WORK ALREADY STARTED

Great New Amusement Gardens to be Located West of Glencoe on Intersection of Dundee Roads

A $750,000 establishment, known as the "Garden of Eden," which will be the greatest amusement resort in this part of the country, will be located at the intersection of Waukegan and Dundee roads, west of Glencoe, according to an announcement this week.

The owners are Frank L. Hoffman, 2041 Kenilworth avenue, and Andrew Bauer, 2306 Kenilworth Avenue Chicago. Mr. Hoffman last Saturday negotiated a $400,000 loan through the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Briefly this is what the modern Garden of Eden will be: A combination of country club and a glorified amusement garden of the Marigold type, only much larger, more modern and gorgeous. For instance, work already is under way on the casino, a structure 300 feet long and 150 feet wide, in the Spanish type of architecture. There will be a large cafe with seats for 2,400, and a

B. A. BALL HURT IN TRAIN CRASH WED.

C. & N. W. "Commuter's Express" Struck by Door of Passing Freight

Four persons were injured yesterday and a number more endangered when a Chicago and Northwestern train, Chicago bound, was struck by a freight car just south of Rogers Park.

Among the most seriously cut by the flying glass and shaken up by the force of the impact was George A. McKintock of Lake Forest, president of the Central Electric company. He suffered slight lacerations about the head and face.

Others who suffered small cuts and lacerations were B. H. Ball, 318 North St. Johns avenue, Highland Park; Miss Irene Kenny, 312 East 53d street; Miss Dorothy Hoder, 272 Elm street, Winnetka.

The train, which was occupied largely by heads of large Chicago business and professional firms, was known as the Waukegan commuters' express, due here at 10:45 Chicago time.

An open door on a freight car that sideswiped one of the coaches was responsible for the trouble, according to an official of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. The door was knocked off, eight windows of the coach were shattered and several of the partitions between the windows were torn down.

Altruism in Business

An interview with Samuel M. Hastings, head of a Scale Company, a City and a Family, who plays Golf, studies Art, Music and Literature, and participates in Civic affairs and finds Happiness in Everything

(Reprinted by permission of the Illinois Journal of Commerce)

BEHIND THE COUNTER in a little dry-goods store at Braidwood, Illinois, at the age of 19 stood a tall chap with penetrating eyes, and a face the lines of which turned up. A customer deciding upon a considerable order remarked that he was in a hurry and must complete his purchase immediately. Simultaneously, three salaried men from Chicago entered the store.

Samuel M. Hastings, the proprietor, faced a problem. The good will of each of these three men was valuable to him, for credit reasons. He must not antagonize any one of them, nor could he neglect his nervous patron.

"Pardon me a moment," he said to the customer, and, addressing the salesman, introduced them to each other.

"I shall be with you gentlemen in one minute," he said. "I want to see all of you, and, if goods and prices are right, I shall probably buy something. But don't form a combine to force up prices."

Years later, when Hastings was recognized as one of Chicago's ablest business men, one of the group of salaried men told him that his careful words and bright smile had won the full confidence of the trio.

By such methods, Hastings soon became a leading Braidwood merchant. The narrowness of his field, however, soon began to restrict him. Accordingly, he moved to Streator, Illinois, and, in 1889, to Chicago.

Hastings' first two ventures in Chicago were failures. He did not go bankrupt, but he accumulated debts totalling $18,000. In this trying situation he looked for profitable employment.

It was the World's Columbian Exposition that offered him his big opportunity. Here Mr. Hastings found the computing scale, a device for measuring both weight and price.

Seeing for it a great future, he immediately got in touch with the manufacturers, formed a partnership, and thus became a member of the firm of Mills and Hastings, general distributing agents in several mid-western states for the Computing Scale Company of Dayton, Ohio.

The agency of Mills and Hastings was second in the field. Subsequently, others arose and combined, and the result is the present Computing Scale Company of America.

Mr. Hastings was asked recently what were the chief factors in his success. He leaned back in his chair and removed a cigar from his mouth. Having smoked for a moment, he said:

"In the first place I was always ambitious. When a clerk at Braidwood I began to fear the possibility of going through life on a low salary, and in my old age being retired. The contrasting picture of myself at forty owning a prosperous business, appealed to me.

"After this ambition, came inspiration. I observed the men—watched their methods. Even more important, I tried to catch their spirit. But friendly contact with men was a prime factor. I liked people. I suppose that sometimes I pleased them unconsciously."

Mr. Hastings' planning and execution of business is highly efficient. He has a horror of "being off half-cocked." Decision with him precedes action. He decides quickly, plans his methods and acts immediately, thus saving the time many business men waste in futile effort.

"Furthermore," added Mr. Hastings, "I married young. I believe the influence of my wife caused about ninety-nine per cent of my success. I determined to provide for her comfort. Throughout those first years, as all through life, she has encouraged me and worked with me, shoulder to shoulder. Despite this age of luxury and luxurious tastes, I believe that it is excellent for young men and women to marry early in life."

By such theory and practice has Mr. Hastings realized his boyhood ambition. He does business for the pride of achievement, often disregarding monetary gain. He is a great believer in the assumption of business men of active responsibility in the conduct of public affairs. Not only does he talk such theory; he practices it. He holds the office of mayor of Highland Park and executes besides many other public and semi-public duties. It is his belief that if our government is to stand and continue to be what its founders planned, all men must look to their duties as citizens.

Mr. Hastings plays golf for love of the sport and its resultant contacts with men. He studies art, music, drama and literature, not just because they are beneficial, but because he likes them. But his chief accomplishment, since it brings the most satisfaction, is unselfish love for people.

EUROPE'S POLITICAL AND FINANCIAL SITUATION

SEEN BY R. L. SANDWICK

Opinions of Many Foreigners Regarding Germany's Conditions Discussed in Letter

Hotel Florence Washington
Florence, Italy,
July 30, 1922.

My Dear Mr. Udell:

I have been using every means possible while sightseeing to get a fairly accurate understanding of the financial and political situation in Europe. I talked with a cultured Frenchman who was taking his investment in German marks over across the border with his wife and family to spend them as rapidly as possible before all the value disappears. He is of the opinion that Germany is exceedingly prosperous and well able to meet the reparations, but by the device of expanding the currency the Germans are cleverly out-witting the allies. He believed that long ago the reparations terms would have been exacted but for Lloyd George who tries to carry water on both shoulders for the sake of winning German trade and so block France in her effort to secure justice.

I talked with an intelligent Englishman who thinks it is now too late to compel Germany to pay. If the customs are taken over only worthless paper will accrue to the allies; and the same of the railroads as any great industries are taken over. Besides he thinks that any action to force Germany will not only ruin that country but the allies as well.

I talked with a well educated Pole while in Germany. It was his opinion that Germany is very prosperous and rapidly acquiring foreign commerce so that in a few years she will have the greatest merchant fleet in the world. He believes she could pay if she would, and should be compelled to do so.

I met the dean of an American college who is in charge of a touring party. He speaks several languages fluently including Italian, and he had been some weeks in the various cities of Italy. His Italian friends tell him that there are many Germans in Italian cities pushing trade and establishing a branch house for the sale of

LABOR DAY PROGRAM BY AMERICAN LEGION

Big Military Parade Headed by Detachment of Cavalry From Ft. Sheridan

No stone will be left unturned to make American Legion Day, September 4th, (Labor Day) a grand and gala day for all, both old and young alike. Committees have been working diligently for the past two weeks to make this occasion a sort of stepping stone for a local Legion boom and from all indications it seems as though the program, as outlined, will furnish a splendid climax to the series of activities held at Sunset Wood during the past summer. Citizens may rest assured that what money is spent by them on this day will be used for a civic purpose, inasmuch as it is the plan of the local legion post to erect some public memorial in the near future, announcement of which will be made later.

In the morning there will be a big military parade which is scheduled to start from the Moraine hotel around 9:30. The Elks band has been secured to furnish the necessary zip to the marching order and the parade committee has made arrangements with the Fort Sheridan authorities to have a large escort of mounted cavalry lead the procession which is to be headed by the Hon. Mayor Samuel M. Hastings and post-commander J. B. Card, first commander of the local Legion post. An earnest appeal is being made broadcast to every ex-service man, whether he be a Legion member or not, to join the parade in the Legion ranks, and once more take up the old marching step behind Old Glory. Invitations are also being extended to every organization in town to join the foot parade in order to swell the showing. The line of parade will be along Sheridan Road to Vine; east on Vine to Linden; south on Linden to Central; west on Central to Greenway Road; north on Greenway Road to Sunset Wood.

After the parade has disbanded a short address of welcome will be rendered by Mayor Hastings after which Highland Park will have opportunity of hearing an address by Colonel John V. Clinin, who during the past war served as Colonel of the 130th infantry of the famous 3rd Division. Colonel Clinin is one of Chicago's promising attorneys, having

NEW ROAD TO LAKE FOREST IS PLANNED

SWIFT SUGGESTS ACTION

State Senator Says Bond Issue Road Will be Cut Through If Support is Given

The possibility of a state bond issue road between Highland Park and Lake Forest loomed this week, when State Senator Rodney B. Swift communicated with influential citizens in both cities urging them to agitate a movement to cut through a new road along the west side of the Chicago and North Western railroad right-of-way.

If the movement is successful a new and more direct route between Highland Park and Lake Forest, one that has been asked for many times, will be opened. At present anyone traveling from Highland Park to Lake Forest must cross and re-cross the Chicago and North Western railroad and the North Shore electric line tracks several times between the two cities. The proposed new road would eliminate the necessity of crossing any railroad tracks. It would be possible to continue north on Green Bay road through Highwood, avoiding Fort Sheridan entirely. At Westleigh road, a mile south of Lake Forest, the proposed road would connect with Western avenue, a good paved road leading directly into Lake Forest's business district.

According to specifications the state calls for a bond issue road, Route No. 22, from the Indiana state line east of Chicago Heights, Joliet, Aurora, Elgin, and Lake Zurich to Lake Forest—an outer belt line to keep through traffic out of the congested Chicago district. At a recent meeting of state road officials at the Hotel Sherman, it was tentatively decided to have the road terminate at Highwood.

However, the specifications call for a road terminating at Lake Forest. Thus, Senator Swift is convinced that prompt action on the part of business men and other citizens in Highland Park and Lake Forest will make possible the extension of the proposed road from Highwood to Lake Forest, along the route suggested several times by Charles E. Russell, Lake county superintendent of highways. Senator Swift declares that if enough interest is shown in the proposed extension there will be no trouble in prevailing upon state officials to provide for it.

There is great need for a more direct route between Highland Park and Lake Forest, and it is hoped that sufficient interest will be shown in the matter to assure its success.
