UNIVERSITY WORKS AT CORN BREEDING
SEEK TO IMPROVE CROPS

Longest Experiment of Its Kind in Existence is Being Carried on at Urbana

Urbana, Ill. — What is probably the longest corn breeding experiment in existence is being conducted by the Agricultural Experiment station of the University of Illinois. The breeding has been continued for twenty-four generations with records continuing unbroken from the beginning.

Out of a single variety of ordinary corn, four different kinds, with respect to the composition of the grain, have been created, one in which the protein content has been increased from 10.92 per cent to 14.70 per cent, while another has been reduced from the same original figure to 6.40 per cent.

Similarly, high and low oil strains have been developed out of this same original variety and last year the high oil crop containing 9.05 per cent of oil as compared with 1.77 per cent in the low oil strain. The original corn 24 years ago contained 4.70 per cent.

Selection for such characters as height of ears, position of ears on stalks, and number of ears per stalk has also been carried on with very marked response. Last year's crop the high ears were 84 inches from the ground, while the low were 15 inches.
Another gross character, modified through this experiment was the erect and declining ear strain. Last year the erect ears stood 26 degrees from the perpendicular and the declining ears hung at 131 degrees.

After fourteen years of selection for two eared stock of what was originally a single eared variety, accounts last year showed 85 per cent of the stalks bearing two or more ears.
This selection seems to have been attended by a small increase in yield.

The purpose of this particular project is to test the principle of continuous selection as applied to such complex plant characters as yield.
The experiences of seven generations has brought out the inherent difficulty in this line of work, however, the selection has produced a strain that is outyielding one of the best old standard varieties. As a six year average, our new high yielding strain yielded 55 bushels per acre alongside standard Reid's Yellow Dent which made 51 bushels.

Similar experiments with the breeding of the smaller grains is also being carried on. A result of one of these was that of the development of a new grade of wheat, Turkey Red 10-110, which outyielded its predecessor six bushels to the acre on a five year average.

PHILADELPHIA PAPER
COMMENTS ON VOLIVA

Proposed Invasion of Reformers From Zion City Excite Comment in the East

Concerning the proposed move on New York by Voliva of Zion the Philadelphia Public Ledger has the following to say:

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, on whom the mantle of Dowie—"Elija II"—descended, is about to enter New York from Zion City, Ill., with an army of 400 in "flowing white robes." His object is to save New York. A good many people have landed on Manhattan island in the last four centuries or so with similar intentions.
Verrazano and Gomez sailed into the harbor in 1524 and 1525, took one look at the place, and sailed away with their noses in the air. In 1613 Adrian Block built the first houses for whites —Block houses they were called by the witty New Yorkers—on the site of 41 Broadway. The number of bears, bulls and lambs in the cacinage is now far in excess of the fauna of Block's time. In 1632 Peter Minuit bought the island from the Indians for goods valued at 60 guilders, which would be about $120 today. It is now generally conceded by those living away from New York that he paid entirely too much. The first clergyman came in 1623. Some complained that the average of one a century was far too high.

The real prosperity of New York began when the stage to Philadelphia was started in 1756. Those who could not make their escape continued to live in the subways of the suburbs, as is the custom still. And it is still called living in New York.
Is New York worth saving? Zion City, Ill., is one place that still thinks so. That is because, as the Zionists admit, they have never been to the theatre in New York.

Voliva will find it hard to discover a real New Yorker. Nine times out of ten, just when he thinks he has plucked a New Yorker from the everlasting bonfire, he will find he has rescued an out-of-town buyer from Syracuse or Elmira; or a steel magnate of Pittsburgh; or a chemist from St. Louis; or a shepherd from the Argentine; or another reformer. That is one of the provoking things about New York, that you never can find New Yorkers there. They know their city so well that they prefer to keep away from it.

And yet, whether New York is worth it or not, no place needs saving more.

RECRUITING FOR MARINES RESUMED

Chicago District Office Receives Orders From Headquarters
To Start Enlisting

Orders from Headquarters of the U. S. Marine Corps have been received today by Major A. B. Miller, U. S. M. C., in charge of the U. S.
Marine Corps Recruiting district of Chicago, 537 South Dearborn st., Chicago, Ill., directing the resumption of recruiting for the Marines. About 900 men a month are needed for duty on land, sea and sky, in the United States and on foreign service. As before, only the best type of men will be accepted. The applicant must be at least 20 years of age, not less than 35 inches in height, and not less than 130 pounds in weight. The term of enlistment is for three or four years.
Men accepted will be sent to the Marine Corps training station at Paris Island, S. C., for a preliminary three months' instruction course. All men enlisted will be given the opportunity to enroll in the Marine Corps Correspondence Institute, the courses of which are the same as the International Correspondence school courses and which teaches all subjects taught at that famous school.
These courses and books are free of charge.
