

USE TIN TO WEIGHT SILK

Manufacturers Have to Employ Material Which Would Seem Hardly Suitable for Human Apparel.

We have adopted many foreign ideas of comfort or utility, but no one has sought to introduce the wooden shoe from Holland. The tin stocking is even less suggestive of luxury, and yet many of us wear them. Of course a person could not wear a sock of "eighteen-carat" tin and be unconscious of it, but if the tin is alloyed and disguised with silk he can wear a considerable amount of it without suspecting it.

In cutting round tops and bottoms out of tin sheets in the manufacture of tin cans there remain a certain amount of scrap. Men have sat up nights figuring the maximum number of such pieces of various sizes that can be cut from a sheet of the tin, and still there is the waste left over that cannot be worked into sheets again. Relief is found in the demand of the manufacturer of silk, who needs some substance to weight his goods. A silk garment hangs and fits and holds its shape better if weighted. Everybody knows how soft and light are the unweighted pongee silks. So the manufacturers of tin cans and of silks cooperate. One disposes of his tin waste, and the other converts the metal into tin chloride and works it into the woven silk. Virtually all the waste of tin can factories is put to that use. Some silk stockings contain as much as 30 per cent of tin. The use is entirely legitimate, since the trade demands a silk that is firm and heavy for certain garments for which the purchaser desires a perfect fit.

Silk waste, such as worn-out and cast-off garments, becomes in turn a source of tin worth attention. Rag pickers give little heed to silk remnants, but carefully collect linen and wool. The rag-pickers will take notice of this information. The tin chloride in the silk is easily converted into tin oxide by burning the material, and from the oxide the metal can be re-solved.—Youth's Companion.

PARK A PLACE OF WONDERS

Yellowstone Has Many Marvels Which Will for All Time Furnish Attraction for Tourists.

In writing of the Yellowstone park, John Muir has said: "In some of the spring basins the waters though still warm, are perfectly calm, and shine blandly in a sod of overcleaning grass and flowers, as if they were thoroughly cooked at last, and set aside to settle and cool. Others are wildly boiling over as if running to waste, thousands of tons of the precious liquids being thrown into the air, to fall in scalding floods on the clean coral floor of the establishment, keeping onlookers at a distance. Instead of holding limpid pale green or azure water, other pots and craters are filled with scalding mud, which is tossed up from three to four feet to thirty feet, in sticky, rank-smelling masses, with gasping belching, thudding sounds, plastering the branches of neighboring trees; every flask, retort, hot spring and geyser has something special in it, no two being the same in temperature, color, or composition."

The Mangrove.

The mangrove tree, specimens of which are in the Arnold Arboretum, the tree museum of Harvard university, has a very interesting method of sending its seeds or fruits into the world. Growing as it usually does in shallow water, it is necessary for the young fruits actually to begin growing before they leave the parent plant. The fruit, which resembles a large inverted berry, sends out large leaves at its upper end and a long root, some times 18 inches in length, from the lower end, while yet attached to the parent plant. Then as if by magic, the parent plant drops it into the mud where the plant already growing begins to develop into a larger plant and soon is firmly established. If it were not prepared immediately to begin to grow in the mud it would probably be washed away. A single mangrove is oftentimes able to start a small island by its manifold roots and arms.

Some Nomenclature.

A Baltimorean recently received a letter from a Pennsylvania town telling of the christening in that town of a baby in whom patriotism triumphantly, if vicariously, reigned when the name was announced as "Victory Cicely Sam." In this same family were two other children dowered with the names of "Italy" and "Liberty." A friend to whom this story was told made a counter attack on wondrous ears by telling of two unfortunate children in West Virginia, who, antedating the war and its triumphs, were given the names from adjacent localities of "McAfee's Knob" and "Jabel Doo." And yet even omniscient Shakespeare wanted to know what was in a name.

Historic Geneva.

Any one at all familiar with the great names and associations of Geneva will constantly trace them in the streets—the Rue Calvin, the Rue Necker, the Rue Voltaire, the Rue Farel, and above all, the Rue Jean Jacques Rousseau, where Rousseau's father lived; the Grand Rue, where Rousseau lived; the Rue de la Treppe, and the Promenade de la Treppe, where, as he relates, his father and mother, in their courtship days, used to walk up and down of an evening.

CHINDBLOM SEEKS TO GET ROAD IMPROVED

Deplorable Condition of Stretch Between Naval Station and Lake Bluff to get Attention

Congressman Carl R. Chindblom of this district has interested himself in the suggested improvement of Waukegan road where it runs past the naval station and is endeavoring to do all in his power to see that the navy department puts it back into good condition. Mr. Chindblom was appealed to by Charles Russell, county superintendent of highways, and lost no time in getting busy. Mr. Russell had pointed out that the heavy traffic of the naval station had placed the road in a deplorable shape and he pointed out also the orders were received a few days ago at the station to take no further action with reference to improving roads there. Next year, he said, the road to the west of Waukegan road is to be improved and Waukegan road will be the only north and south route.

Congressman Chindblom, according to a letter received from him today by Mr. Russell, has laid the situation before Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, and has been advised to take the matter up with the station direct. As a result, Mr. Chindblom has communicated with Rear Admiral Bassett of the naval station, and Mr. Russell feels that the officials at the station will be glad to aid in improving the road as soon as they get permission from Washington to go ahead.

WINNETKA TO HAVE NEW FIRE ENGINE
Council Approves Purchase of Powerful American-La France 750-Gallon Pumper

Within a week Winnetka is to have complete and modern fire fighting apparatus. Purchase of an American-La France triple combination, 750 gallon per minute pumping engine was authorized by the council Tuesday evening. Delivery on the new apparatus is promised within a week.

The new apparatus, according to Village Manager Woolhiser, will be adequate to take care of any fire emergency in Winnetka and is of the very latest type of fire engine construction. Services of a special driver and mechanic will be obtained to take charge of the engine and to insure absolute efficiency in operation.

The old Packard fire truck is to be converted into a utility truck to be used for general village work purposes, it is said.

Purchase of the new fire apparatus follows closely upon a recent series of fires which cost Winnetka property owners approximately $30,000. The inadequacy of the old fire truck was glaringly demonstrated upon several occasions when it was found necessary to call upon the Wilmette department for assistance.

RUSH NEW $150,000 SALVATION ARMY HOME

Work on the construction of the $150,000 Salvation Army home for soldiers and sailors in Waukegan will be started within a week, according to a statement given out Monday. The promoters plan to rush the work so that if their anticipations are realized the structure will be completed by the first of February.
