An Egg Mash

That Will Make More Eggs Than Anything You Ever Fed

Vitality Egg Mash is one of the most wonderful egg mashes ever put on the market. It contains eleven different ingredients including animal, cereal, vegetable and the famous milk protein. It should be fed in a hopper so the fowls can have access to it at all times. VITALITY SCRATCH should be fed in the litter to induce exercise.

THIS FINE HOPPER FREE

To get you to give VITALITY EGG MASH a thorough trial, we give with each 100 lb. coupon. When you have four coupons, present them to the dealer from whom you bought the feed and get one of these fine roosters, sanitary, mice and rat-proof galvanized hoppers. Each hopper holds enough for the ordinary pen one week. This offer is for a limited time only. We know you will be well pleased with the mash, so order some at once and let the hens prove our claim that you will get more eggs than from anything you ever fed.

WHAT THE RED FLAG REALLY MEANS

A few definitions are in order. One of them concerns the red flag which has been so widely displayed in connection with revolutionary propaganda and which is acclaimed by its followers as the symbol of liberty. Since we already have in this country a flag of red, white and blue which we have associated with that term, it becomes appropriate to inquire what interpretation of "liberty" the red followers have in mind. Clearly it is something different from our own or they would not need another flag to express it. In this matter, as in most other matters, actions speak louder than words. Red actions have spoken most loudly in Russia and it is there that we can get our best idea of the red purpose toward liberty.

One Russian fact stands out prominently—the red purpose toward liberty does not include the liberty of the bourgeoisie; and this brings us to our own second definition:

Who constitute the bourgeoisie? In plain language they are the productive class of the nation. Any man or woman who has a farm, a shop, a store or a factory, large or small, or who gives employment to a single other person is bourgeois. America is largely bourgeois and every working man will become a member of the bourgeoisie if he prospers. In other words, there are no hard or fast classes, but a constant change and progression. For the proletariat to advocate the destruction of the bourgeoisie is for the present to attempt the destruction of the future.

The doctrine of class distinction and class consciousness is anti-American and is menacing to the fundamental principles of our nation. It is perhaps the most primary difference between bolshevism and Americanism. It is the fruit of Russian tyranny and has no place in free America.

HIGHWOOD PATRIOTIC LEAGUE

We are very glad to welcome Miss Ruth Church of Highland Park who is filling the place formerly held by Miss Ruby Dick.

On Thursday night, the Business Girls' club gave a children's party and a delightful romp was enjoyed. Children's games were played and refreshments of lemonade and animal crackers were served. Favors of stick candy and all day suckers added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

Saturday at 3:00 a Valentine party was given for boys and girls in the grades. A Valentine box was the feature of the afternoon. Games were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Saturday afternoon the Epworth League of the Grace M. E. church of Highland Park held a bakery sale in the League rooms.

Sunday afternoon the Business Girls club attended a box party at the K. C. building, Ft. Sheridan, for the Montana club.

LINCOLN SCHOOL

Tomorrow (Friday) the third and fourth grades of the Lincoln school will give a Washington program, in commemoration of Washington's birthday.

Miss Ethel Russel, the art teacher, is absent this week, owing to illness.

FOR CURLEY

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

Angela read the article again, then sat gazing with dreamy eyes into the street. The philanthropist whose good deeds were so often published, had made another endowment. What a beautiful life must be his, in the generous sharing of riches. His grudging interviews with reporters, aroused Angela's interest; who could imagine great kindness of heart, in one of such terseness of words? Eccentric the old gentlemen must be, she thought, and impatient of praise.

Then suddenly moved by a presumptuous thought, Angela's blue eyes widened.

"Why not?" she murmured into the dusk, and a mist clouded the blue eyes as she thought of Curley. Curley, at once the joy, and anxiety of her life.

It was one of Angela's sudden impulses which had led her three years ago to take upon herself the boy's care. Angela—or Angel, as he promptly called her, had been very young herself at the time. Her visiting days at the orphanage endeared Curley to her more and more. He was such a brave little fellow with black eyes searching for sympathy and riotous dark looks matching the mischievous dimples in his cheeks. Their partings after each visit were so filled with mutual regret, that Angela had gone to the superintendent at last and arranged for Curley's adoption. At home in her tiny apartment, Angela was amazed at herself for her daring; but she had never regretted the act. Curley was a continual comfort, making her evening homecomings a delight, always; he watched for her, needed her—that was Angela's joy; and as Curley grew he made himself wonderfully useful. No maid could have prepared daintier meals or have learned to keep the rooms in better order. Oh! they were very happy these two, with wreaths in the windows at Christmas time, and picnicking days in summer.

Angela was wise in Curley's instruction, and Curley adored his Angel. For weeks Curley trudged through winter snows, soliciting orders for a certain firm which bestowed gifts for each stated amount, and in this way Curley earned a violin. Angela marveled at his aptitude with the bow. She was able to let him have few and simple lessons. But the music Curley made up for her was very sweet to hear. It became a part of their pleasant evenings. Now, after all the promise of his future, Angela must send the boy away, and where? Curley was still too young to support himself, yet in these three years of home life, he had been far removed from the orphanage. So, as Angela read the newspaper article, there came to her another impulse, and she jumped to her feet. "Why not?" she whispered again. Her cheeks were flushed as she hurried along the street and her eyes shone through their tears. She would seek the philanthropist in his home and beg from him—a chance for Curley. Perhaps when she told the man of all their dreams—of how good and dear and brave was her boy, perhaps the heart of James Rider would be moved to do for Curley what she herself found impossible. But Angela had not counted upon the difficulty of an interview. "You must arrange for an appointment with Mr. Rider's secretary," the door man told her. Angela turned away. Then, as no other course seemed possible, she decided to see upon the following day the secretary; and she took Curley with her. A pleasant-faced young man ran down the steps of the mansion just as she and Curley started to ascend. She fancied, from the bulging papers in his pockets, that this might be the secretary himself. So Angela met the young man with the question: "As I cannot see Mr. Rider," she said, "I wish to take up a matter with his secretary." The young man bowed, and immediately held open for her the house door. Seated in an impressive library, with Curley standing between them, the man looked at Angela and smiled. "What can I do for you?" he asked. Earnestly then she told her story. "Curley would be worthy of any kindness Mr. Rider could give him," she finished tremulously. But the boy nestled to her side. "I'd rather be near you, Angel," he said, "than have all the kindness of the world." The pleasant-faced young man arose briskly. His voice sounded husky too. "I'm not exactly a secretary," he confessed. "In fact, I think I shall need a trusty business secretary myself. Curley might be educated along that line while he is finding out what he is going to do with his music. He could begin by making himself useful here right now. I'll speak to the housekeeper about his room." "You are sure," Angela asked breathlessly, "that Mr. Rider will be agreeable?" "I know him well," the young man replied, laughing down into her eyes. "I am John Rider, you see," he said. And so strangely do things happen, that it is now Angela who assists the philanthropist, in extending good work. For as Mrs. James Rider, her opportunities are as large as her loving heart, and Curley's music grows ever beautiful, he says, "in thinking of these both."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

On Friday, Feb. 20, the pupils of the English classes will write upon the subject "The Advantage of Enlisting in the Army." Prizes will be offered by the war department for the best essays. The winner of the contest will receive a gold medal and his school will receive a silver loving cup. To the second best writer will go a silver medal and to his school a silver loving cup, while to the third winner in the contest will go a bronze medal and to his school a silver loving cup.

The chemistry classes are moving their chemicals and apparatus into the new laboratory in the east wing. Plans are on foot to hold a celebration on the occasion when work begins in the new laboratory. Professor Lewis of Northwestern University, inventor of the deadly gas known as Lewisite, will be asked to address the school on the occasion. The laboratory has been planned by Mr. Ben H. Ball, teacher in chemistry, and it is believed to embody the most up to date ideas permitting work of a high degree of efficiency by the students of chemistry.

The Department of Superintendents of the National Educational association meets in Cleveland next week. The name of the principal of the local school appears again on the program.

Miss E. Louise Noyes, teacher of English, devised in 1918 a standard test for the efficiency of teaching English technique in the high schools. This is known as the Noyes Test and is receiving much attention among educators the country over.

The Seniors are considering one of Barrie's plays, "Quality Street," as their annual class play this spring.

The following students have been chosen for the interscholastic debate with La Grange on March 19: Lucius Hine, John Winters, James Stevens, Richard Schanck, Mildred Goeltz and Georgine Thompson. James Marshall was chosen as alternate in case one of the regular debaters is incapacitated. The subject of the debate is "Resolved, that the Government should own and operate the Railroads of the United States." Our affirmative team will speak in Highland Park and the negative team in La Grange on the same night. A musical organization from each town will accompany the debaters. We are expecting the La Grange band to come here.

Major H. S. Wygant visited the school Wednesday and addressed the students.

M. E. CHURCH

Special Services—Last Sunday evening Mr. King, a member of the Business Men's Gospel team, was at our service. Mr. King has had a most unusual experience. This he related to the great interest and benefit of all present.

Plans for Services—It is planned to hold three cottage prayer services this week. Two of these have already been held; and the third will meet Friday evening.

Next Sunday evening some members of the Gospel teams will have charge of the services. During next week the cottage meetings will continue. On Wednesday evening the service will be held at the church. All will gather for prayer and conference.

Following this week of preparation the Gospel teams will be in charge each night for the following week and perhaps during the entire series. It is urged that our men and women attend these opening meetings faithfully. A real spiritual victory is ahead of us if we properly attend to this supreme business. Other things need to be laid aside and this work given the first place.

Entertainment for the Children—All children thirteen years old and under will meet again at the church next Monday evening for a short service and entertainment. Our first evening was a decided success. We invite the mothers to come with the children. The meeting will start at 6:30 promptly.

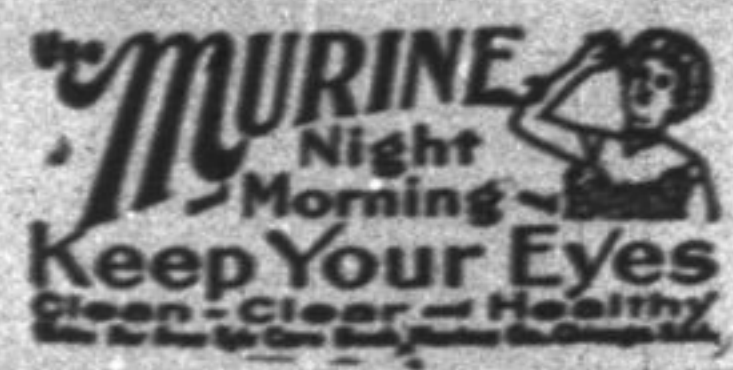

Sunday school officers and teachers are expected to cooperate in all these efforts. Your position puts you in a position of peculiar power. Your full support will insure the complete success of this work. Your absence and indifference neutralizes the efforts of all others.

Five Minute Women's F. M. S.—We have had two representative women at our morning services. These addresses have been most inspiring. Hear the next talk Sunday morning.
