A CALL ANSWERED

By MARY W. FORD.

"Now this is peculiar," thought Gladys Dorman. "I have traveled over this very trail year after year, and I now am at a loss as to how to proceed from here."

Jack Dorman and his daughter had been coming up to the mountains for some years now, and it was a trip that they both looked forward to very much.

Gladys was only twenty, but a born mountain climber, golf and tennis player. Healthy outdoor sports always appealed to her, and to hike over the mountains was her chief hobby. Today she had insisted upon going alone, telling her father that she wanted to do some exploring herself before the season was over, to which he consented rather reluctantly.

After hiking for some hours a heavy mountain fog set in, and the entire mountainside was enveloped in a dark and threatening cloud. It was useless for one to proceed until it passed over, and, as a rule, it would last but a few minutes. But today it lengthened into an hour.

Sitting on a huge rock, Gladys sat there looking at the heavy mist, wondering when the cloud would leave this side of the mountain, when suddenly out of the mist a voice spoke.

"Hello, what have I here?" exclaimed the invisible one, which sounded very much like a masculine voice to Gladys. "Well, I declare—it is a boot!" and a hearty laugh could be heard near Gladys, but the fog was so dense she could not see who it was. Then someone gave Gladys' boot a vigorous pull, and for a moment she thought she was going to slide off the rock.

"Well, whoever you are—kindly stop pulling at my boot," cried Gladys impatiently. Now she wished with all her heart she had let her father or one of the party at the hotel accompany her.

"Thunder and Mars!" exclaimed the masculine voice again. "It's a girl's boot I was pulling at," and again that hearty laugh rang out, echoing down the mountainside. At that moment the cloud disappeared and the sun was struggling to come out from behind another cloud, and finally succeeded. Then Gladys looked down and almost at her feet was a young man looking up at her in an amused sort of a way, which at the time provoked her, and still he continued staring, a smile playing around his lips; but not a word could he utter.

"Please don't stare at me in that fashion—you look as though you were a hungry bear and wanted to eat me," and Gladys smiled in spite of herself. It was surely amusing, she thought, and at that moment she made a movement as though about to rise, when the young man jumped up almost instantly and exclaimed: "Oh, I say, please don't go," in a pleading voice. "And I do want to apologize," and again he smiled pleasantly, but a questioning look was in his eyes, and his one thought was: "Would she stay—only for a few minutes?"

"Well, Mr. Man, seeing that you have recovered your voice and that you are not going to eat me up after all, I'll stay for a few minutes." Then, as though a second thought presented itself: "I'm almost starving for something to eat—what say you?"

"Say, I'm so hungry, little girl, I could almost eat you right now," he cried eagerly.

"Very well then, it's high time for me to be going, when you want to eat me up—but I simply have to eat, and that's all there is to it, so please don't eat me up yet," she smiled.

Gladys spread a hearty lunch on the rock, and while munching away at the delicious sandwiches that she herself had prepared, they talked and laughed between mouthfuls, and soon she learned from him that he, too, like herself, visited the mountains every year, and that he was Fred Anderson, a former well-known coach at Mountford, and a very good friend of her father's. It seemed strange to them both that they had never met, but it was due to the fact that they both were away at school during the fall, and immediately when vacation time set in they both left the city. She also learned that he had just been discharged from the service.

When they arrived at the hotel, Mr. Anderson's eyes nearly stuck out of his head with surprise. "Well, of all things, Ted, when did you get back?"

"Got discharged about two months ago, and then beat it for the mountains," and at the same time they both shook hands heartily.

Ted was stopping at a mountain hut, some distance away, but he decided that it was very necessary that he should stay at the same hotel as the Dorman's, and needless to say that Gladys and he developed a strong friendship, which later ripened into love.

At sunset one evening shortly before it was time to return to the city, they were sitting on the veranda of the hotel, when suddenly Ted exclaimed: "Gladys, it's strange how we both decided to start off alone on that wonderful 'never-to-be-forgotten' day alone, as I, like yourself, as a rule went along with a party of hikers."

"Well, Ted," she answered demurely, "it's just this way: I was lonesome and longing for—oh, for lots of things, and—"

"I, too, was lonesome, little sweet-heart, and we both heard the call of the mountains—I was calling to you little girl, and you answered the call."

Y. W. C. A. NEWS

Sunday Programs

Thirty-five girls attended the vesper service Sunday afternoon which led by Mrs. V. C. Musser. The girls were all delighted with her talk on the first chapter of the Gospel of Mark. The Glee club girls led by Miss Louise McDonald, sang several songs, and Miss Dunning gave a piano solo.

The following leaders will take charge of the next meetings.

Feb. 15, 5 p. m., Olive Reynolds. Lincoln's birthday will be observed Feb. 22 and Miss Orva Stine will lead.

"What we may learn from the life of Washington" will be one of the features of the meeting.

February 29 Mrs. Stewart Reed Brown will have charge of the meeting.

March 7, Miss Emma Holke will lead.

A series of eight lessons on the life of Jesus, as told in the good news of Mark, have been started. The second lesson will be given next Sunday, and the lessons will continue after Easter.

We are anxious to have all girls who are interested in attending these meetings come and bring their friends. We especially invite the girls who are away from home.

Self-Supporting Clubs

An erroneous idea has arisen, that the money for the club parties and entertainments is taken from the Y. W. C. A. funds. Each club is entirely self-supporting, and finances all its social affairs. Even the youngest girls, those from 9 to 12 years of age, have their club treasuries, with which they pay for their supplies and parties.

Ready for Service

(A number of Girls Reserves, bet.)—Are you looking for girls to take care of your children after school, evenings or Saturdays, or for someone to wait on table at dinners? A number of the Girl Reserves have expressed their desire to earn money for camping in these ways. If you are in need of the help which girls from the ages of 12 to 16 years can give, call the Y. W. C. A., 675.

New Volunteer Leader

We are very glad indeed to secure the help of Mrs. V. C. Musser, who will have charge of a corps of Girl Reserves of the 7th and 8th grades, who will meet each Wednesday afternoon at 4. The Tuesday group has become so large, that it is necessary to divide it and have twenty girls come to the rooms on Wednesday.

Girls' Party Friday

Twenty of the Friendship club girls gave a very successful girls' party at the rooms last Friday evening. Progressive "ootie," a game somewhat similar to "bunco," was the program of the evening. Joke prizes were given to Miss Swihart and Miss Rosenbloom, as winners of the game. Refreshments were served, and the girls sang their club songs at the close of the evening.

Board of Directors

The following officers and members of the Board of Directors for the ensuing year are as follows:

- President, Mrs. W. A. Alexander
- First Vice-President, Mrs. John Putnam
- Second Vice-President, Miss May Merryweather
- Secretary, Miss Adele Everett
- Treasurer, Mrs. Fred Clow
- Members of the Board are: Mrs. George Campbell, Mrs. C. G. Bullock, Mrs. Emma Folsom, Mrs. Stewart R. Brown, Mrs. W. E. Brand, Mrs. F. B. Knight, Mrs. George Merryweather, Mrs. Fred Noerrenberg, Mrs. O. L. Olesen, Mrs. H. B. Roberts, Mrs. L. R. Rigdon, Mrs. John Putnam, Miss Helen Whitney, Miss Emma Holke, and Mrs. George Bard.

BURTON HOLMES COMING SOON

This last summer Burton Holmes spent many weeks in a motor-car, traversing France, Belgium, Alsace-Lorraine and the borders of the Rhine and Moselle rivers, taking pictures with which to illustrate the series of Travelogues which he proposes to give soon, in this city. This is not a series of "War Pictures" but is just a little journey by proxy, bringing to the people of this city, vivid impressions of what the Europe of today looks like; not only battlefields and scenes of devastation, but the sights and scenes in the principal tourist centres of pre-war days, as they are today, showing the changes wrought, if any, during the last four years.

Mr. Holmes has arranged this series as follows: "Belgium," "The Battle-fields of France," "Alsace-Lorraine," "Allies on the Rhine," and "Vanished Russia."

Mr. Holmes will only give two courses this season in Chicago; these will be on five successive Friday Evenings and Saturday afternoons at Orchestra Hall, beginning respectively February 15th and 20th.
