickly to civilization, are becoming rarer every day. Famine, wars and the white man's encroachments have killed off thousands.

The one great achievement of these children of the woods is their skillful use of poisons. In the hands of a more subtle people the poisoned arrow might have been an invincible weapon, but for the bushman it only delayed inevitable defeat.

The bushman's arrow is a toy of certain death dealer by covering the tip with one of his favorite poisons. A certain caterpillar of the jungle, the most venomous snakes and spiders, poisonous roots and leaves all yield their power to kill to the use of these natives.

Special men of the tribe prepare the poisons for their purpose, usually heating them in a dish before dipping the dart into them. While waiting for their poisons to brew to cook, the poison concoctors dance about the fire in excitement at the coming hunt or combat. Skulking in breathless silence upon an imaginary enemy, they suddenly leap up and discharge the fatal arrows, after which they shift easily to the part of the victim, and writhe and howl with all the agony of the hunted. Exhaustion and the completion of the poison put an end to this vivid rehearsal.

LIES FAR BELOW SEA LEVEL

Forbidding Death Valley, in California, Was Formerly the Bed of a Salt Lake.

Death valley, California, is said to be the lowest dry land in the United States; it is 276 feet below sea level. The name of Death valley is gruesome enough in itself, but to enhance this effect the mountains thereabouts are called the Funeral range.

While Death valley is the lowest dry land in the country Mount Whitney, which is less than eighty miles from the point of lowest depression, is one of the highest points of land in the United States, its summit being 14,501 feet above sea level.

Death valley was formerly the bed of a salt lake and is 150 miles in length. A small salt marsh still occupies a part of it. There are few places in Death valley where fresh water is obtainable. The best known are Bennett wells and Saratoga springs.

For the greater part of the time Death valley is a gigantic furnace of burning hot shifting sand dunes. At times this strange desert is filled with wonderful colors. The air is very dry, and at dawn the light is very white and minus the mist usually associated with that time of day. Gradually a faint azure tint appears and deepens above the gray-tan dunes. As the sun rises over the desert the pastel tints of sky and sands burn into brighter shades until at noon the very atmosphere vibrates into hot vividness. Toward twilight the reds of sky and desert shade into deep purples and black.

FOLLOWED PATHS OF PEACE

Aborigines of Texas Unlike the Fierce Tribes of Other Sections of the Country.

Stone implements found in ancient workshops in Texas, antedating French, Spanish or American settlers, prove that the original settlers of this state were not like the fierce tribes encountered in modern times by the white settlers.

Little is known about the aboriginal population of Texas, which lies between the Pueblo and mound builders' area, but Dr. J. Walter Fawkes, chief of the American bureau of ethnology, allied by Professor Pence of the University of Texas, have located some long-forgotten village sites. Their investigations lead to the belief that the original people of the middle part of the eastern part near the timber belt, were followers of agricultural pursuits and were skilled in the manufacture of pottery. They resembled the mound builders. The western part of the state was a more elevated and less arid plateau. Here the people resembled the Pueblos of New Mexico. Some of the tribes are reported to have been cannibals. In the opening of the eighteenth century Apaches, Comanches and other savage tribes ranged over Texas, following the buffalo, or raiding across it into Mexico. There seems to have been constant hostility with these Indians, in which many smaller tribes were exterminated.

REMARKABLE CHIMPANZEE DIES

A few weeks ago there died a chimpanzee who had spent the eight years of his life defying all rules laid down for the well being of chimpanzees. His name was Antony, and he was the only one of his tribe of monkeys who has ever managed to stand an English climate unscathed by artificial heat.

He came from the Congo in 1911, when he was very young and small. At that time he weighed 14 pounds, by last summer he was just six times as heavy. During the whole period of his civilized life he was kept in a brick building facing southwest and unheated, and he slept in straw without blankets. Chocolates and sweets—poison to ordinary chimpanzees—were the special treats of Antony's dietary, and he had a less comprehensible fancy for beans.—Manchester Guardian.

THE "AMEN CORNER"

The phrase "amen corner" is said to have originated in London, where, at the end of Paternoster row, the monks at one time finished their recitation of the "Pater Noster" as they went in procession on Corpus Christi day to St. Paul's cathedral. They began in Paternoster row with the Lord's prayer in Latin, continuing it to the end of the street, and then said "amen" at the corner of the row. As used in this country the phrase described the corner of a church where the elderly members sit and pronounce the word "amen" at intervals.

FISHERMAN'S MASCOT

A mascot to which deep-sea fishermen attach great importance is a tiny fish stone or bone found in the ear of a fish and other fish. The wearer of one of these stones is supposed to be immune to the danger of drowning. It is easy to find these stones in the ears of fish, although they are no bigger than a split lentil. Anybody who cares to look for one and to examine it will see on its surface light and dark rings similar to those found on a larger scale in tree trunks. The number of rings tells the age of the fish, as a new ring appears each year.

COOKING FOR CUPTID

By ESTHER MILLER.

"Is that your last word, mother?" asked Marion, her voice quivering and the long-suppressed tears slowly rolling her eyes.

Mrs. Harrison lowered the book she had been reading, tried to smother a yawn with two bejeweled fingers, and adjusting her glasses, looked up at her daughter. Her voice was very stern when she spoke:

"My dear, don't be absurd. You have my consent to give as much of your time as you wish to war relief work and charitable functions, but don't speak to me again of cooking school and domestic science. It is another foolish idea of Harvey's that has invaded your head. Harvey's talk about independence and equality is as irresponsible as it is amusing, and his opinion of a model wife is most unwelcome."

There was fire in her eyes and a stubborn click, click when her small heels tapped against the pavement as Marion walked down the street for an hour later. Mrs. Harrison looked alone that noon, after Jane had informed her that Marion was not in the room and nowhere to be found in the house.

It was a neat, plunk-headed rather excited young person who entered Murphy's employment bureau.

Marion was hardly inside the door when she was grabbed by a sharp-eyed office assistant. "What do you want, this person inquired. 'Cooking at a chamber work, or do you want laundry work?'"

"I haven't specialized in any particular line of housework," said Marion, bravely. "I prefer to take charge of the home of a small family, she ventured on.

"I see. General housework," the assistant seemed satisfied and, turning around, called into the inner office: "Mrs. Murphy, here is a girl who wants general housework. Is Mrs. Southern still here?"

Marion was ushered into the waiting ladies' sanctum and confronted with a middle-aged, motherly looking lady. The introduction was informal. It appeared that Mrs. Southern had moved up her city house and let her servants go when her only son enlisted at the beginning of the war. She had rented a small apartment in the suburbs and devoted her time to patriotic service.

"One servant is all I need at present," she explained, "and you appear to be just the kind of a girl I would like to have around." Marion felt flattered as she was happy, over-stumbling into a position without any trouble. She agreed on the terms and promised to come that afternoon.

If ever there was an ambitious cook, waitress and chambermaid, all in one, it was Miss Harrison, queen of hearts of Lieut. Harry Ramsey. She was the first week saw "Mary" fall in most of her attempts at keeping house; the second week saw a slight improvement; the third gave fair promise, and the fourth brought forth Mrs. Southern's genuine satisfaction.

One day when "Mary" was clearing the breakfast table, Mrs. Southern came into the room, waving a telegram at her, happily: "My son has arrived from France and he writes from New York that he will be home tonight, Mary," she said. "He will be here for dinner and he is bringing a friend," she added.

Mary put her heart and soul in the preparation for that dinner. She wanted to make this homecoming doubly memorable for the mother and son.

Presently Mrs. Southern came to the door and said: "All right, Mary, we are ready." Marion proceeded to serve the soup. As she put the first platter before the hostess she could not help noticing the pleased expression on the face of the young officer to the left.

She carried in the second platter, which was just going to get it down in front of the guest of the night when all of a sudden she stopped, as if hypnotized at the sight of the wavy brown hair of the young man. The soup platter trembled in her hand, and when the owner of the brown hair turned his head toward the drooping plate, Marion gave a startled little cry and dropped the plate on the immaculate tablecloth.

The officer was on his feet before anybody had time to utter a sound.

"For heaven's sake, Marion," he cried, setting the two small white plates wandering from the frightened, bewildered hostess and back again to the now radiant face. "Marion, what are you doing here?"

Harvey stooped down and kissed the smiling rosebud and the dimples. This seeing that the incident needed some explanation, he apologized to the hostess and continued: "Mrs. Southern, allow me to introduce my fiancée, Miss Harrison."

Mrs. Southern, who had watched the scene with mingled surprise, sweet understanding and regret, reached out her hands to the couple when she answered: "Allow me to congratulate you upon the possession of a prize jewel! We will lay another cover and make this a double mention. But I shall have a hard time of it, my dear, to take the place of my Mary."

A suspicious smell of burnt food approached the little group in the dining room. The next minute Marion came dead, and from the kitchen came the clatter of a tin pan on the floor, accompanied by a wailing young voice: "Oh, dear, my Victory biscuits are ruined!"

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

LIES FAR BELOW SEA LEVEL

Forbidding Death Valley, in California, Was Formerly the Bed of a Salt Lake.

Death valley, California, is said to be the lowest dry land in the United States; it is 276 feet below sea level. The name of Death valley is gruesome enough in itself, but to enhance this effect the mountains thereabouts are called the Funeral range.

While Death valley is the lowest dry land in the country Mount Whitney, which is less than eighty miles from the point of lowest depression, is one of the highest points of land in the United States, its summit being 14,501 feet above sea level.

Death valley was formerly the bed of a salt lake and is 150 miles in length. A small salt marsh still occupies a part of it. There are few places in Death valley where fresh water is obtainable. The best known are Bennett wells and Saratoga springs.

For the greater part of the time Death valley is a gigantic furnace of burning hot shifting sand dunes. At times this strange desert is filled with wonderful colors. The air is very dry, and at dawn the light is very white and minus the mist usually associated with that time of day. Gradually a faint azure tint appears and deepens above the gray-tan dunes. As the sun rises over the desert the pastel tints of sky and sands burn into brighter shades until at noon the very atmosphere vibrates into hot vividness. Toward twilight the reds of sky and desert shade into deep purples and black.

FOLLOWED PATHS OF PEACE

Aborigines of Texas Unlike the Fierce Tribes of Other Sections of the Country.

Stone implements found in ancient workshops in Texas, antedating French, Spanish or American settlers, prove that the original settlers of this state were not like the fierce tribes encountered in modern times by the white settlers.

Little is known about the aboriginal population of Texas, which lies between the Pueblo and mound builders' area, but Dr. J. Walter Fawkes, chief of the American bureau of ethnology, allied by Professor Pence of the University of Texas, have located some long-forgotten village sites. Their investigations lead to the belief that the original people of the middle part of the eastern part near the timber belt, were followers of agricultural pursuits and were skilled in the manufacture of pottery. They resembled the mound builders. The western part of the state was a more elevated and less arid plateau. Here the people resembled the Pueblos of New Mexico. Some of the tribes are reported to have been cannibals. In the opening of the eighteenth century Apaches, Comanches and other savage tribes ranged over Texas, following the buffalo, or raiding across it into Mexico. There seems to have been constant hostility with these Indians, in which many smaller tribes were exterminated.

REMARKABLE CHIMPANZEE DIES

A few weeks ago there died a chimpanzee who had spent the eight years of his life defying all rules laid down for the well being of chimpanzees. His name was Antony, and he was the only one of his tribe of monkeys who has ever managed to stand an English climate unscathed by artificial heat.

He came from the Congo in 1911, when he was very young and small. At that time he weighed 14 pounds, by last summer he was just six times as heavy. During the whole period of his civilized life he was kept in a brick building facing southwest and unheated, and he slept in straw without blankets. Chocolates and sweets—poison to ordinary chimpanzees—were the special treats of Antony's dietary, and he had a less comprehensible fancy for beans.—Manchester Guardian.

THE "AMEN CORNER"

The phrase "amen corner" is said to have originated in London, where, at the end of Paternoster row, the monks at one time finished their recitation of the "Pater Noster" as they went in procession on Corpus Christi day to St. Paul's cathedral. They began in Paternoster row with the Lord's prayer in Latin, continuing it to the end of the street, and then said "amen" at the corner of the row. As used in this country the phrase described the corner of a church where the elderly members sit and pronounce the word "amen" at intervals.

FISHERMAN'S MASCOT

A mascot to which deep-sea fishermen attach great importance is a tiny fish stone or bone found in the ear of a fish and other fish. The wearer of one of these stones is supposed to be immune to the danger of drowning. It is easy to find these stones in the ears of fish, although they are no bigger than a split lentil. Anybody who cares to look for one and to examine it will see on its surface light and dark rings similar to those found on a larger scale in tree trunks. The number of rings tells the age of the fish, as a new ring appears each year.

LAKE COUNTY FAIR
OPENS SEPTEMBER 30

TO CONTINUE FOUR DAY

$1300 in Special Premiums Will Be Offered. Larry Brown, Aviator Will Make Daily Trips

Lake County's 66th Annual Fair will open September 30 at Libertyville for four days of instruction and pleasure.

The Fair association has been completely reorganized, the buildings repaired, the premium list revised and the premiums increased.

Through the support of Lake County business men $1,300.00 in special premiums have been offered. An office assistant, "What do you want, this person inquired. 'Cooking at a chamber work, or do you want laundry work?'"

"I haven't specialized in any particular line of housework," said Marion, bravely. "I prefer to take charge of the home of a small family, she ventured on.

"I see. General housework," the assistant seemed satisfied and, turning around, called into the inner office: "Mrs. Murphy, here is a girl who wants general housework. Is Mrs. Southern still here?"

Marion was ushered into the waiting ladies' sanctum and confronted with a middle-aged, motherly looking lady. The introduction was informal. It appeared that Mrs. Southern had moved up her city house and let her servants go when her only son enlisted at the beginning of the war. She had rented a small apartment in the suburbs and devoted her time to patriotic service.

"One servant is all I need at present," she explained, "and you appear to be just the kind of a girl I would like to have around." Marion felt flattered as she was happy, over-stumbling into a position without any trouble. She agreed on the terms and promised to come that afternoon.

If ever there was an ambitious cook, waitress and chambermaid, all in one, it was Miss Harrison, queen of hearts of Lieut. Harry Ramsey. She was the first week saw "Mary" fall in most of her attempts at keeping house; the second week saw a slight improvement; the third gave fair promise, and the fourth brought forth Mrs. Southern's genuine satisfaction.

One day when "Mary" was clearing the breakfast table, Mrs. Southern came into the room, waving a telegram at her, happily: "My son has arrived from France and he writes from New York that he will be home tonight, Mary," she said. "He will be here for dinner and he is bringing a friend," she added.

Mary put her heart and soul in the preparation for that dinner. She wanted to make this homecoming doubly memorable for the mother and son.

Presently Mrs. Southern came to the door and said: "All right, Mary, we are ready." Marion proceeded to serve the soup. As she put the first platter before the hostess she could not help noticing the pleased expression on the face of the young officer to the left.

She carried in the second platter, which was just going to get it down in front of the guest of the night when all of a sudden she stopped, as if hypnotized at the sight of the wavy brown hair of the young man. The soup platter trembled in her hand, and when the owner of the brown hair turned his head toward the drooping plate, Marion gave a startled little cry and dropped the plate on the immaculate tablecloth.

The officer was on his feet before anybody had time to utter a sound.

"For heaven's sake, Marion," he cried, setting the two small white plates wandering from the frightened, bewildered hostess and back again to the now radiant face. "Marion, what are you doing here?"

Harvey stooped down and kissed the smiling rosebud and the dimples. This seeing that the incident needed some explanation, he apologized to the hostess and continued: "Mrs. Southern, allow me to introduce my fiancée, Miss Harrison."

Mrs. Southern, who had watched the scene with mingled surprise, sweet understanding and regret, reached out her hands to the couple when she answered: "Allow me to congratulate you upon the possession of a prize jewel! We will lay another cover and make this a double mention. But I shall have a hard time of it, my dear, to take the place of my Mary."

A suspicious smell of burnt food approached the little group in the dining room. The next minute Marion came dead, and from the kitchen came the clatter of a tin pan on the floor, accompanied by a wailing young voice: "Oh, dear, my Victory biscuits are ruined!"

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

LAKE COUNTY FAIR
OPENS SEPTEMBER 30

TO CONTINUE FOUR DAY

$1300 in Special Premiums Will Be Offered. Larry Brown, Aviator Will Make Daily Trips

Lake County's 66th Annual Fair will open September 30 at Libertyville for four days of instruction and pleasure.

The Fair association has been completely reorganized, the buildings repaired, the premium list revised and the premiums increased.

Through the support of Lake County business men $1,300.00 in special premiums have been offered. An office assistant, "What do you want, this person inquired. 'Cooking at a chamber work, or do you want laundry work?'"

"I haven't specialized in any particular line of housework," said Marion, bravely. "I prefer to take charge of the home of a small family, she ventured on.

"I see. General housework," the assistant seemed satisfied and, turning around, called into the inner office: "Mrs. Murphy, here is a girl who wants general housework. Is Mrs. Southern still here?"

Marion was ushered into the waiting ladies' sanctum and confronted with a middle-aged, motherly looking lady. The introduction was informal. It appeared that Mrs. Southern had moved up her city house and let her servants go when her only son enlisted at the beginning of the war. She had rented a small apartment in the suburbs and devoted her time to patriotic service.

"One servant is all I need at present," she explained, "and you appear to be just the kind of a girl I would like to have around." Marion felt flattered as she was happy, over-stumbling into a position without any trouble. She agreed on the terms and promised to come that afternoon.

If ever there was an ambitious cook, waitress and chambermaid, all in one, it was Miss Harrison, queen of hearts of Lieut. Harry Ramsey. She was the first week saw "Mary" fall in most of her attempts at keeping house; the second week saw a slight improvement; the third gave fair promise, and the fourth brought forth Mrs. Southern's genuine satisfaction.

One day when "Mary" was clearing the breakfast table, Mrs. Southern came into the room, waving a telegram at her, happily: "My son has arrived from France and he writes from New York that he will be home tonight, Mary," she said. "He will be here for dinner and he is bringing a friend," she added.

Mary put her heart and soul in the preparation for that dinner. She wanted to make this homecoming doubly memorable for the mother and son.

Presently Mrs. Southern came to the door and said: "All right, Mary, we are ready." Marion proceeded to serve the soup. As she put the first platter before the hostess she could not help noticing the pleased expression on the face of the young officer to the left.

She carried in the second platter, which was just going to get it down in front of the guest of the night when all of a sudden she stopped, as if hypnotized at the sight of the wavy brown hair of the young man. The soup platter trembled in her hand, and when the owner of the brown hair turned his head toward the drooping plate, Marion gave a startled little cry and dropped the plate on the immaculate tablecloth.

The officer was on his feet before anybody had time to utter a sound.

"For heaven's sake, Marion," he cried, setting the two small white plates wandering from the frightened, bewildered hostess and back again to the now radiant face. "Marion, what are you doing here?"

Harvey stooped down and kissed the smiling rosebud and the dimples. This seeing that the incident needed some explanation, he apologized to the hostess and continued: "Mrs. Southern, allow me to introduce my fiancée, Miss Harrison."

Mrs. Southern, who had watched the scene with mingled surprise, sweet understanding and regret, reached out her hands to the couple when she answered: "Allow me to congratulate you upon the possession of a prize jewel! We will lay another cover and make this a double mention. But I shall have a hard time of it, my dear, to take the place of my Mary."

A suspicious smell of burnt food approached the little group in the dining room. The next minute Marion came dead, and from the kitchen came the clatter of a tin pan on the floor, accompanied by a wailing young voice: "Oh, dear, my Victory biscuits are ruined!"

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)