NUMBER 42 THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1921

THE WEDNESDAY CLOSING

There is still a chance that the Wednesday afternoon closing custom will remain. The business men, at a meeting yesterday afternoon, decided to enlist the help of Mayor Samuel M. Hastings in their efforts to maintain the custom.

Just because one store has held out against closing Wednesday afternoons the weekly half-holiday for merchants and their employes was threatened. Other stores, competing with the first one, were forced to open Wednesday afternoons, much against their will.

It seems too bad that one store is able to spoil the thing for all the others, and the hopes of the local merchants will be with the mayor if he will take the matter up for settlement "higher up."

THE NEW NEEDY

There is a new element this year among those whom misfortune has made objects of charity. It is composed of those who in normal times always have been able to provide for themselves and their families. They are not the professional poor nor are they the kind that seeks charity; rather, the reverse. Many of them right now are desperately struggling to avoid the appearance of need, and going without many of the bare necessities of life, because they shrink from asking or accepting charity.

The professional poor we have always with us, but the new needy are a different class and a new problem. There are many of them in our midst today who are living on barely a meal a day and hardly know where the next meal is to come from. They have always been hard-working, good providers and will not ask for help until every other means of pulling through the crisis caused by unemployment and general depression is tried. In the meantime, women and little children suffer through false pride.

It is the business of those upon whom society has placed the responsibility of seeking and succoring the needy to delve deeper now than ever before into the consequences of unemployment. The new needy are not self-advertising; they are sometimes hard to find and harder to convince that acceptance of aid in such circumstances is not degrading. They need help, need it badly in many cases, but they will not ask for it, and they will hide their necessity as long as possible. They are deserving, and prompt aid may save them much suffering.

SELF-VAUNTING CHARITY

"Charity vaunteth itself, is not puffed up."
 How much there is nowadays of the type of doing for the poor, helping the helpless, giving treats for the children, and all that sort of thing, which is advertised with brass bands and wide publicity. And how often sneaking in the shadow of the banquet table or the Christmas tree are seen the cringing figures of those little-souled manipulators who make the necessity of the needy their opportunity for self-laudation. And how fruitless always are such efforts. They fool nobody, while the kind of charity that "let's not its left hand know what its right hand doeth," is blessed beyond estimation.

"Every man, according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give," was the admonition of Paul to the Corinthians. To the pigmy-souled is commended that phrase, "according as he purposeth in his heart."

NORTH SHORE LINE EMPLOYEE COMMENDED

H. Cawley Receives Praise for Courtesy from Chicago Man. Letter Published

The following letter was received by the Traffic Department of the North Shore Line and is self-explanatory:

"The writer was a passenger on the 5 p. m. limited from Milwaukee to Chicago, yesterday, Oct. 18 and I desire to bring to your attention the very commendable courtesy of the attendant thereon, Mr. H. Cawley. The writer was directed by him with the utmost pains and courteous treatment on his part. This man is a valuable asset to your road from a passenger's point of view and it is with a sense of deep appreciation that I place this on record. The writer assumes that you are as anxious to know of such incidents as of reverse ones.

"I am not acquainted with Mr. Cawley. The impression he made on me prompted me to ask his name."

"Yours truly,
 G. McDonald, Chicago."

We are always glad to get commendations of employees and it encourages all to strive to give perfect service, which is the aim of the North Shore Line.

The above article appeared in the December issue of the North Shore Bulletin. The Mr. Cawley referred to in this article is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Cawley of N. Second Street.

SWISS YODLERS AT ELM PLACE SCHOOL

Very Fine Program Presented; Third of Community Lyceum Affairs

Daddy Grobecker's Swiss Yodlers, the third number of the community lyceum course, was the attraction at Elm Place school last Monday evening. "Daddy" opened his program with a lecture on Switzerland, the Alps, and the yodlers. He won the hearts of his audience from the start, and after presenting his daughter and grandchild, and the rest of his company, launched into one of the most interesting and beautiful programs ever heard here.

Miss Adrijenne Lenz, "Daddy's" granddaughter, proved to be one of the sensations of the evening. As a reader of dialect and humorous stories she was excellent. And this coupled with her simple and unaffected manner endeared her at once to the audience who insisted on encore after encore. Almost as much could be said for "Jack", prize winning yodler, and for "Constantine", dextrous singer-er-player. Mrs. Lenz, "Daddy's" daughter, also received merited encomers for her work as an Italian impersonator.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Mr. Charles Tingle, Community Service Music Organizer, is making his home in Highland Park while assigned to the Chicago District. Mr. Tingle is living at the Moraine, and while here will assist in several musical activities of local Community Service.

Nearly one hundred boys attended the Community gym and tank classes at the Deerfield Shields High School last Saturday morning. The classes next Saturday morning will be the last until after the holidays. Attention is again called to the fact that these classes are open to all boys of the township, free of charge.

The Community Center will be closed again over this week end to complete the repairs and alterations, but will be open again on Monday. Send your old magazines, books, and phonograph records to the Center. They will be used by hundreds.

Do you need help — domestic, laborers, chauffeurs, and others? Call 261 — The Community Center.

Community Service says "Learn a Carol, or two before Christmas."

You will find several carols with the story of their origin on another page of this paper.
