

The "Week's Work" Outdoors

For a few weeks we will offer in this space "Suggestions" for the lover of Plants and Flowers, Helpful Hints for those who are anxious to obtain best results and "Seasonable Reminders" for all who desire more attractive Home Grounds.

All Shrubs, where the young growth has been killed by last week's frost, should be lightly pruned back to encourage fresh growth. Hybrid Roses should be pruned back to within 8 or 10 inches of the ground. Hardy Hydrangeas should be pruned back so as to have just two eyes of last year's growth.

Plant Hardy Phlox now. "Miss Lingard" is the best white, and flowers all summer. "W. C. Egan" is the finest of all the light pink, with "Elizabeth Campbell" as the best deep pink.

Hybrid Tea Roses are the best of all for out doors, and if planted now out of five inch pots, will start to flower by the end of May and keep it up all summer. Among the most desirable varieties we have the rose pink and white "Kilarney," "Ophelia" cream pink, "Milady" for red and "Columbia," the finest of all deep pink sorts.

Apply a good dose of Darling's Blood and Bone Fertilizer now on your lawn; rake it in and sow some good grass seed wherever the turf is thin.

Sow Beets, Spinach, Peas, Lettuce, Carrots, Parsley, Onions, Swiss Chard — in flowers, Sweet Peas, Cornflowers, Summer Larkspur, Candy-Tuft and Zinnias.

ELM PLACE SCHOOL

The spring vacation will begin tomorrow, and will continue for one week.

Last Sunday when it was so cold and snowy out we fed the birds. Purple finches, robins, a flicker, and some juncos ate there. By and by, however, a squirrel chased them away and when he was gone the neighbor's dog came.

George Benson, 8B
Friday night, April the fifteenth, it began to hail and get very cold. It was about 26° F. Saturday morning, I put some crumbs in the mail box. A robin came and ate them and stayed on the porch for shelter. Soon the front door blew open and he went right into the living room. We kept him until Monday morning, when we let him go.

Sidney Holland, 5A
The 8A's are making maps of the United States on paper out a mixture of flour and salt.

The seventh and eighth grades have once more organized a current events club.

Last Tuesday debates were again held in the 7th and 8th grades. Whether the curfew law should be passed in Highland Park was debated by the 7A's and 8A's, the negatives won. The two 8B classes debated the same question. The 8B's, the affirmatives, won. The 7B's and 7A's debated which was the better public or private schools. The 7A's who stood for private schools won.

Miss Jones's 4A group are making blue prints of seedlings.

The 4B's are drawing maps of the Skokie, Desplaines river, and three railroads, and the Chicago river.

The 2A's are finishing the story of Robinson Crusoe this week. After vacation they are going to memorize poems by Robert L. Stevenson. They are also learning spring poems and are making bird books of some of our common birds.

Last Tuesday Arthur Schmidt gave a birthday party to the kindergartners.

Judson Smith, of Miss Stine's 4A group, celebrated his birthday last week, by treating the members of his class to a birthday cake.

Helen Ullman, a pupil of the same grade is going to move to the city of New York to live.

The entire school celebrated humane week by holding an exhibit of pets on Friday afternoon. Exhibitors brought their pets at the noon hour and the show was on from 1:30 to 2:00 o'clock. Seventeen cats were entered, twenty-eight dogs, a dozen or more rabbits, and pet chickens and doves, were on display. One boy brought a small alligator, a small boy brought a gold fish in a bowl, and another brought the family cow, which was tied to a tree in the centre of the grounds. Three pupils came on horseback and rode about the grounds during the exhibit and Emily Smith persuaded her grandfather to bring a spirited saddle horse to the exhibit. In spite of the varied nature of the pets exhibited there were no fights or other unseemly behavior. Space permits the mention of only a few of the interesting exhibits. Walter Koller exhibited a fine Jersey cow, Shirley Reay, Maude Gail and Arthur Bock attracted the admiration of the other pupils by their skillful horseback riding. Lois Larson won first prize for her small dog and Thelma Bench got first large dog. Margaret Kuehne got first place for the best rooster and Gertrude Williams for the best hen. Normand Gastfield's Belgian hare got first place and Martha Moore's cat first among cats. Mention should be made of the pet mallard owned by the school which sat up on the terrace during the exhibit and looked on with dignity and a certain amount of interest.

The kids deny that they are not interested in historical subjects, as they play the oldest game in the world, which is marbles.
