DEERFIELD PAVING MAY BE POSTPONED

SHORTAGE OF MATERIALS

Residents of Highland Park and Deerfield Demand That the Road be Placed on Priority List

With the prospect of waiting another year before the pavement between Highland Park and Deerfield is completed citizens and business men of the two communities have taken a keen interest in the matter, and are demanding that some action be taken.

After the road had been closed and the bridge over the Skokie taken out, word came to the contractor in charge that, on account of the shortage of cement, he probably would not receive enough to complete the work this year. Residents of Deerfield, who have been cut off from direct communication with the north shore, members of the Briarcliff golf club, children in Deerfield who attend high school in Highland Park, and many residents of this city who have occasion to go to Deerfield frequently are up in arms about the matter. At present it is necessary for them to take a seven mile detour, where formerly the trip was merely a two-mile jaunt. And the worst of it is that no relief is in sight. It is impossible to detour over the Half Day road, because it also has been closed.

Charles E. Russell, Lake county superintendent of highways, however, has not allowed the contractor to tear up the road, and promises that as soon as the new bridge is constructed over the Skokie, if the cement is not then available the old road can be reopened for traffic. Such action would probably delay work until next year, and the road would be closed again then.

According to a communication received by Mr. Russell from C. M. Hathaway of the state division of Highways it will be possible for the state to furnish enough cement for a certain proportion of county road work, and he asks for a list of roads being constructed in Lake county, classified as to priority. Roads that are needed most will be put in, and others left until next year.

At a meeting of the board of supervisors Tuesday in Waukegan, Chairman Martin Ringdahl of this city, and Supervisors Eichler and O'Connor insisted that the Deerfield road be placed on the priority list. If this is done it may be that this stretch of road may yet be completed this fall. If any road is put on the priority list, this should be beyond all doubt be one of them. The meeting was adjourned for two weeks, without any action taken in the matter.

It was stated by members of the board of supervisors that arrangements could be made whereby the contractor could secure part of the required materials through the state, and the rest in the open market. The difference in cost, it was said, would be paid by the county and the property owners.

The letter received by Mr. Russell from the Division of Highways, explaining the shortage of materials, follows:

Mr. Chas. E. Russell,
Co. Supt. of Highways,
Waukegan, Ill.

Dear Sir:
As you are, of course, aware there has been during the past month an extreme shortage of cement which shortage still continues to a marked

With their automobile stalled on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad tracks at the Highwood avenue crossing, Harry Burke and his family, residents of Highwood, were compelled to jump hurriedly out of the car Sunday night to escape being killed by a limited train that demolished the machine.

The Burkes were driving west on Highwood avenue, and were on their way home when the 10:45 train, bound for Chicago, bore down upon them. Mr. Burke had time to get across, but the engine of his machine died as he was attempting to cross the tracks. The occupants scarcely had time to get out before the onrushing train picked up the Oakland car and tossed it into a ditch. Mr. Burke is a motorman for the Chicago, North Shore, and Milwaukee electric railway.

MUNICIPAL CHAMPION OLSON TRIMS PETERSON

Score 3-2 in Community Tournament, Sunday. Conrad Defeated Witten, 1 up

Art Olson defeated Jack Peterson in a close match last Sunday in the final of the Community Golf Championship by a score of 3-2. The match was played through rain and very disagreeable weather, which made it hard for both players. Peterson had a hard time getting started and lost the first four holes, however, he finished the first nine in 43 to Olson's 39. They both came back in 40, Olson being 4 up at the end of the first eighteen.

In the afternoon they both went out in 40, and as Olson refused to give his opponent anything the match ended on the 34th green.

John Conrad won the second fight by defeating Harvey Witten 1 up. This match was also close and exciting as it was decided on the last green, when Conrad dropped an 8 foot put to win.

PATENTS JUST GRANTED

Special Chemicals Company Enters New Field With New Idea in Dentifrices; Endorsed

Highland Park people who have watched with interest the development of the Special Chemicals company from a war emergency organization formed to supply the government with certain rare chemicals not then obtainable in this country, to an institution which today commands the attention and respect of the entire chemical industry because of its achievements in this line, will be particularly interested in its latest announcement, namely, the production of "Lactonique," a tooth paste constructed according to the latest requirements of dental science, and incorporating an entirely new substance for keeping the teeth and mouth in a healthful condition. Basic patents on the product and the processes for making the lactone have just been granted.

This newest production is the result of two years of research and study undertaken at the suggestion of one of the best known foundations for chemical research in this country. It was discovered by this institution that a certain chemical, Galactonic Lactone, the by product of one of the rare sugars manufactured by the Special Chemicals company, displayed the unusual power of dissolving the decayed organic matter present in the pulp chamber of a dead tooth. It was used with marked success in the treatment of root canals by dentists. The Special Chemicals company was asked to produce this chemical in quantity for use by the dental profession. This proved itself to be no small scientific problem, but was successfully solved after months of effort by Mr. Robert Black, chief chemist of the Special Chemicals company. The idea then suggested itself of incorporating galactonic lactone in a tooth paste, and thereby making the beneficial properties of this substance available to the public. It was found that this substance was equally effective in dissolving the film or coating that forms on all tooth surfaces, and which, if allowed to remain, is the cause of most tooth troubles.

The new preparation does not depend for its cleansing action on either soapy or gritty substances or drugs of any kind, which the latest dental investigators have condemned for use on the teeth and in the mouth because of their harmful effects.

After many months of study and experiment Mr. Pfantstiel, president and research director of the Special Chemicals company, succeeded in arriving at a formula which incorporated this new aid in dental prophylaxis. Extensive tests upon the latest scientific instruments were made to ascertain its exact action on the teeth and in the mouth and it was found to be most actively beneficial, especially in cases of insipid pyorrhea because of its ability to reach and clean otherwise inaccessible surfaces of the teeth. For more than a year this new paste has been tested successfully in the office of one of Chicago's best known dentists, Dr. Howard Lyle Simmons, who has put himself repeatedly on record as being enthusiastic about the results obtained. Those of his patients who have been able to secure a tube from him have refused to use any other dentifrice, and his office, as well as the Special Chemicals company, has been kept busy with constant requests for more.

Up to the present the company has been unwilling to place the paste on sale, as it wished to make sure that its claims for the paste were fully justified by the results obtained. The matter has now, however, passed beyond the clinical stage, and the company has placed a limited number of tubes on sale in the local drug stores, as well as in selected drug stores in Chicago to meet the constantly increasing demand. The paste is already attracting the attention of dental authorities, and an article on its scientific properties is being prepared for one of the leading dental magazines by a professor in charge of research in one of the leading dental schools.

The Special Chemicals company feels that in presenting this article for general use it is taking a long step towards achieving its purpose of developing and making available the newest results of chemical research.
