FIDO, JR.

By MARGARET L. AHERN

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

For the third consecutive day Marjorie Hill spent 15 minutes of her noon hour gazing covetously in the store window. And for the third time Lieutenant Dan Taylor, lurching alone at his club across the street, watched her with growing curiosity.

Dan, the proud possessor of two gold service stripes and a wound stripe, was feeling rather bored after his strenuous activities of the past year. This state of affairs was possibly due to the fact that there had been no girl waiting for him "over here." His interest was aroused now for the first time since his return home.

"If it was a fur coat she was looking at so earnestly," he soliloquized, "or a platinum bracelet watch, or a rose-colored evening gown—I could understand it. But it's a bird and animal store. I wonder if it's a parrot or a canary she wants?"

While he watched the girl went inside the store. Dan hastily paid his meal check and hurried across the street. He, in turn, stared in the window at the miscellaneous assortment of livestock.

On one side some tiny white mice were huddled in a squirming heap in a cage. "No girl in her right mind would even look at those things," was the lieutenant's sarcastic comment.

On the other side of the window two white, curly-haired dogs frisked around. "Name pups," muttered Dan. "She doesn't look like the kind of a girl who would carry one of those toy lambs around."

In the center of the window was an iron cage, and presently its occupant—a small but very fat Boston Terrier—was thrust in unceremoniously. The girl inside the store leaned over to play with him for a moment, and Dan had a delightful glimpse of rosy cheeks and brown eyes. When she left Dan followed her through the noonday crowd until she entered a large bank building.

A few minutes later the president of the bank was shaking hands joyfully with the lieutenant. "It surely does make your old uncle glad to see you again, Danny," he said, "and if there's anything at all I can do for you—"

His offer was accepted with suspicious alacrity. Dan explained glibly that he wanted to look over the contents of his safety deposit box, and since his right arm was still lame, possibly he could have the assistance of one of the clerks. For answer his uncle pressed a button beside his desk.

A young woman appeared almost immediately. Dan, maneuvering to a position back of her, frantically signaled to his uncle. The latter, hiding a smile, dismissed his efficient employee with some casual instructions, and asked her to send Miss Hill to him.

Miss Hill proved to be the girl of the bird store. From her demure blush as she acknowledged the introduction to the eager lieutenant, he suspected that she recognized him. It was arranged that she should work with Dan that afternoon at least; but he made haste to assure his uncle that the clipping of innumerable coupons would probably necessitate another full day's work.

During the afternoon a minimum of business was transacted by Dan and his acting secretary. However he found time to tell her of the big kennels at his country place, and of his favorite pet, the ugly-looking bulldog named "Old Ironsides." "He'll try to—I mean, he could—eat that little chap in the birdstore in one mouthful," said Dan.

And Marjorie confided to him her longing to possess the "little chap." She told him how she had figured that five dollars was a sufficient sum for such a tiny puppy, and how she had been saving up a "dog fund"; and then of her disappointment at learning that the small dog had a most distinguished and high-class canine family tree—being a direct descendant of Ringmaster I—and his present owners refused to part with him for less than twenty-five dollars.

Needless to say, the puppy of unimpeachable ancestry disappeared from the store window the next day. When the president of the bank returned after lunch that noon, he found an unexpected visitor tied to his desk. A note from Dan explained the situation. It read as follows: "I am paying my charming assistant, not in coin of the realm but in the original way you see hitched to your desk. Don't dare remove him. He will be called for at 5 o'clock."

Dan's uncle viewed the pup with a quizzical smile. Fortunately, he liked dogs, too. "I suppose," he remarked thoughtfully, "that you have to be fed at more or less frequent intervals, like all infants. Although—pardon my rudeness, old man—from the contour of your small anatomy you don't look as though you had room for a drop more." An excited office boy was presently sent out to procure some milk for the puppy.

Then, still holding Dan's note, his uncle sighed and addressed the pup again. "Perhaps you understand, Fido, Junior—a vigorous wagging of a diminutive tail testified that Fido, Junior, understood perfectly. 'You have been the cause of my nephew coming in here and taking my best stenographer.'"

Italy, in her new budget, is proposing to tax bachelors.

M. E. CHURCH

The Mid-Week Service

There has been no abatement in the attendance and interest manifested each Wednesday evening in the study of the Scriptures and prayer service. Twenty-five present last week. Weather conditions seem to have no effect at all. People do not seem to want a rest. And for this we are glad. It indicates a healthy, vigorous growth.

Epworth League

Last Friday evening will live in the memory of all present. One man arose to give expression to his inner self. In a voice choked with emotion and eyes brimming with tears he confessed his failure in being true to his risen Lord and dedicated his life anew to the Master's service. All in the service were moved deeply as they listened to this recital and renewal of the Christian covenant. This is what we call the REAL LIFE, the JOY ABUNDANT, THE THRILL OF THE ETERNAL PRESENCE.

Epworth League

The Epworth Leaguers are so content with the social work for the soldiers on Saturday evenings and their Sunday evening activities. They are now planning for the Win A. Chum services in November. This is to be a real-for-sure evangelistic campaign. Not a hit-and-miss variety but a carefully planned, thoroughly prepared campaign to secure enlistments for Christ's work in order to make this preparation complete a class in personal evangelism is being organized. The text book will be "Talking Men Alive" by Chas. Gallaudet Trumbull. We have taught this book before and expect great results. Do you want to join this class? The first meeting will be this Thursday at 7:45 P. M. The Minister will teach the class. Already fifteen have expressed a desire to have the book. We may have a class of twenty. If you want in, your church affiliation will not bar you.

Sunday Services

The hours are 9:30 and 10:45 a. m. 6:45 and 7:45 p. m.

Home from Vacation

Some people return from vacation more tired than when they set out. They return to everyday tasks with as little spirit as a criminal emerging from his prison house, and complain bitterly at the necessity of daily labor.

To others it is a pleasure to seek the old familiar scenes again and they take up their work where they left off with renewed energy.

People were not built to spend their time in sporting life, in aimless wanderings, or in restless sleep-seeking. No man ever built as a strong physique on cake and pie, and human life was made for work rather than for pleasure. If a person does not find renewed interest in his return to his work, something is seriously amiss. The trouble is probably that he is doing his work in an indifferent way that the doing of it fails to give him the sense of triumph and mastery, which always comes to the efficient and successful person.

Some of the well-known speakers booked for the Women's club for this year are: Dr. Edwin Herbert Lewis of the Lewis Institute, Franklyn Bliss Snyder, Northwestern University, Charles Gilkey, Karlton Hackett, musical critic of the Chicago Evening Post, Mrs. Herman Hall, Museum Instructor from the Art Institute, Eleanor Perkins, of Evanston, daughter of Lucy Fitch Perkins of child story fame, a play by members of the Cumnock School of Oratory, and Rosemary Pfaff, child singer who will be heard at the first meeting October 21st. There are many other delightful numbers in the program for the Women's club such as the evening musicale to be given by Marion Schaeffer and Helen Byfield. The program will appear in full in another issue of The Press. Taken together these numbers constitute a very unusual calendar of instruction and amusement for the coming season and the Highland Park Woman's club is to be congratulated on its achievement.

YOUNG MEN'S CLUB PLANS MINSTREL SHOW

Election of Officers Held. Committee of Five Appointed to Arrange For Affair in December

Tuesday evening the Young Men's club held a meeting, and the election of officers took place. Following are the officers elected: President, Harry Eichler; Vice-President, R. Cutler; Secretary, Murray G. Moot; Treasurer, Allan Plann. At the meeting it was also decided to hold a Minstrel and Vaudeville on about December first. A committee of five were appointed to take charge of the arrangements for the affair.

EGBERT SPENCER TO REPRESENT LOCAL POST

At the meeting of the Dumars Spencer Post of the American Legion which was held last Friday evening at the Army and Navy Center, Egbert Spencer was elected as delegate to the convention which is to be held in Peoria, October seventeenth and eighteenth. Robert Cobb will serve as an alternate delegate with Mr. Spencer.

Little grains of dandruff mean good-bye to Hair

Dandruff literally smotheres the life out of the hair roots and eventually brings baldness. Wildroot is guaranteed to clean up dandruff and remove it—but it does more; it cleanses, softens and loosens the scalp and stimulates the hair to normal, healthy growth.

Wildroot Liquid Shampoo Wildroot Shampoo Soap, used in connection with Wildroot Hair Tonic, will hasten the treatment.
