NUMBER 26 THURSDAY, AUGUST 28, 1919

THE AMERICAN LEGION

We have talked and written much about the idealism of the men who saw service in the trenches. It is they who, one little year ago, we thought would reorganize the world. It is they who would come home and light a star for all our footsteps. It is they who would blaze the trail out of a material wilderness into the open reaches of the spiritual.

They came back, and, contrary to our expectations, they appeared to fall in with things as they are, and make themselves felt very little in the realization of our dreams of a better order of things. But they were only waiting their time and opportunity. They were not organized, and no class or group of people can make themselves felt today in the complexities of modern life without organization.

But now, at length, they have an organization. They either have organized or are organizing in every city and village in this great land of ours. It is the American Legion whose recruits are slowly gathering under the banner of "justice and humanity." This is their religion. Only youth can have a new religion which is sweeping, which is virile, and which will brush away the old cobwebs of sodden reaction. They have tried their religion. They know it works. And now they are going to take that new religion and become articulate through the American Legion.

They have organized in Highland Park, these men from overseas. They are called the Dumaresq Spencer chapter, named from the first of our boys who gave his life on the field of honor. They meet once a week at the Army and Navy Center. And so it goes, the roster of this great new order is rolling up a membership which promises to be five million strong. They are fired by ideals; they have determination; they have youth. And we who hoped for better things and then desponded, take heart once more. We are watching their formation. We are listening for their footsteps, for they are moving—these boys—with their faces toward the light.

WORK BEING RUSHED AT "SHORE ACRES" CLUB

New Golf Course Located on Shore of Lake Just South of the Naval Station

Work at Shore Acres Golf Links progressing rapidly — it is a looking "woods" everybody from water carrier boys to the press is attending to their part of the job.

The man who laid out the National Golf course at Southampton, L. I., under Mr. McDonald's supervision lay out the Shore Acres course.

By next summer nine holes will be ready for play. Many golf clubs have two or three so-called "clubhouse holes." It is proposed to have this new course have eight championship holes.

The Club is bounded on the east by the lake, on the north by the Lakes Naval Training station, on the west by the Northwestern railroad and Milwaukee Electric tracks, on the south by the estates of Earl Linn and William McColl Blair, who plan building there year or so.

The competition, which was held for plans for the clubhouse, won by David Adler, which is that it will be the latest, cleanest and most attractive of its kind.
