PUBLIC LIBRARY

Do you know what your child is reading? If you do, are they the books they should be reading? Are your children using the public library? If so, are they using it to their advantage? If not, why not? There are some of the questions every parent should be able to answer affirmatively—if you cannot answer them so there is danger that the child of today is not only using his spare time unprofitably, but dangerously. The public library is bending every effort to raise the standard of juvenile reading, but the library cannot do it alone—it must have the co-operation of every parent in the city, and unless it has that co-operation its efforts are useless. Next week is Boy's Book week and the library is doing its best to observe it. This month we have put on our shelves over a hundred new juvenile books, some twenty new educational primers, attractively bound and illustrated—that will appeal strongly to the little people of the first and second grade age. We firmly believe that if the child is started on the right path of literature, none but the best will ever have any attraction for him. For the third to the sixth grade people we have secured fifty or so volumes of the best juvenile fiction, histories as interesting as a novel and natural science books that must appeal to every child of the out-of-doors. Older children, or those more advanced in reading will be delighted at the attractive new editions of the old classics. "David Copperfield," "A Tale of New Cities," "Van Loon's Story of Mankind" and a goodly number of the newest modern fiction of universal appeal. Send your children to the public library—they will be well taken care of. "The public library is yours, use it."

There has been in the past some dissatisfaction expressed at the extent of our rental collection. Beginning this month, we are dividing the new fiction—part to go into the rental collection and part into the free seven day group. The old system of reserving the new and popular books, too, has proved most unsatisfactory both to the public and the library staff. It has resulted in keeping from general circulation the cream of the new novels—and has made for the staff an endless amount of trouble, resulting only in a decrease in the income from the books. We are therefore, making no new reserves for either rental or free seven day books. Any two weeks books, however, we will be glad to reserve as in the past. Any reserves now on file, of course, will be fulfilled. This week we have purchased and put on the shelves about seventy-five new volumes—including many of the popular new novels and some of the new essays, poetry and history. For the adults, too we have purchased marvelous editions of the old "stand-bys" by Dickens, Cooper and Bronte. Come in and see these volumes. Many of them you have always wanted to read but have not because of the unattractive editions.

We are making every effort to serve the public as it wants to be served. We want the Highland Park Public Library to be the best on the North Shore, as Highland Park wants it to be. If you need something we have not got, tell us about it. If you have any suggestions or criticism we want to know it. The public library is yours—use it!
Helen F. Welch,
Acting librarian.
