Your Little Ad and His Big One

THE national advertiser whose goods you carry wants to help you move those goods. So he advertises them — spends lots of money to do it.

And thus he advertises your place of business.

You see his ad in the national magazines. If you ask him he'll probably send you advance proofs and schedules, so you can tie up with him in your local advertising.

Do you see? The same week he is telling your customers about your goods you can be doing the same thing in your local paper.

Cultivate your local editor. You need his columns to sell your merchandise.

Now that the Irish Question has been settled, what will the "fighting Irish" do?

Let's resolve that in 1922 we will work harder than we ever have.

The New York Times says that Henry Ford is ridiculous. Henry can afford to be ridiculous.

The man who always takes the opposite side likes to step across when the celebration begins.

The politicians will be disappointed at Lloyd George's failure to appear, especially those who are unable to "put it over" as smoothly as the smiling Welshman.

Babe Ruth now knows what kind of a slammer Landis is.

An ingrown nail may be cured, but an ingrown disposition is almost hopeless.

PHONE DUE TO DEAF MUTES

While Teaching "Visible Speech" It Is Said Alexander Graham Bell Made Great Discovery.

That the telephone was born in America, and that Alexander Graham Bell made his discovery in Boston of the only way in which speech could be transmitted, was due to circumstances full of the deepest human interest, says the Telephone Press Service. That Bell came to Boston to teach his father's method of visible speech, was due to the insistence of a New England woman, Miss Sarah Fuller, principal of the Horace Mann School for Deaf Mutes.

Miss Fuller so impressed the Boston school board with the importance of this method of instruction for the unfortunate children under her care, that, after vainly trying to secure of Bell's father, who had invented the system, the board, upon his recommendation, offered the son, Alexander Graham Bell, $500 to come to Boston and give a course of instruction at the school.

He went there April 1, 1871, and thereafter divided his time between teaching the theory of visible speech to the teachers, and in practical instructions to the pupils. In 1872 he opened a normal school for teachers. In 1873 he accepted an appointment as professor of vocal physiology in the school of oratory of Boston university. In 1875, Professor Bell made the happy discovery that led to the invention of the telephone. He was then twenty-eight years old.

"RABBIT" IS PROPER NAME

Combination of Toasted Cheese and Brown Ale Has Been Incorrectly Called "Rabbit."

The original name of the combination of toasted cheese and good brown ale was, it is an historical fact, "Welsh Rabbit." It was a slang term, at that. It was one of a large class of similar terms describing in a humorous manner the special dish, product or peculiarity of a particular district. Thus, in England, a "German Duck" was the slang name for a sheep's head stewed in onions. "Lestershire Plover" was the name given to a bag pudding, and "Digby Chicken" was the slang term for herring.

Similar examples of metaphorical names for favorite dishes are found in every country. And long before the word "rabbit" was ever heard of, the familiar dish of "cheese and ale" was known as a "Welsh Rabbit."

It was only when some solemn etymologist came along, and gravely noting the fact that there was nothing in the dish to even remotely suggest a connection with a rabbit, suggested that the word was undoubtedly a corruption of "rabbit," which would make some sense at least. So "rabbit" it became among the purists. And the early dictionaries adopted it, though the modern ones acknowledge that "rabbit" has the right of way.

Black Walnut Valuable.

"Of all the forest trees found in the original forests of America," says American Forestry, "the black walnut probably suffered most at the hands of the early settlers. This is due to the well-known fact that it stood upon the best land in the fertile valleys and bordering foothills. These areas were selected by the pioneer farmers for their clearings and farms. A large number of the choicest black walnut trees were felled and burned simply to get rid of them. Many more were split into fence rails or put to other similar ordinary uses before the real merits of the wood became known.

"Now the wood of black walnut brings a high price. It is no longer destroyed and wasted, but every available piece is collected and manufactured into some useful article. It is not used any more for rough lumber, as it was in the early days, but all of it goes to factories, where it is converted into finished articles."

Young Sparrow's First Flight.

I was walking around my stables and stopped to watch a pair of sparrows enticing their offspring from a nest in a hole in the wall. One of the young ones, more venturesome than the others, fluttered off toward a cock feeding in the yard with some hens. The cock at once ran up and seized it in his beak; the hens, thinking this was something good to eat, ran after him. The hunt, however, was of short duration, for as soon as they got out into the open ground, a scavenger kite came with a rush, snatched the victim from the astonished cock and made off. The cock and hens then fled squawking for shelter.

The Field.

Sporting Instinct.

You wouldn't heckle a lady candidate?

"Certainly not," said the gallant major, "but I like a bit of fun as well as anybody. If a lady candidate were making a speech and I saw a woman voter in the audience about to bolt over, I'd probably be the last man there to call a policeman."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Enforced Cheer.

"Fine acting those merry villagers are doing."

"It doesn't require much art to play the role of a merry villager."

"They haven't had a cent of salary in three weeks."—Birmingham Age-Herald.
