Why Telephone Rates
 Are Increased

ON July 19, 1919, the Telephone Company petitioned the Public Utilities Commission of Illinois (Case No. 8672) for an increase in rates for telephone service in Highland Park.

This was to obtain the necessary revenue to pay operating expenses and provide net earnings sufficient to attract the large amount of new capital which must be obtained to pay for additions to the property required to meet the demands of this community for additional service.

The Commission rendered its final order December 20, 1920, authorizing an increase in certain rates, but reducing substantially the rates asked for by the Company.

The new rates authorized by the Commission became effective January 1, 1921, and, while it is estimated that the revenue which will be derived from these rates will produce less than a fair return on the reasonable value of the property devoted to the service of the public, the Company will give them a fair trial, and do its best to make them suffice.

New Rates

- One Party Business $4.50 a month
- Two Party Business 4.00 a month
- Eight Party Business (Rural) 3.00 a month
- Business Extensions 1.25 a month

Residence rates remain unchanged with the exception of the eight-party rural residence which is increased twenty-five cents per month.
