GEO. V. H. MOSELEY, BRIGADIER GENERAL, U. S. ARMY

GENERAL MOSELEY IN COMMAND AT "SHERIDAN"

PRODUCT OF NORTH SHORE
 Has Been in Command of Sixth Corps Area and National Guard; Sketch of Military Career

We have at Fort Sheridan, to-day, to command the only post in the neighborhood of Chicago, considered the most important city in the United States, a product of the North Shore—for General Geo. V. H. Moseley, was born and raised at Evanston, Illinois. His many friends in Chicago and North Shore were highly gratified to learn that he was especially chosen by the War Department to organize the largest training camp in America this summer.

With station at Fort Sheridan, in the early spring he proceeded to Camp Custer, near Battle Creek, Michigan, and built a plant composed of a tented city and co-ordinated a system of training which will be adopted by many camps next summer, according to War Department officials. The reports of the officers of the National Guard, Organized Reserves and Inspectors from the War Department proclaimed a most successful camp in every respect. But this did not surprise General Dawes, recently Director of the Budget, who paid the general a visit at the camp. When asked by newspaper representatives for his opinion on the camp, location, system of training and so on, he replied: "Why, it's fine, but that is what I expected to see."

Since the latter part of September, General Moseley has commanded the Sixth Corps Area, including the National Guard, Organized Reserves and regular troops in the states of Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The doings of a member of the North Shore family claim our interest and a brief sketch of his military career follows:

General Moseley is a graduate of all the army schools, was in France during the war and received a number of decorations.

General Moseley was born in Evanston, Illinois, September 28th, 1874. He entered the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1895 and shortly after graduation embarked with the 9th Cavalry for service in China and the Philippine Islands. He served in the Philippine Campaign throughout the Island of Luzon. Later he commanded the Cavalry at General Franklin Bell's Headquarters throughout the Batangas Campaign. He joined the Staff of General Lee in various capacities at home and abroad.

At home, General Moseley has served in many different stations and all along the Mexican frontier. Shortly before the war he was on duty with the German and French Armies at their grand manoeuvres. This same year he was a member of a committee of three General Staff Officers which drew up the report on the organization of the Land Forces of the United States. This report was accepted by the War Department and incorporated in President Taft's message to Congress and it became the basis of much subsequent military legislation. He was the author of the Chamberlain Bills for Universal Service, which was discussed throughout the country and in Congress during the years just preceding the War.

In 1916, General Moseley was commissioned a Colonel of the National Guard of Pennsylvania and appointed Chief of Staff of the 7th Division, and took that Division to the Mexican Border.

At the outbreak of the war, he was a Lieut. Colonel in the Regular Field Artillery and accompanied the Fifth Field Artillery to France as part of the First Division. The boat upon which this unit was embarked was deliberately rammed, the first day out, by a German pilot and sank, but General Moseley, who commanded the troops on board, succeeded in getting the entire personnel safely ashore, with the loss of only one man. When the First Division completed its first tour of duty at the front, he was called to General Pershing's Headquarters and became Chief of the 4th section of the General Staff, which position he held throughout the war. This section of the General Staff made all arrangements for combat throughout the armies, controlling railroads and movements of troops and had activities on every part of the front upon which American troops were engaged. Shortly after undertaking these duties, he was promoted to a Brigadier General. Upon the signing of the Armistice, he conducted the negotiations at the Hague with the Netherlands Governments, which opened up the Rhine River for use, by the allies in supplying the Armies of Occupation and permitting us to evacuate our personnel and material, via the Rhine.

When General Pershing returned to the United States, General Moseley accompanied General Harbord to Turkey and Armenia, where they made a report on the situation in the near East, returning to the United States at the end of the year 1919, when General Moseley rejoined General Pershing, and accompanied him on his tour of the United States. Thereafter he took command of the 2nd Field Artillery Brigade in Texas, until an order came from the President directing him to report for duty with Gen. Dawes in connection with the organization of the Bureau of the Budget. This duty was completed just before reporting at Camp Custer. He is an honor graduate of the Army Staff College, a graduate of the War College, and has on four different occasions served as a member of the General Staff of the Army.

For his service during the war, the American Government promoted him to the grade of Brigadier General of the Regular Army, and granted him the Distinguished Service Medal. The British Government appointed him a member of the Order of the Bath. He was also made a Commander of the Order of the Crown, Commander of the Legion of Honor of France, Commander of the Order of the Crown of Italy, and, in addition, was given the Croix de Guerre, with Palm, by the French government for his services at the front.

University Appoints Director to Aid Students Solve Personal Problems

L. B. Hopkins, of Philadelphia, treasurer of the Scott company of that city, considered an expert in personal work in industry, has been appointed director of personnel at Northwestern University. President Walter Dill Scott in making the announcement last (Wednesday) night said that Mr. Hopkins will establish himself at once in both Evanston and Chicago, and that his activities at present would be solely with the men students. Northwestern University plans to be the first university to install personnel service in its broadest sense, President Scott explained, and while there will be no paternalism nor cock-sure vocational guidance, Direct-
