

Are You Going to Build?

Conditions in the building industry are more favorable to the person desiring to build a home than they have been for several years. There have been reductions in the wage scales of most of the building trades, and substantial reductions in prices of most of the materials which enter into the construction of a home. These conditions make it possible to build a home substantially cheaper than would have been possible two years ago. If you contemplate building this year, it will pay you to consult the local firms listed below, who all stand for fair, square dealing in the building industry. It will pay you to patronize these local people.
