

Limited Armaments and Limitless Progress

History has taught that Peace not War brings happiness. It is to be hoped that this knowledge will be reflected clearly in the Disarmament Conference at Washington, November 11th, that the world's wealth may be conserved for the world's prosperity.

As with nations, so with men—success comes through ability to recognize and plan for the best in life.

Whatever the results of the Disarmament Conference, a conference in the home may well decree a bank account for every member of the family—a bank account at

MAY LOSE HALF HOLIDAY

The Wednesday afternoon closing custom in Highland Park is in danger of extinction. Each week some business firm joins the ranks of those who keep their doors open. Hardware stores and tea stores were the first to find Wednesday closing unprofitable. Now the dry goods stores are planning to remain open. Grocers, too, seem to be "on the fence." With so many of the merchants abandoning the plan, it is very doubtful that the custom can be continued.

It is unfortunate that Highland Park should revert to the old plan, and have no half-holiday during the week. For the last four years local merchants have closed their stores Wednesday afternoons. Some of them, including the meat dealers, adopted the custom before that. It is a very pleasant arrangement for business men and their employees, and affords a mid-week leisure time that is very welcome to all. Purchasers have adapted themselves to the situation and derive no inconvenience from it. Probably very little trade is lost by the merchants, and all gain a half-holiday. If the holiday is dropped by a few, however, others naturally will lose business, and all will probably be forced to open their stores Wednesday afternoons.

OUR DIRTY FRONT YARD

The freight station and sidetracks of the Chicago and North Western railway, lying almost in the center of the business district, form a very poor front yard for Highland Park. During the recent muddy weather that fact has been particularly noticeable. The freight station itself is a poor ornament for the heart of the city, and heavy traffic to and from the unloading platform has made First street between Central avenue and Elm place a block of ruts and mud puddles. The crossing at Elm place is so rough that it is all but impassable for automobiles. Mud from the freight yards is continually carried but into First street and Elm place. An effort is being made to move the freight yards south of Elm place, and out of the center of town. It is hoped that this will be done before the promised new pavement in First street is built next year. Otherwise the new pavement will be a poor investment.

FAILURES WANT TO RULE

It isn't the men who have made a success in business who are trying to run the other fellow's business. It's the people who have made failures trying to run their own business who are clamoring to lay down the rules for the railroads, the public utilities, the water power companies, and the big industries generally. Of course there are exceptions to this. But in the main it's true—the business failures are those who make most of the talk to get rules made for government control of big business; and they break all lines of business that they manage to worry into public regulation and control.

TRANSPORTION ECONOMY

The new plan for the pooling of government transport service is in accordance with good business methods. Heretofore each department has had its own separate motor equipment, chauffeurs, repair shops, etc. Sometimes, of course, there would be idle cars and workmen, and sometimes a shortage; so that it became necessary to employ private transfer concerns. Under the new plan put in force by the present administration, there will be a centralization of government motor transportation, and any department needing transportation service can call for it from the central station. This applies, of course, to transportation at Washington, where the departments maintain large numbers of auto trucks.
