LEST WE FORGET

Most of our people celebrated Memorial Day by golfing, motoring, dancing and bridge playing, they enjoyed the holiday but there was something lacking in its observance.

It is important that people should be out of doors and that they should enjoy wholesome recreation, but it is not so well that they should forget what they owe to those who gave their lives that we might live in peace and prosperity.

Memorial day, Flag day, Independence day ought to mean a great deal to us and ought to be kept with appropriate observances.

Memorial day was set apart at the close of the civil war in honor of the men who died that the union might be preserved, and for many years it was seriously and solemnly observed with appropriate exercises in our churches and cemeteries, but another generation has arisen and the ranks of the veterans of the civil war are sadly thinned, and we are in danger of forgetting the lessons taught by the deeds of the men who saved the republic in those years of conflict.

The memory of our last great war is so fresh in our minds and so painful that most people seem determined to put it aside and to ignore it. This is neither wise nor patriotic nor it is worthy of the patriotism of our men and women who devoted themselves so unselfishly to the winning of the war.

The need for patriotism was never so great as today and we call upon all thoughtful people and in particular the men and women of the American Legion to set us an example of patriotic leadership.

THE BIBLE AS LITERATURE

In the Atlantic Monthly for June there is a striking article entitled "Education for Individuality" by Dallas Lore Sharp, professor of English in Boston University, in which, speaking of the literary value of the Bible, he says: "The Bible is the humanist book in the world; and the King James Version of it is not only the greatest book in English literature, but the very source and fountain-head of English literature."

Whatever one's religion may be or his irreligion it is manifestly true that no one who is not familiar with the Bible can understand English literature or be at home in the company of educated men and women. The great literature of our race is so saturated with Biblical allusions, so colored by its phraseology and style that without a familiar knowledge of this well and fountain-head of English undefiled it is impossible either to write finely or to appreciate the writing of our great masters of English.

And notwithstanding all this the Bible is a closed book in our schools and our young people as a rule go out profoundly ignorant of the one book above all others which they ought to know most about.

We have no quarrel with the rule which prohibits the teaching of religion in our schools. Our schools are supported by the state and the state cannot under existing circumstances teach religion, but we do find fault with that interpretation of the rule which banishes the Bible. If the book as a whole cannot be read and studied in our schools let us by all means have as a text book in literature a wise and large selection of those great Bible passages which are the glory of English prose.

OLD ACCIDENT CASE SETTLED WEDNESDAY

In the case of the Bowman Dairy versus Larson Bros. Garage, heard Wednesday morning in Justice A. E. Smith's court, judgment was given to the Bowman Dairy Co., for the sum of $205.45.

The case arose over an accident that happened in June, 1919, when a car belonging to the garage struck a Bowman Dairy truck in Green Bay road.

CARELESS MOTORIST'S CASE IS DISMISSED

The hearing of James Conway, No. Chicago motorist who ran into Officer John Sullivan Sunday, was scheduled for Tuesday morning; but the case was dismissed when the parties concerned shook hands and decided to call it "quits."

Conway had purchased a new car and was just taking it home from the garage when he ran into the officer. The latter was slightly injured.

At a special meeting of the Young Men's club Tuesday evening special preparations were set forth for the coming season at the lake front. A new crew will be equipped and trained and only qualified men will be selected for the crew. A corps of workers have volunteered to paint the boat house and make necessary changes. It is expected that when the season opens on June 15th, the crew will be ready for duty.

The entertainment committee is planning to hold a series of weekly dances at the boat house this summer. Many novelties in the way of entertainment and athletics will be held at the lake throughout the summer and from all indications it looks like a big year.

PRaises HOSPITAL.

"I have received splendid treatment at the General Hospital No. 2. I wish that the worthy matron who would write a letter telling her so," said Sgt. L. L. Scharlach, at the last of Campbell chapter of the Eastern Star. "She thinks I should be treated well and feel permitted to write of it at the hospital as I have found. In accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Frances Larson who yesterday and mailed it to Mrs. Orpha M. Scharlach, Ill.

Sgt. Scharlach has been at Fort Sheridan for treatment so his discharge from active duty was injured while on duty in the Philippines and still suffers from a back. Because of this he was assigned to recruiting duty at Detroit and Columbus during the world war. "Fort Sheridan hospital is the best managed, patients more considered and the better looked after than at any other hospital I have ever visited."
