CROWDS AT THE BEACH

During the last week end the crowds at the bathing beach were larger than at any previous time this season. Several thousand people enjoyed the cool waters of the lake, and temporarily forgot the heat that lurked just over the bluff. Throngs walked about or rested on the beaches. The lake afforded a genuine relief for everyone after suffering from the heat during the week.

The large proportion of strangers in the crowd at the beach was very obvious. The visitors greatly outnumbered the Highland Park people. Members of clubs and family groups are increasingly making use of the local bathing beach each Sunday.

This weekly immigration of strangers has raised a problem here. Many people resent having the local beach crowded with city people every Sunday. They believe Highland Park people should not be inconvenienced by city people who come here Sundays.

Possibly to keep the visitors away would be a happier arrangement for Highland Park. But how can this be done?

To better illustrate the question, let us consider a similar situation. Suppose a Highland Park citizen wishes to spend the day in Lincoln Park, Chicago. He goes to the park when he pleases, and feels just as much at home as any Chicagoan. If he wants to go in bathing he goes. No one asks him where he is from, and no discrimination is shown against him. If any such discrimination were shown he would be justly indignant.

Strangers who come to Highland Park expect to receive the same treatment. As long as they submit to regulations that are imposed by the city they expect to enjoy themselves unmolested.

Thus it will be seen that the problem is a difficult one. There can be no direct line of discrimination. The matter must be taken care of in an indirect manner if it is to be solved at all. The city authorities have managed the beach efficiently and well. The locker system inaugurated by the city is so arranged that the visitors from other cities pay the greater part of the beach expenses. It has been pointed out that without this revenue from strangers the beach would not be self-supporting. The many conveniences at the lake are paid for out of ticket receipts.

Those who criticize the methods of the authorities in charge of the beach should realize that the problem is a difficult one. There should be no criticism of existing conditions which is not accompanied by a suggestion for bettering them.

KEEP YOUR HEAD

"Keep your head" means keeping calm and ready for each moment of the day, no matter how small the part it plays, that you may be ready for the trying hours—sure to come now when strikes and lockouts are happening. This is one of the greatest periods of unrest that the world has ever known. "Keep your head" is a slogan to be heeded, says a writer in the Blacksmith's Journal, for in it lies the rudder that is to guide our America over the hidden rocks of its enemies.

No matter how ordinary your place, you have a share in the readjustment of this country if you keep your head, think, listen, and reason. It is necessary that all who have positions and trusts of importance should show by their cool actions the value of keeping a strong hold over their emotions, holding themselves to a quiet course on the river excitement flowing fast in the world about us.

Y. W. C. A. NEWS
The Nature class, under Mrs. Theron Colton, will start Monday evening, July 11, at 8:00, in the Y. W. C. A. gymnasium.

A very interesting course of eight lessons will be given on birds, stars, butterflies and trees.

Two field trips will be added to the course.

Board Meeting
Miss Ruth Shutte chaperoned a party of Girl Reserves to Druce lake Tuesday where they will enjoy a couple of weeks' outing at the Edith Adams cottage in Association camp.

The party consisted of Helen Bock, Mabel Howe, Ethel Brewer, Mildred Artis and Nettie Grimson.

Later in the day the Siljstrom car took Margaret Siljstrom, Mildred Krueger and Margaret Anderson to join the campers.

Campers
The regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A. board will be held at the headquarters Tuesday morning, July 12, at 10:00.

Some people on the North Shore who are selling their liberty bonds at 85 because they think they are going lower, will probably buy more some day at 100 because they believe they will rise.

KODAK

WHEN years intervene and the springboard takes the place of the sandy beach, turn the pages of your Kodak album.

There she is—the curly headed mite who found a tin pail and spattered feet quite exciting enough.
How old was she then? "Long Beach 6/18/21"—the autographic record that you wrote on the film at the time holds the answer.
There is advantage in inspecting our complete stock—every Kodak made is ready for you to look at here.
