CHICAGO BOOZE RAIDS

The belated war against violators of the prohibition act in Chicago is to be commended on the old theory of "better late than never." The wide-open conditions in that city since the adoption of the eighteenth amendment have been a scandal. It is well for the reputation of the second city of America that the hootch orgies there are to be halted.

No matter what may be the opinion of the average citizen on the prohibition question, the fact remains that prohibition is now the law of the land and a part of the constitution. As such it commands respect and demands enforcement. All good citizens must support prohibition because it is the duty of good citizens to uphold the laws.

Good citizens everywhere will approve the anti-rum campaign in Chicago for these reasons, to say nothing of the age-old indictments against the booze business, the force of which are undiminished—instead emphasized by modern conditions, especially as found in Chicago and other large cities.

CITY VS. COUNTRY

In the replies made by 3,063 Illinois doctors to a questionnaire regarding the prohibition law, it seems evident that the country doctors look upon the use of alcohol in a different light from that in which it is viewed by the city physicians. As an example, 535 Chicago medical men favor the use of whisky in medicine, as against 323 who do not believe that it should be used. But when doctors in the country district are consulted, the verdict is reversed, 580 standing against and 564 in favor of the stimulant.

In the same way the city doctors would use wine in case of sickness, while the country physicians, by a vote of nearly two to one, fail to agree with this practice. On only one question of this type do the two classes of medical men agree. Both are against beer. In Chicago the vote against beer was 510 to 330, while in the country districts it was 1,428 to 668.

Perhaps the solution might be found in the fact that the rush of city life brings a call for more stimulants. Then too, it may be claimed that the country doctor is not so anxious to garner the $3.00 per prescription.

HISTORY LIKELY TO REPEAT

Austin Slack, one of the Irish "bitter enders," is quoted as having said, in the Daily Eireann discussion of the peace treaty, "I expect to continue to fight even if this rotten document is accepted." That sounds true to type. There are plenty of people in the world like Slack, who always want to fight. All of them are not found in Ireland. America has more of them than is good for this country, and they're not all Irish. They want to fight anything and everything. Usually they're "agin the government." It doesn't make much difference what government it is nor what the dispute is about, so long as it gives them something to quarrel about. These people do not want liberty half as much as they want license to violate law or to persecute somebody.

Even though the treaty in Ireland is ratified there may not be peace. There are too many partisans of either side who love to fight too well. The Orangemen won't stand for Sinn Fein domination, and vice versa. History is likely to repeat itself in Ireland.

ROAD WORK IS PROMISED

According to reports from the county seat action will soon be taken in the matter of constructing many miles of new pavement in Lake county. The Highland Park-Deerfield highway is at last to be paved, and likewise the road from Highwood west to Telegraph road. Residents of this section will rejoice to learn that some of the road money will be spent in this part of the county, and not all of it spent on country roads away from the north shore.

CAPTURE FIVE IN LIBERTYVILLE BANK

For many weeks G. Karrol Gridley, cashier of the First National bank of Libertyville, has been figuring just what he'd do in case his bank was held up. Tuesday he put his theories into practice—and captured five men.

The bank had scarcely opened for the day's business when a big black car dashed up to the curb in front of the place. Five men jumped out. The leader, a tall, nervous man, ran up the bank steps and pushed through the door. The others followed him. Gridley was in his cage. "We're bank examiners," the leader said as he approached the cashier, one hand in his pocket.

Action—The Triphammer Kind "Holdup!" was Gridley's thought. Examiners had just finished checking up the bank last week. And Gridley acted.

"Won't you please come into my office — glad to meet you!" he smiled, and opened the gate which led to a little cubbyhole which held a desk and a few chairs. The men walked in—it gave them greater freedom to the bank's interior. Gridley was the last to walk into the room. As he crossed the threshold he grabbed the door knob, pulled it shut, and bolted it with a bolt he had put there for that purpose several weeks ago.

Then calmly the cashier walked into his cage and turned on the big bell of the burglar alarm. That done, he stepped to the telephone. The operator flashed a general alarm all over the village. Then Gridley grabbed the bank's sawed-off shotgun and awaited reinforcements.

Were They Armed? Oh Boy! They came — a hundred of them. Armed with baseball bats, pitchforks, young cannon, and long rifles and led by Chief of Police Dennis Limberry — they were. The bank was surrounded. Then the officers walked up to the cubbyhole door. "Come out—hands up—you're covered!" someone barked.

The door opened and out fled the five. ".....!!!" the leader gasped as he saw the mob and guns. One finger crooked downwards to his breast pocket. They searched him and they found a sheet of paper with big type up above: "State of Illinois: Be it known that—"

Yes, they WERE bank examiners.
