

"The Bank of Personal Service"

Is Your Home Fully Insured?

ARE you carrying sufficient insurance on your home and on your household goods?

Do not lose sight of the fact that an amount of insurance which would have been considered adequate a few years ago is now too small for safety. This is due to the fact that the cost of replacement of either household goods or buildings is much higher.

We invite you to come in and talk over the matter of your insurance requirements with one of our officers.

NUMBER 47 THURSDAY, JANUARY 22, 1920

FAITH IN OUR DESTINY

"The public is ultimately right" is a truism started by an optimist many years ago, yet those who have seen "politics" at first hand, shake their heads sadly, tap their brows and pity the benighted man who said it.

We are approaching another presidential campaign, and the woods is so full of possible candidates that we are overwhelmed by the numbers. We never dreamed that America contained so many presidential possibilities. There was a time when it looked like a race between two great men for their third term, Roosevelt and Wilson, but that time has passed. Gone, too, are the days when the country seemed to be divided between these two men alone, and every one was either for Wilson or Roosevelt, fealty to one excluding the other.

Whatever our choice may have been, we now see these men as two of America's greatest statesmen. They are men who have written their names large in the most consequential chapters of our nation's history. They are men who are worthy to take their place in the roster of our great presidents, Washington, the Adamases, Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Cleveland, Taft, and to add something of their own luster to the office.

But who can follow such men? Who, in these troublous times, when the whole economic situation of the country is in so dangerous a state of fluidity, can take up the post at the pilot wheel and guide us clear of the rocks?

We still have faith in America. We have faith in the people of America who, in spite of political corruption, have always chosen a president worthy of their great traditions. Not once, in all the years, has there been an exception to this rule. Perhaps, after all, when it comes to so great and vital a matter, "the public is ultimately right." And so do we have faith in America's ability to choose her president. We hear of the candidacy of Major General Wood and it strengthens that faith.

Such a man takes his place naturally in the roster of our great presidents. He was a friend of Theodore Roosevelt, and a man whom he delighted to honor. He is a man who was great enough to step aside and be ignored at a time when he longed to serve his country. Like Roosevelt, he is a man who loves America and has a deep sympathetic knowledge of those who work and struggle. Like Roosevelt, he is both strong and tender and "one hundred per cent United States." Those who have seen and heard him will not readily forget his manly address, nor his rugged face "carved from the granite of self-control." He renews our faith in our national destiny, and makes us feel that great virile Americans will always arise against the day of our need.
