

NATIONAL TEA COMPANY

BUTTER
We carry only the finest obtainable at the lowest market prices.

WEEK END SALE

Friday, March 3rd, and Saturday, March 4th, 1922
503 Central Avenue, Highland Park, Ill., and Waukegan Ave., Highwood, Ill.

EGGS
Fresh and carefully candled and graded at lowest market prices.

SUGAR Granulated, lb 5¼c	PRUNES—40-50 Santa Clara, large size, lb 15c	Irma ¼ Sardines in Olive Oil 5c	COCOA Baker's ½ lb Can 17c	SOAP Amber 4½c	FLOUR Gold Medal, ¼ bbl. Sack $1.04
Campbell's Pork and Beans 10c	American Home 2½ Sliced Hawaiian Pineapple 27c	Raisins, Bulk, Seedless 22c	American Home 2½ Yellow Cling Peaches in heavy syrup 28c	Post Toasties, large package 12½c	American Home California Pears, No. 2½ tin, in syrup 33c
Tuna Fish, Catalina Brand, No. ½ tins all white meat 20c	Classic Soap 4½c	Quaker Puffed Rice 16c	American Home Tomatoes, No. 2 tins 12c	Airline Honey, 8-oz. jar 22c
CORN B. & M. Paris Maine 15c	MATCHES Safe Home 5½c	PEANUT BUTTER Beech Nut, large size jar 25c	SIFTED PEAS American Home No. 2 13c	Salmon, American Home No. 1 tall tins, red Alaska 27c	Tomatoes, Gaston No. 3 Large size tin 15c

NOTE
These are not special sale prices, but only a few of our regular "Every Day Prices."
We cordially invite you to an inspection of the stores located as above and satisfy yourself of the splendid savings you can make on your grocery purchases from week to week.

California Growers, No. 1 tall tins, Sliced Peaches, in syrup 15c
Campfire Marshmallows, 6-oz. can 14c
"My Hobbie" Cut Stringless Green Beans, No. 2 tins 15c
Pillsbury's Bran 15c
Red Kidney Beans, Bean State Brand, No. 2 tins 9c
Domino Golden Syrup 9c
B. & M. Fish Flakes, large 20c; small 14c
Knox Gelatine 19c
American Home Jam, 1 lb 6 oz. jar (Strawberry or Raspberry) 27c
Pretzels, hand made 15c

EXMOOR RANKS WITH PIONEER CLUBS

(Reprint from February Issue of "The Chicago Golfer")

(From The Chicago Golfer)
By JOE DAVIS
Bringing the Psalms of David down to the golfing era, it may be said of the Exmoor Country Club, "Its line is gone out through all the earth, its work to the end of the world."
Wherever golf is played the name of Exmoor is known. Its sons, notably H. Chandler Egan and his cousin Walter, helped to make national golf history while locally the club has been a big factor in the golfing world.
Exmoor is one of the pioneer clubs in the Chicago district and had its inception in 1895, when a few students from Princeton and Yale during vacation period began knocking balls around the commons at Highland Park. They desired a golf club and consulted William A. Alexander, who in succeeding years has done as much as any individual to promote and advance the game in Chicago.
Knowing nothing about the game, W. A. made a trip to Lake Forest and watched Hobart Chatfield Taylor and a few pioneers knock the ball around a sheep pasture at the McCormick farm. He was not impressed, but a day or two later he went back and tried the game and was converted.
Next morning he got a saddle horse and rode over the Ridge to look at the property there. He located the present Exmoor site and the next day called a meeting of a few prominent citizens of Highland Park at the Union League Club and presented his plan. At that time he had an option in his pocket on the hundred acres on which the club house now stands.
Among these men were Charles W. Fullerton, J. McGregor Adams, J. Wallace Wakem, Everett Millard, S. M. Millard and Vernon Cassard. They were willing to act as directors but were not willing to put up any money, thinking it was a foolish move.

When Mr. Alexander found no one would back him, he bought the property himself. On Feb. 1 he started to clean out the timber, removing several thousand trees. After getting the land ready for seeding, he obtained permission from the City of Highland Park to lay a 6-inch main from the standpoint to the club house, which he himself paid for and deeded to the city.
Then he built a concrete road from the entrance on Vine avenue at an expense of $8,000, which he paid, built a club house and furnished it, employed a caterer who was to have what he made, but had to serve under the approval of the club, and employed a young Scotch pro named Tweedy.
Mr. Alexander made contracts and built a nine-hole course, which he laid out with the assistance of R. H. McElwee and Harry Towner. The greens were sown early and a Board of Trade member sent out 1,000 sheep which kept the grass short. A shepherd and two shepherd dogs were employed. Tree trunks were hollowed for troughs to feed the sheep.
The next move was to take the farm house of the Stupie farm, an old log cabin built in 1845, and make a caddy house of it. It still is in use as the caddy master's house. The club house was opened July 4, 1896, when more than 1,500 people by actual count passed through the gates, 800 being at the luncheon and 600 at the dinner at night. The tournament was a scratch event and was won with a score of 94, made with the hard rubber ball.
The club was incorporated in 1896, with W. A. Alexander as president, the other directors being J. McGregor Adams, H. T. Birch, J. W. Wakem, S. M. Millard, Vernon Cassard and Charles W. Fullerton.
Mr. Alexander, who was president two years, leased the house and grounds to the club organization at a low rate of interest. Anticipating the club would need more ground, he bought another forty acres and held it several years until the club was strong enough to buy it, which it did. It was sold at cost, plus carrying charges. Ten or twelve years later the club sold bonds and purchased the property, W. A. taking bonds in payment. Many of these have matured and been paid.

The original fee was $25 and $15 dues prevailed during these two years, and the club was able to meet all its engagement, never owing a dollar.
The membership filled the first year with 150 of Chicago's most prominent citizens. The club house became a social center and the Women's Western Golf Association really was built out of the women's organization at Exmoor. Mr. Alexander donated the W. W. G. A. championship trophy which is still played for.
The name Exmoor was selected by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander, who were reading "Lorna Doone" at the time, Exmoor being the home of John Ridd.
The new club met with opposition by the Highland Park club, a social organization, which feared the golf club would interfere with its prosperity. An indignation meeting was held and "ram pam" speeches were made, asserting that the morals of the suburb would be greatly injured by Sunday golf.
Mr. Alexander met this situation by at once presenting each minister and priest of the city with a bag of clubs and making them non-paying members. Nothing was heard from the pulpits against Sunday play and the club did not allow the caddies to work until afternoon on Sunday.
Regarding his philanthropy at the outset, Mr. Alexander confesses that he purchased the original club, now the central part of the present structure, with a view to using it as a residence later on. He believed the game was a fad imported from the other side and would last only a few years. He admits he was a poor prophet.

Since Mr. Alexander, the club has been fortunate in having an able number of presidents and under their wise guidance the club has improved from year to year, until today it is as near the ideal country club as can be had when all its activities are considered.
Exmoor's remarkable physical beauty on the ridge overlooking the Skokie valley, its proximity to a wonderful train service, its hearty hospitality, the real men and women who compose the membership and the fine club spirit are some of the things that have given the club its reputation and are responsible for a long waiting list.
The presidents have been as follows: 1896-7, W. A. Alexander; 1898-1901, Charles W. Fullerton; 1902, John M. Cutter; 1903-5, B. F. Cummins; 1906-8, Edward F. Carry; 1910-11, W. E. Carr; 1912-14, Denis F. Kelly; 1915-16, Robert F. Carr; 1917-18, F. Edson White; 1919, Percy B. Eckhart; 1920-21, Thomas R. Wyles; 1922, Fred A. Preston.
Among the early members of the club were George Ade, Michael J. Agnew, W. T. Baker, Edward H. Carmack, H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, W. E. Clow, John Cudahy, Walter Farwell, S. M. Felton, James B. Forgan, Frank Hibbard, W. J. Louderback, R. H. McElwee, George A. McKinlock, John H. Moore, William H. Moore, William V. O'Brien, Harry Rubens, Joseph E. G. Ryan, John M. Sellers, Charles F. Spalding, James T. Talbert, Henry A. Towner, Jr., Trigg Waller, J. O. Watkins, Ward W. Willets, George L. Wrenn, Tom R. Wyles and W. C. Egan.
Exmoor's greatest honors in the competitive line were the winning of the national amateur championship in 1904 and 1905 by Chandler Egan, who in 1909 was runner-up to Robert A. Gardner. In 1901 Walter Egan was a finalist, losing to Walter J. Travis at Atlantic City.
Chandler Egan won the western amateur championship in 1902, '04, '05, '07, and was runner-up in 1903 to his cousin Walter. Miss Frances Everett won the women's western championship at Glen View in 1904 from Miss J. A. Carpenter. Miss Everett, now Mrs. A. Lawrence Mills, lives at Highland Park and takes part in a good many club events.
The original nine-hole course was increased to 18 and this later was enlarged and a number of the holes changed entirely. During the last few years many improvements have been made, and the course is thoroughly modern and under the care of Stewart Gardner in fine shape. With a membership of 400 there is a great amount of play, and the social events are well patronized.

Much of the success of the social events is due to Mrs. Clara G. Mackin who has been with the club fifteen years.

Telephone 276.
DR. C. C. CHADWICK
DENTIST
State Bank Bldg. Highland Park

Announcing Saxon Duplex

TO ALL SMALL CAR OWNERS:

We are willing to sacrifice a great allowance on your old car, any model, which will enable you to purchase our new

SAXON DUPLEX

"The Car of Strength"

on easy terms. Come in and see us. Will demonstrate.

ILLINOIS AUTO EXCHANGE

LAKE COUNTY DISTRIBUTORS

21 Bank Lane Lake Forest, Ill.
Telephone L. F. 1134

OPEN HOLIDAYS & EVENINGS UNTIL NINE

It Will Be Your Turn

THE MAN LAUGHS BEST WHO LAUGHS IN HIS TURN

to laugh with sheer contentment after we have moved your goods to your new home. You'll smile all over your face when you get our bill. Our services are as high class as our charges are low.

HIGHLAND PARK TRANSFER CO.

520 Central Avenue
Also Dealers in New and Second-Hand Furniture
Telephone H. P. 181